Panzer Unit Reported In Dash Through Syria; Palestine Attack Seen

Imperial Troops Set to Strike Before Germans Gain Foothold

The War Today

GERMAN MOTORIZED troops land in French Syria as British prepare military action against the mandated territory and hurry to defend Cyprus.

HITLER and Mussolini in another Brenner Pass meeting discuss new war plans; concern over United States moves is indicated.

R. A. F. DAYLIGHT raiders attack motor transport and airdromes in northern France and Nazi torpedo boats in Channel; Manchester digs out from ruins left in blitz raid.

Flames Spread East

By the Associated Press

Ankara, June 1 (Delayed).—A Nazi infantry detachment geared for speed landed last Thursday at the French Syrian port of Latakia just south of the Turkish border, highly authoritative sources said today.

Armored cars and mobile field guns were among the equipment unloaded from coastal steamers which apparently hugged the coast to avoid British naval interception en route from the Italian Dodecanese Islands.

The German units were believed to have moved southward to Beirut, Lebanon capital, more than 100 miles away. A good coastal road connects the two points.

[Radio Beirut broadcast an official denial Monday evening that any German troops were in mandated territories, according to the New York Times.]

Military observers here saw a strong possibility of an imminent German attack on Palestine, timed to coincide with a new offensive by the Axis into Egypt on the western approach to the Suez Canal.

British Prepare Cyprus for Attack

By the Associated Press

London, June 2.—Quick British military action against French-mandated Syria, was expected by authoritative observers tonight.

The conviction was expressed in informed quarters that imperial forces in the Middle East were poised to strike at Syria to prevent the Nazis from getting a foothold there and also to bolster Turkey, Britain's nonbelligerent ally.

With Britons conceding the Mediterranean to be virtually an Axis lake and the dangerous turn of events in Syria, British authorities on Cyprus, island bastion standing between Axis-conquered Crete and Syria, began preparing for an anticipated German air assault. British women and children were removed from Cyprus, native families rushed to the hills and ground de-

Islands Vulnerable, Goering Declares

Berlin, June 2 (AP).—Reichsmarshal Goering declared in an order of the day to the German air corps tonight that the parachutists and air-borne troops who conquered Crete had "proved before the whole world the words of the Fuehrer: that there are no unconquerable islands."

Crete Survivor Tells How Lone Gunner Felled 20 Nazi Bombers

By Larry Allen
Associated Press Staff Writer

Alexandria, June 2.—A young British marine firing the last anti-aircraft gun in action at Canea, capital of Crete, brought down 20 German bombers before the British were forced to withdraw, one of his comrades said on his arrival today from the Nazi-conquered island.

The gunner, Lance Corporal Thomas Neal, 23, now is missing with five other members of the last marine detachment to leave Crete.

Private Patrick Mohoney, of Liverpool, who operated the searchlight near the gun position, told how Neal sang and shouted defiance at swarms of Stuka bombers as he pumped hundreds of 2-inch shells from a Bofors gun into the attackers.

"From the moment the Germans started the attack on Canea with heavy bombing and machine gunning," Mohoney related, "Neal, with three companions helping to operate the gun and two others passing ammunition, fired almost continuously.

"Neal's gun was still firing on May 27, the day the last of us cleared out of Canea. I don't know whether he got away alive.

"Each time the group of Nazi dive-bombers came over, Neal would let all but the last plane pass. Then he would concentrate upon it. He got nine within two days and at least 20 within the fortnight."

The Nazis soon caught on to the tactic, Mohoney continued, "so they decided to get him by trickery."

"They kept sending over 10 to 20 planes, but behind these groups there trailed three more. Neal took the usual shots at the last plane of the first formation, and the three trailing planes then plastered his gun position repeatedly with sticks of heavy bombs.

"But they failed to get him. Neal's gun kept firing while bombs

Lou Gehrig, 'Iron Horse' Of Yanks, Dies

Spinal Ailment Fatal to Star, 37; Wife at Bedside

New York, June 2.—Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees' former first baseman and captain who became one of baseball's immortals, died here tonight, victim of a lingering malady which he alone was confident of someday overcoming.

The "Iron Horse" of the diamond who in 14 years played 2,130 consecutive games—a record never touched in baseball history—died at 10:10 (E. D. T.) at his home at 5204 Delafield Avenue, the Bronx. He would have been 38 years old on June 19.

Gehrig's death was caused by amyothropic lateral sclerosis, a rare type of illness of the spinal cord which causes the muscles to shrivel.

Gehrig's records were almost innumerable. To name a few. He participated in 34 World Series games. Twice he was chosen the most valuable player in the American League, and he held the record for batting in more than 100 runs a year for 13 years. He led the American League in batting in 193 with .363, and his lifetime average was .340. He earned about $400,000 in his career.

Waves of Planes Pound at Berlin

Berlin (Tuesday), June 3 (INS).—Royal Air Force bombers raided Berlin and several other sections of northern and western Germany last night and early today.

Repeated waves of raiders dropped numerous large explosive bombs and thousands of incendiaries on the Reich capital for several hours.

It was officially announced that an undisclosed number of civilians had been killed and others wounded by bombs falling in residential districts.

Treasury Quits 2-3d Revenue Payment Plan

Rising Arms Cost Forces Relaxing Of Fiscal Policy

By Cecil B. Dickson
International News Service Staff Writer

Secretary Morgenthau, yesterday revealed the Treasury had abandoned its policy of seeking to pay two-thirds of Government costs out of revenues and one-third with borrowed money due to unexpected increases in the defense program.

Morgenthau announced that despite new budget estimates that Federal outlays in the 1942 fiscal year would exceed $22,000,000,000, the Treasury would stand by its $3,500,000,000 tax program now before the House Ways and Means Committee.

"I have no plans other than the $3,500,000,000 program," Morgenthau told a press conference.

Morgenthau had estimated spending next year at $19,800,000,000 and told Congress that the new tax program was needed to bring revenues up to $12,700,000,000 to carry out the two and one-third rule. Saturday, Budget Director Howard D. Smith issued a statement showing Morgenthau's estimate was short almost $4,000,000,000 due to President Roosevelt's request for money for bombing planes.

The House Ways and Means Committee, meantime, appeared certain to scrap the Treasury's new excess profits tax proposal. A poll conducted by opponents at a secret session today showed only three Democrats definitely committed to the Treasury's plan.

Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan will be allowed to present rebuttal argument for the Treasury's plan, which would impose excess profits from 15 to 65 per cent on earnings of corporations over 10 per cent of invested capital, in addition to a 24 per cent normal and a 6 per cent surtax on all earnings.

Leading opponents of the Treasury's plan disclosed yesterday they

Bomber's Fall In Bay Laid To Sabotage

By the United Press

San Diego, Calif., June 2.—A powerful bomber dressed in the war paint of Britain carried four of its five-man test crew to death in the bay today because of apparent sabotage.

The controls jammed and a Consolidated Aircraft official observed bitterly, "Controls just don't jam of their own accord as they did on this flight. We have good reason to suspect sabotage."

Killed by the plunge were William V. Wheatley, 36, Chester, N. Y., chief test pilot and service manager; Allen T. Austin, 28, Kansas City, Mo., assistant test pilot; Bruce Craig, 27, Chicago, engineer; William H. Rieser, 23, Cambridge, Mass., engineer. Rieser died en route to a hospital.

Lewis M. McCannon, 25, a mechanic, of Woodstock, Ill., was taken to a hospital and his condition described as "fair."

FBI agents questioned McCannon for 30 minutes tonight, what he revealed was not announced.

Persons close to Consolidated Aircraft revealed two apparent sabotage cases in recent months. A last minute inspection of a final test flight on a bomber recently revealed a large piece of waste jammed into the exhaust manifold.

Another bit of reported sabotage was the mysterious crossing of electric circuits in the factory while electricians were at lunch. When they returned and tested connections, the cables began smoking. The plant had to be rewired.

Equipped with Four Engines

Consolidated officials who have made hundreds of the bombers since the United States Army began buying them in 1939, said it was the first time they knew of one crashing.

Wheatley took the four-engine bomber off from Lindburgh Field in a routine check flight. Three minutes later it nosedived into the bay.

Navy tugs and crash boats foamed out to the wreckage.

Two of the motors had broken from the wings and the tail assembly was split away.

Rescuers were able to pull Rieser and McCannon out. The other bodies were not recovered at once.

Plane Had New Type Wings

Witnesses said the pilots seemingly had difficulty with the elevators, being unable to put the 20-ton ship on an even keel. They were fighting for control as it dived and side-slipped into the water 100 yards from the B Street pier.

Wheatley personally had test-flown each of Consolidated's new models for 12 years, officials said. After his okay, the planes were flown to Canada and Great Britain.

Among the guarded military secrets of the Liberator's construction was its new Davis wing, said to have more than twice the weight capacity of the familiar commercial transport plane.

Army Would Let U.S. Seize Any Property

(Text of Bill On Page 11.)

Post Staff Writer

Blanket power for President Roosevelt to take over property of "any kind or character" directly or indirectly adaptable in any way to national defense was asked of Congress yesterday by the Administration.

Legislation granting such broad authority to speed defense production was sent to the Senate and House by the War Department and immediately introduced by Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Affairs Committee. The War Department said it had the approval of the President, the Navy Department and the Office of Production Management.

Coincidentally, Mr. Roosevelt obtained power to impose mandatory priorities of wartime character on American industry. At Hyde Park, N. Y., he signed legislation under which the Government can direct the priority in which industry fulfills orders for the Government, foreign nations and, in some cases, private industry.

Reaction Mixed

Reaction to the request for sweeping "draft property" power was mixed. Some Congressmen indicated quick approval, while others condemned the lack of any limitation on the proposed authority other than that owners must be compensated for property taken.

Existing law permits the Government to condemn real property and to take over plants which refuse to accept and fulfill or to give precedence to defense orders. There are also specific laws covering radio stations, nitrate plants, ships and timber for munitions.

The Army request would grant in broad and general language, during this or any future emergency, power provided during the World War under more than a score of special acts. Designed to cover all possible contingencies, it is also intended to take care of the following immediate situations which cannot be handled under existing law:

1. Take over certain material ordered by the French, over which the Government has had difficulty taking title.

2. Take over and operate defense plants closed by strikes. Government lawyers have considered such action of doubtful legality now unless it were clearly shown that the employer was entirely at fault and thus "refusing to fulfill orders."

3. Require firms which have built up unnecessarily large inventories of essential materials, such as aluminum, to turn over such supplies to the Government for other use.

4. Requisition machine tools from plants which use them infrequently and put them to better use under the defense program.

5. Assist in preventing price manipulation and sub rosa sales

Chief Justice Hughes Retires July 1; Jackson Most Likely Successor

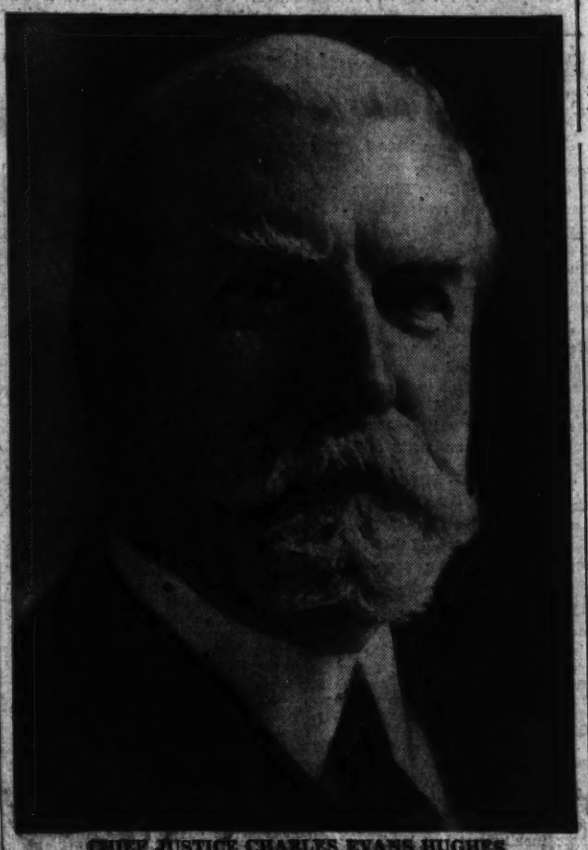
Hughes Symbolizes Transition From Old Guard to New Deal



CHIEF JUSTICE CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

Retirement of Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice of the United States is like the passing of a landmark from the national scene.

He symbolized the transition from the Old Guard to the New Deal in the dominance of national economic and political life.

His stately appearance, his grave mien, and his aloof demeanor, all accentuated by a Jovian beard, represented to the American people the majesty and impartiality of the Supreme Court.

Charles Evans Hughes was the living proof to Americans of the constitutional precept of justice under law.

Compared To Holmes

In the years of his first term as a member of the court and in his first years as Chief Justice, he represented a liberalism in judicial reasoning that approximated that of the late Mr. Justice Holmes.

In the years of his service while the New Deal was becoming the dominant political and economic philosophy of the Nation, he represented the national feeling that the American government is one of laws and not of men.

In the months of the fight to liberalize the Supreme Court, his presence in the center of the bench represented the inviolability of the court of last resort.

A Versatile Career

The Chief Justice has had a career so distinguished and versatile that it has few parallels in American statesmanship.

Governor of New York, Secretary of State, Presidential candidate, member of the World Arbitration Tribunal, twice Justice of the Supreme Court—these have been the milestones along the luminous trail of achievement. He was 79 last April 11 and had been eligible for retirement since 1934.

A child prodigy who had read all of Shakespeare before he was eight and prepared for college at the age of 11, Hughes won quick eminence at the New York bar. Before he was 45 his State had called him to

Court Extends Flood Control To Watersheds

Decision Unanimous On U. S. Dam Project; Summer Recess Starts

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision delivered by Justice Douglas, yesterday held that Federal jurisdiction over the Nation's highways extends over the whole watershed of a navigable stream.

Earlier in the term, in the New River case, the court held that the power of Congress to control floods and promote commerce extends to the nonnavigable portions of a navigable stream.

"And now we add that the power of flood control extends to the tributaries of navigable streams," Justice Douglas wrote.

The decision stemmed from a dispute over construction of the $54,000,000 Denison Reservoir on the Red River on the Oklahoma-Texas border.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma, who once threatened to call out the National Guard to prevent work on the Denison project, authorized by the 1938 Flood Control Act, brought an injunction suit, contending that the dam would flood about 100,000 acres of Oklahoma land, drive 8,000 persons from their homes and challenge the sov-

Roosevelt Accepts His Resignation Out Of Consideration For Health and Age

By William V. Nessly
Post Staff Writer

Charles Evans Hughes will retire as Chief Justice of the United States on July 1.

Bringing to an end a third of a century of public service as Governor, Presidential nominee, Secretary of State and the Nation's highest ranking jurist, he notified President Roosevelt yesterday that "considerations of health and age" require that he step into private life.

The President, though "deeply distressed" by the word, which he said would come "as a great shock" to the Nation, replied that because of deep concern for the Chief Justice's health and strength he would not press "my every inclination . . . to beg you to remain."

The Chief Justice sent his letter to the President on the last day of the Supreme Court term which ended yesterday. While his own health has been regarded as vigorous for his age of 79 years, it is understood that Mrs. Hughes has urged that he give up the confining and wearing duties of his high office.

There was a considerable expectation in circles close to the Court last night that before Mr. Hughes does put an end to his long public career he will take some step, perhaps through a formal statement, to make his extensive influence felt in the effort to mobilize the national consciousness and resources in the international crisis. It is known that he feels keenly the significance of developments abroad. Addressing the annual meeting of the American Law Institute here last month he declared that "we are engaged in harnessing our national power for the defense of our way of life."

Two Vacancies to Fill

The forthcoming vacancy will be the second President Roosevelt must fill to bring the court to its full strength of nine members, no appointment having been made yet of a successor to Associate Justice James C. McReynolds, who retired on February 1.

Immediate and most general speculation last night was that Attorney General Robert C. Jackson would be named to succeed Mr. Hughes as Chief Justice. Earlier there had been widespread understanding that Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, was to be named Associate Justice to succeed McReynolds when his Capitol Hill duties as an Administration liaison man would permit his leaving the Senate.

With these two forthcoming appointments, President Roosevelt will have named seven of the nine members of the Supreme tribunal, only Associate Justices Harlan Fiske Stone and Owen J. Roberts having been appointed before Mr. Roosevelt's Administration began. They were named, respectively, by President Coolidge and President Hoover.

Text of Letter

Following is the text of Justice Hughes' letter to Mr. Roosevelt, dated June 2:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"Considerations of health and age make it necessary that I should be relieved of the duties which I have been discharging with increasing difficulty. For that reason I avail myself of the right and privilege granted by the Act of March 1, 1937, U. S. Code, section 375a, and retire from regular active service on the bench, as Chief Justice of the United

Not a Drop to Drink

Children Needing 1-Cent Milk Prove Easy Enough to Find

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

A problem which at first seemed insuperable to District school officials now appears less formidable.

It is: To round up so many needy, undernourishtd children, children who drink no milk in school, as to justify the launching of a cent-a-bottle project. A large increase in consumption is the first prerequisite to such a program, under terms of the sponsoring Surplus Marketing Administration.

At present free lunches are being served approximately 8,800 boys and girls in 78 elementary public school buildings. The lunch includes a half-pint bottle of milk for which the District pays slightly more than 3 cents out of its relief allotment.

It is up to the several principals to say which children are qualified, by virtue of their parents' lean pocketbooks, to get meal tickets. There is no yardstick which is the same for all schools.

There are, in the District, 136 elementary public school buildings. Deducting 78, that leaves 58 where the free lunch program is not operated, ostensibly because the children do not fall in the needy category.

The startling fact is that not a single one of the 78 schools is covered 100 per cent by the lunch project. Even in the poorest, most run-down neighborhoods, some children are excluded from the noontime school meals.

In the cities where cent-a-bottle milk has been instituted, New York for example, whole schools are blanketed into the scheme. The mistake of discriminating between youngsters in the same school is carefully avoided.

The program is operating successfully in more than 400 New York public schools—in toto. Contrast that with the backward system prevailing in Washington, in which pupil selection obtains in schools situated in impoverished colored sections and low-income white neighborhoods.

As few as 15 children are receiving free lunches in some of these schools. In others the figure is in excess of 300. In all 78 the cumbersome, embarrassing job exists of deciding which boys and girls shall be fed and which not.

To drop this piecemeal system and place whole schools—only those in low-income neighborhoods,

Girl Identifies Eklund in Court As Slayer of Her Boy Friend

Last fall, colored people in Washington were afraid to go out at night alone because a killer was hunting them down.

One after another, at least three fell before swift, savage pistol fire from behind.

John Eugene Eklund, a 26-year-old college student with a prison record, sat stiff and silent in the District Court all yesterday while two prosecutors addressed themselves to the business of sending him to the electric chair as the killer.

Eklund's dull, steady eyes were the only things about him that moved while Assistant District Attorney Charles B. Murray outlined his evidence to the jury of 12 men. Murray promised to show that Eklund killed the most recent of the sniper's victims, a 17-year-old colored youth named Hyland McClaine, whom Eklund did not know and with whom he had no quarrel. That was the night of October 14.

"Something made him kill!" said Murry." There are witnesses who say that he entertained a deep and bitter hatred of colored people." Saying no more about Eklund's motive, the prosecutors called witnesses to tell how McClaine died.

The youth's girl friend, Mildred Virginia Washington, 18, said she had been to a dance with his sister.

Salaries Staggered

U. S. to Pay 75,000 Employes On 8th and 23d After June 30

Payday for 75,000 Federal workers will come on the eighth and twenty-third days of the month after June 30 as Uncle Sam starts the 1942 fiscal year with a system of staggered paydays, it was learned last night.

One-half of approximately 150,000 Federal workers in Washington, an authoritative Treasury source said, will continue to receive salary checks on the fifteenth and last days of the month while the balance will receive checks on the new paydays.

Staggered paydays, long advocated by Washington businessmen, urged by workers, and studied by the Treasury, are now expected to become a settled policy, it was reported.

The plan is to be submitted to President Roosevelt for his approval "sometime this week," it was stated. After the program has been studied at the White House the list of "certain selected" defense agencies and established Government departments whose paydays will be changed, will be made public, it was reported.

Here is how staggered paydays are to be started:

On July 8, 75,000 workers will receive salary checks for the first week in the month.

On July 23, the same group of workers is to be paid for the second and third weeks in the conduct a series of investigations of gas rates, insurance and coal.

Hughes Served In a Period Of Transition

The fame growing out of these inquiries swept him to the Governorship in 1907. He held that office for two strenuous terms. Then President Taft named him Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and Hughes retired—he thought forever—from active politics.

Defeated by Wilson

On the eve of America's entrance into the World War, however, the Republican Party persuaded him to oppose Wilson in a stormy Presidential campaign. By a narrow margin he was defeated and returned quietly to the practice of law.

Four years later President Harding selected him to head the first postwar Cabinet. As Secretary of State, Hughes piloted the Washington Naval Conference, rebuilt America's foreign service and wrestled with war debts and reparations. Then at the end of Harding's first term he left the Cabinet to attend to his neglected personal affairs.

Illness forced Chief Justice Taft to resign February 3, 1930, and on the same day President Hoover asked Hughes to fill the vacancy. He accepted and presided over the high court during one of the most turbulent periods of its history.

The tribunal became the center of flaming controversy resulting from its decisions on Roosevelt Administration legislation and the President's proposal to appoint new justices for elderly members who did not retire.

Statutes Thrown Out

The tribunal had delivered a series of decisions declaring unconstitutional Roosevelt Administration legislation. Statutes toppled over included the National Industrial Recovery Act and the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Cries of denunciation came from New Dealers, including President Roosevelt himself. It was contended that a "conservative" court was wrecking the Administration's program.

Then the tide turned in favor of the Administration, even before the proposal by President Roosevelt on February 5, 1937, to inject "new blood" into the tribunal by adding a new justice for each member who did not retire upon becoming 70 years and 6 months old.

Soon the tribunal upheld the constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act and the Administration's Social Security Law. Thereafter most of the decisions involving the Administration were in its favor.

Majority Named by Roosevelt

Justices also began to retire and by January 4, 1940, President Roosevelt had appointed five new members—a majority.

The Chief Justice was widely credited with playing a prominent role in defeating the court reorganization plan. His public activity, however, consisted only of writing a letter telling the Senate Judiciary Committee that:

"An increase in the number of justices of the Supreme Court, apart from any question of policy, which I do not discuss, would not promote the efficiency of the court."

Hughes was not absent from his duties a single day on account of illness until March 6, 1939. It was announced then that he was suffering from the grippe. He returned to the bench on April 17.

Then on June 3 announcement was made that he was undergoing treatment for a duodenal ulcer. He was soon able to leave for his summer vacation and was reported to have recovered quickly. During the 1939-40 term he did not miss a day.

Owner of one of the most celebrated sets of whiskers in the world, Hughes for years has attracted the immediate attention of tourists who flock to the courtroom.

They see him sitting in the center of the bench, frequently asking questions of attorneys to clear up a perplexing point or to keep the lawyers from straying away from the issues.

Practically all of his time has been devoted to the court work, except during summer vacations. He and Mrs. Hughes go out, with few exceptions, only on Saturday nights and their date book is filled months in advance. A famous Washington hostess once was reported to have invited them to a dinner a year ahead of time.

Takes His Constitutional

He obtains his exercise by a before-breakfast walk when the weather permits.

Ignoring birthdays as much as possible, the Chief Justice once told a newsman:

"I'm going along without reference to the calendar."

Some of the best-known opinions written by the Chief Justice:

Declared unconstitutional the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Upheld the National Labor Relations Act, as applied to three manufacturing companies.

Sustained the Administration's effort to bar payment of obligations in gold.

Held constitutional a Washington State law fixing minimum wages for women. This reversed previous decisions.

ereignty of his State.

Counsel for Gov. Phillips conceded that the reservoir, if constructed strictly for flood control purposes, would be constitutional, but they argued that an "entirely unrelated" power development made the whole project invalid.

Justice Douglas wrote that the Denison Reservoir was planned basically for flood control purposes and that "the fact that ends other than flood control will also be served . . . does not invalidate "the exercise of the authority conferred on Congress."

The Denison Reservoir decision was the most important of four handed down by the court yesterday, as it concluded its 1940-41 term and began a four-month recess.

Ruling on Market Space

In another decision yesterday the court held that the Elkins Act, banning rebates on rail freight rates, prohibited the offering of free rent and other concessions to dealers to induce them to take space in a new produce market in Kansas City, Kans.

Justice Reed delivered the 4-3 majority opinion, with Justices Roberts, Black and Douglas dissenting.

Two cases involving contempt of court convictions of the Los Angeles Times and of Harry Bridges, West Coast maritime labor leader, were ordered to be reargued before the court October 13. Both cases involve publication of comment on cases prior to court settlement.

Justice Hughes' Philosophy As He Wrote and Spoke It

The philosophy of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes is expressed in a number of oft-quoted passages from his opinions and speeches. Here are some examples:

"I have the highest regard for the courts. My whole life has been spent in work conditioned upon respect for the courts. I reckon him one of the worst enemies of the community who will talk lightly of the dignity of the bench. We are under a Constitution, but the Constitution is what the judges say it is, and the judiciary is the safeguard of our liberty and of our property under the Constitution."—In a speech to the Elmira Chamber of Commerce while Governor of New York.

"I like to think of the courts as in the truest sense the expert agents of democracy, expressing deliberate judgment under conditions essential to stability, and therefore in their proper action the necessary instrumentalities of progress."—In a speech to the New York State Bar Association while an Associate Justice.

"Under present conditions of living, and in view of the increased facility of maintaining health and vigor, the age of 70 may well be thought too early for compulsory retirement (of judges). Such retirement is too often the community's loss. A compulsory retirement at 75 could more easily be defended." In a lecture at Columbia University while he was 65.

"What can be closer to the public interest than the health of women and their protection from unscrupulous and overreaching employers? And if the protection of women is a legitimate end of the exercise of State power, how can it be said that the requirement of the payment of a minimum wage fairly fixed in order to meet the very necessities of existence is not an admissible means to that end?"—In his opinion holding constitutional the Washington law fixing minimum wages for women.

"When industries organize themselves on a national scale, making their relation to interstate commerce the dominant factor in their activities, how can it be maintained that their industrial labor relations constitute a forbidden field into which Congress may not enter when it is necessary to protect interstate commerce from the paralyzing consequences of industrial war?"—In his opinion holding the Wagner Labor Relations Act constitutional as applied to the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

"The greater the importance of safeguarding the community from incitements to the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence, the more imperative is the need to preserve inviolate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free assembly in order to maintain the opportunity for free political discussion, to the end that government may be responsive to the will of the people and that changes, if desired, may be obtained by peaceful means. Therein lies the security of the republic, the very foundation of constitutional government."—In his opinion setting aside the conviction of Dirk de Jonge for assisting in holding a public meeting in Oregon under the auspices of the Communist Party.

"The Congress manifestly is not permitted to abdicate, or to transfer to others, the essential legislative functions with which it is vested."—In his opinion holding unconstitutional the Roosevelt Administration's attempt to regulate the interstate shipment of "hot oil"—that produced in excess of State quotas.

*"Contracts, however express, cannot fetter the constitutional authority of the Congress. Contracts may create rights of property, but when contracts deal with a subject matter which lies within the control of Congress, they have a congenital infirmity. # Vessel Bearing Nazis Was Halted By Dutch Warship

London, June 2 (AP).—The Netherlands royal navy formally announced today that a Netherlands warship the Vankinsbergen, intercepted the French passenger ship Winnipeg in West Indian waters last Tuesday morning and that "when intercepted, she had on board over 200 Germans bound for Martinique."

[The French embassy in Washington has said that the Germans on the Winnipeg were en route to South America and that the stop at Martinique had been scheduled as transitory.

[From Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, where the vessel was taken, it was reported that 210 Germans, 76 Austrians and 70 unclassified persons have been interned pending investigation.]

Hughes to Quit July 1; Jackson May Get Seat

States, this retirement to be effective on and after July 1, 1941.

"I have the honor to remain,

"Respectfully yours,

"CHARLES EVANS HUGHES."

This was Mr. Roosevelt's telegram of reply:

"My Dear Mr. Chief Justice:

"I am deeply distressed by your letter of June 2 telling me of your retirement on July first from active service as Chief Justice of the United States. This comes to me, as I know it will to the whole Nation, as a great shock for all of us had counted on your continuing your splendid service for many years to come. My every inclination is to beg you to remain; but my deep concern for your health and strength must be paramount. I shall hope to see you this coming week in Washington.

"Sincerely and affectionately yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Other changes in the court personnel since Mr. Roosevelt took office, in addition to the Hughes and McReynolds retirements were:

Willis Van Devanter retired June 2, 1937, and was succeeded by Hugo L. Black.

George Sutherland retired January 18, 1938; succeeded by Stanley F. Reed.

Benjamin N. Cardozo died July 9, 1938; succeeded by Felix Frankfurter.

Louis D. Brandeis retired February 13, 1939; succeeded by William O. Douglas.

Pierce Butler died November 16, 1939; succeeded by Frank Murphy.

Thus Mr. Roosevelt, who complained during the court reorganization fight of 1937 that he had not had an opportunity to name a single member of the Supreme Court, will have set a new high record since Washington's time, with the appointment of his seventh justice.

The law under which Chief Justice Hughes will retire was enacted in 1937 during the fight over the President's proposal to enlarge the court. It permits a justice who is over 70 and has served for 10 years or more to retire with full pay for life. The Chief Justice's salary is $20,500 a year, while the other justices receive $20,000.

Mr. Hughes has the distinction of having twice served on the Supreme Court. First appointed in 1910 by President Taft, he was an Associate Justice until 1916, when he resigned to accept the Republican Presidential nomination. Inthat extremely close contest, decided only by California's late count on the day after the balloting, he lost to Woodrow Wilson, seeking reelection.

Earlier, Mr. Hughes had won national prominence as counsel for the New York legislative committee investigating insurance practices.

In 1906 he was elected Governor of New York State, and two years later was reappointed.

Following his defeat for the Presidency he returned to the practice of law but in 1921 was appointed Secretary of State by President Harding. He assembled the world disarming that cabinet position, but rearmament conference while holdsigned in 1925.

In 1928 he was appointed a justice of the Permanent Court for International Justice at the Hague.

In 1930 he was chosen Chief Justice by President Hoover. For 11 years Supreme Court sessions have been marked by his delightful dry humor and the sharp intellect which, by cutting through a maze of arguments, has often saved a floundering attorney presenting a case.

The Hughes retirement served last night to revive rumors of other changes in the court which Mr. Roosevelt had been represented as considering. One was that the President would offer the Chief Justiceship to Secretary of State Hull. Another was that he was endeavoring to persuade Associate Justice Murphyy, who has been said to desire a more active life than his present one on the court, to return to the Philippines as High Commissioner, in view of the growing importance of that outpost to national defense. Murphy was Governor General of the islands before his service at attorney general, from which position he was appointed to the court.

Children Needing 5-Cent Milk Prove Easy to Find

of course—on the free lunch list would bring about a sizable increase in milk consumption.

True, there are such factors to be considered as whether the District WPA, which staffs the central kitchen where the lunches are made up, can furnish the additional help that would be needed, and whether the increased quantities of such surplus foods as vegetables, eggs, fruit, etc., could be provided by the Surplus Marketing Administration.

Perhaps economic limitations would demand that, without curtailing the number of free lunches now being served, some schools be placed on milk alone. In any case, local school authorities are discovering, on reexamining the situation, that greater opportunities for boosting milk-drinking exists than they suspected when The Post inaugurated on May 21 its drive to bring the nutritious fluid within reach of every needy child, woman and man.

The stake—milk for which the District would pay only 1 cent per half-pint bottle, thus permitting more than three times as many children to be served as at present—is proving a healthy incentive.

When the Board of Education meets tomorrow afternoon, to consider for the first time the possibility of a 1-cent milk program, it can go far toward achieving this desirable goal by showing the Surplus Marketing Administration it has the goods and means business.

British Gird as Foe Lands in Syria

Syria shut herself off from communication with Egypt suddenly and without explanation tonight.

A broadcast on the Berlin radio wave length said the French high commissioner of Syria proclaimed a state of seige for the eastern Syrian region bordering Iraq and clamped down new border restrictions.

Gen. Maxine Weygand, commander of French forces in North Africa, arrived at Vichy and conferred immediately with Chief of State Marshal Petain.

It appeared likely that his unheralded trip to the French provisional capital was connected with the Syrian proclamation, a possible precaution against a British "get-there-first" maneuver against the Axis.

The belief that Syria presents the greatest immediate menace was enhanced by statements here of uncertainty about the situation in the vital northern Iraq oil fields.

Despite the armistice ending the month-old conflict in Iraq and the flight of Premier Rashid Ali Gailani, the main pipeline from Mosul to Haifa remains shut off and some Germans are believed to be still in the Kirkuk area, 100 miles to the southeast.

R. A. F. Bombs Syrian Airport Used by Nazis

Cairo, June 2 (AP).—Syrian airports used by the Germans as way stops en route to aid the now-squelched Iraqi rebels again were the targets of the R. A. F., the Middle East air command announced today.

While other R. A. F. units covered the British retreat from Crete, its bombers yesterday destroyed one Axis plane and damaged several others at Allepo airdrome.

Germans circulated reports that the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, long a thorn in Britain's side, had arrived at the rich Mosul oil fields of northern Iraq to reorganize Iraq resistance to the British.

The bearded and turbaned Mohammedan priest—his full name is Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini—attempted without success to fan a Moslem uprising against the British during the month-long Iraq struggle.

The Middle East command announced renewed fighting was under way along the Egyptian-Libyan border and at Axis-encircled Tobruk, 80 miles west of the frontier.

The R. A. F. was on the wing again in that area Saturday night, reporting a heavy attack upon the Libyan port of Bengasi.

After the major withdrawal of some 15,000 Imperial troops from Crete the R. A. F. has been sending bombers over the island to parachute down medical supplies and food to isolated forces

$181,145,000 To Train Youth Wins Approval

By the Associated Press

Emphasizing that the agencies would train thousands of youths for national defense jobs, the House Appropriations Committee approved yesterday a $1,191,776,000 appropriation for the Labor Department, the Federal Security Agency and related organizations in the 1942 fiscal year.

The committee said in a report that 181,145,000 of the total could be charged to national defense and would finance the training of more than 4,000,000 youths.

One group of young people will receive apprentice education with a $300,000 fund allocated to the Bureau of Labor Standards, another will be given vocational training with a $116,122,000 appropriation for the Office of Education and a third will receive "work experience training" with a special $60,000,000 National Youth Administration fund.

In addition, the big bill, one of the largest of the regular departmental supply measures, carried $96,500 for the Bureau of Labor Statistics to finance a survey of post-emergency employment problems. As House debate began, Representative Tarver (Democrat), of Georgia, said that this subject should be given attention now "rather than wait until the conclusion of the present emergency."

The committee approved these major agency activities:

Civilian Conservation Corps, $246,960,000; Office of Education, $127,796,800; National Youth Administration, $151,767,000; grants to States for old-age assistance, unemployment compensation, aid to dependent children and the like, $414,600,000.

The total was $35,848,778 higher than the corresponding appropriations for the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, but was $31,069,022 less than the Budget Bureau recommended. The committee cut the CCC recommendation $23,040,000 because, members said, private employment had decreased the possibilities of recruiting the usual 300,000 enrollees annually.

Included in the measure were increased funds for the Labor Department's conciliation service and other money for the National Labor Relations Board, the Wage-Hour Administration, the Railroad Retirement Board and the Employes' Compensation Commission.

Father Displeased By Gene Tierney's Marriage to Count

By International News Service

New York, June 2.—Howard S. Tierney today declared that he was not thrilled to learn that his 19-year actress—debutante daughter Gene had become the bride of Count Oleg Cassini, 28, of Washington, D. C. A dress designer, after a surprise elopement to Las Vegas, Nev., last night.

"It's unfortunate she's gone Hollywood," he said.

Tierney, a New York insurance broker, made no effort to conceal the fact that he was upset and displeased—title in the family or no.

"All I'm interested in is my daughter's happiness," Terney said. "I never intended to pick her husband. I alway intended to let her do that herself. She's always been a level-headed girl. I wish she'd stuck to her own standards instead of getting married in that abrupt fashion.

Engineer Regiment To Be Formed At Fort Belvoir

Fort Belvoir, Va., June 2.—Plans to organize a new Army unit, the Forty-fourth Engineer Regiment (general service) here before June 20 were announced here today. The new regiment will be composed of 1,000 new selectees, mostly from New York, and will be trained here as a unit.

General service engineer regiments are trained and equipped to build heavy roads, construct barracks and perform other similar work in rear areas. Lieut. Col. Richard L. Smith was ordered here from the Fifth Corps Area at Columbus, Ohio, to command the new regiment.

A second new organization, the 410th Engineer Park Battalion, was organized here today. I twas made up of shop, maintenance and other service companies already on this station.

Engel Attacks 'Cost-Plus-Fee' Defense Orders

Charges that the "cost plus fixed fee' method of letting contracts for Army cantonments has resulted in waste of $250,000,000 were laid before the House yesterday by Representative Engel (Republican), of Michigan.

Engel, giving the House the seventh of his reports on Army camp construction costs, stated that at Camp Dix, N. J., where contracts were let by competitive bidding, the cost of a 63-man barracks was $9,822, while at Camps Devens, Edwards and Meade, built on the "cost plus" basis, the bill ranged from $15,000 to $17,364.

The Michigan Representative demanded that no further Army cantonment contracts be awarded on the "cost plus" basis, adding that "whatis true of Army cantonment construction is undoubtedly true of other Army construction."

"Serious Shortage of Arms"

"The contractor who pays his overtime out of his lump sum bid is not apt to have much overtime," Engel said. "He is not going to be as easily persuaded that wage rates ought to be increased unreasonably."

Meanwhile, the House heard from Representative Thomas (Republican), of New Jersey, a member of the Military Affairs and the Dies Committees, that 'a serious shortage of arms and ammunition" and "a complete lack of antiaircraft protection" prevails at four Army posts in the New York-New Jersey area.

Thomas said he found "a most deplorable state of affairs" in the ordnance depot and magazines at Camp Dix, N. J., with "hardly enough small arms ammunition on hand for ordinary guard duty."

Favors Army Guard

At Fort Monmouth, N. J., where Corps Laboratory could delay the defense program by at least seven months, Thomas reported that 30 civilian guards are on duty outside the plant. "An entire well-equipped regiment of infantry" should be detailed to protection of the laboratory, he said.

Thomas said he had evidence that Communist and Nazi sympathizers had found their way into positions at Forts Monmouth, Hancock and Tilden, and that he would make a more detailed report to the Dies Committee and Army intelligence division.

Iron Ore Ships Carried Record Cargo in May

Defense officials yesterday concerned themselves with price and delivery problems arising from growing military demands for oil and cork, and, on the brighter side, reported successful efforts in combatting a threatened bottleneck in the transportation of iron ore.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson called a conference for Saturday in San Francisco on recent advances in crude oil prices in California, considered "out of line" with prices in the rest of the country. Henderson said prices of crude oil have risen in California from 17 to 22 cents a barrel since April 24, with corresponding increases of about 1 cent per gallon for gasoline. He said his office "contemplates affirmative action" in the situation.

Priorities Director E. R. Stettinius, jr., followed telegraphic requests last week for cork manufactures to cut production in half, with a general preference order putting cork under industry-wide control and guaranteeing first call on the increasingly scarce import for defense purposes.

Ralph Budd, emergency transportation commissioner, announced that during May more than 11,000,000 tons of iron ore was carried by the Great Lakes cargo fleet, constituting the greatest monthly movement of ore inhistory. Special efforts were made, it was understood, to prevent an ore shortage which was forecast three months ago by Gano Dunn, OPM engineer, in a special report on steel capacity to President Roosevelt.

37 Senators Reported Backing Resolution to Feed Europeans

By the Associated Press

Raymond S. Richmond, secretary of the National Committee on Food for the small democracies, said yesterday that 37 Senators would introduce a resolution urging the State Department to work out a plan, in cooperation with Great Britain, for sending food to conquered European countries.

The resolution said that "starvation already has begun in Belgium," and that numerous other European countries are "facing increasingly serious food shortages."

Former President Hoover is honorary chairman of the committee which Richmond represents.

Those listed by Richmond as signers of the resolution were:

Democrats—Andrews of Florida, Bankhead of Alabama, Bilbo of Mississippi, Brown of Michigan, Bulow of South Dakota, Chavez of New Mexico, Clark of Idaho, Gillette of Iowa, Johnson of Colorado, McCarran of Nevada, Maloney of Connecticut, Reynolds of North Carolina, Smith of South Carolina, Thomas of Oklahoma, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Wheeler of Montana.

Republicans—Aiken, of Vermont; Ball, of Minnesota Barbour, of New Jersey Brewster, of Maine Brooks, of Illinois Burton, of Ohio Butler, of Nebraska; Caper, of Kansas; Danaher, of Connecticut; Davis, of Pennsylvania; Holman, of Oregon Nye, of North Dakota Reed, of Kansas Shipstead, of Minnesota; Taft, of Ohio; Thomas, of Idaho; Tobey, of New Hampshire; Vandenberg, of Michigan; Wiley, of Wisconsin, and Willis, of Indiana.

Progressive—La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Several farm organizations have given active support to the resolution, it was reported, and have been urging farm State Senators to sign it.

Administration spokesmen indicated the State Department would oppose the resolution on the ground that it would be difficult to work out any large scale program for feeding Europe which would not accrue to Germany's military advantage.

It was said, too, that Senate approval of the plan might in itself embarrass Britain's effort to maintain an effective blockade against Germany.

One of the leaders in the drive for the resolution, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, predicted that a majority of the Senate would sponsor the resolution before it comes to a vote.

Tide of War Will Turn, Hopkins Says

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—Harry Hopkins, in charge of the lend-lease program and confidante of President Roosevelt, believes Hitler will not win the war because:

(1) He lacks sea power.

(2) His air streigth is slowly waning.

(3) He cannot match economic resources being hurled against him by Great Britain and the United States.

(4) American interest is such that he will not be allowed to "consolidate his ill-gotten gains."

Writing in the July issue of the American Magazine, Hopkins, who went to London as the President's personal observer, acknowledged the widespread and thorough efficiency of the Nazi war machine, and added:

"The Germans are past masters of supplying 'facts' and 'figures' to their visitors. But most of these facts and figures need a good deal of scrutiny.

British Planes Better

"Today the British have achieved superiority over the Germans in fighters, certainly in quality, and probably also in quantity. This superiority reduces the value of the temporary German superiority in bombers. These they cannot use with any great accuracy in areas where the British have adequately prepared and protected air fields The British can protect their factories and other vital areas from effective day bombing. To hear the defeatists write and talk, you would think no fighting planes were available anywhere to withstand the onslaught of the Hitler air forces. This is directly contrary to the facts."

He wrote that Germany had a superior bombing strength, but the British were slowly catching up, "and with our help another year will find the democracies on fairly equal terms with Germany. After that will come he inevitable superiority."

"Then Hitler will not be able to move his factories far enough to escape the giant bombers now being built in the great air factories of America," he declared.

Lauds Morale

Lauding the morale of the British in the face of wholesale civilian deaths by German raids, Hopkins wrote that determination of English-speaking peoples would be the first asset to bring the war into favor of the democracies.

"The defeatists maintain that, by submarine and raider and aircraft, the Germans can sink more ships than the democracies can build. This I deny in spite of the fact that they are doing so badly today. The next eight months are the crucial months in the protection of the life line from the United States to Britain."

Writing that this country would build more than 4,000,000 tons of ships a year, and that this figure could be substantially increased, Hopkins went on:

"This, added to the British capacity, means that Germany would have to sink at least an average of 500,000 tons of shipping a month in order to prevent an increase in the total number of ships arriving in England each month.

"Our own naval patrol will keep under observation raiders and submarines which mean no good to the peace of America. We will search them out; we will find them."

Hopkins stated that the democracies were strongly favored by higher American output of steel, copper, tin, rubber and petroleum products than that of Germany.

Girl Identifies Eklund as Slayer of Boy Friend

She went home with the sister and asked McClaine to walk with her to her own home. "It was dark and there had just been some killing down there," she explained.

So the two walked on Rock Creek Parkway. Near a temporary bridge at K Street Northwest, she heard a man close behind them. He stepped into the bushes, then came out and ran toward them, holding an exploding pistol in both his hands. McClaine fell, with a bullet in his head and another in his body. She ran, but she saw the sniper first, she said.

"And do you see that man in this court?" asked Assistant District Attorney John W. Fihelly.

"Yes, I do."

Puts Hand On His Shoulder

Then the girl walked slowly away from the witness stand and around the counsel table. Fixed on her were the eyes of the 12 jurors, the several score spectators, many of them colored. All eyes but Eklund's. He kept his level stare at the witness box she had left until she placed her hand firmly on his shoulder.

"This is him."

Eklund merely looked startled as he swung his head toward her.

Defense Counsel James R. Kirkland cross-examined her nearly an hour. She was mistaken, she said, in her testimony at the inquest, about how far away the sniper was when she saw him. Yes, it was a dark night, and the scene was not too well illuminated. But she remained sure of one thing, that it was light enough for her to see Eklund and that she did see him, standing over McClaine's body and shooting at her.

From the body, Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, said he took two bullets. He identified them and their little glass bottles were labeled.

Second Strand of Evidence

Today or tomorrow, the Government will seek to show that they match two other bullets, which were taken out of a tree across the Highway Bridge. By the word of two witnesses that they saw Eklund fire a pistol into this tree, the Government will seek to link him to the crime with a second strand of evidence.

What Attorney Kirkland and his associate, Leonard P. Walsh, will advance in defense remains to be heard. When the time came for their opening statement, they asserted their right to reserve their case.

Eklund was led back to the District Jail last night. His jurors were taken away under surveillance almost as close, to sleep at the Continental Hotel. Justice James M. Proctor explained to them that he thinks it best to keep them from all contact with the outside world until their verdict has been returned.

The jurors are Russell G. Wolfgram, 35, Peoples Drug Store employe, 3119 Twelfth Street Northeast; Donald H. Mead, 32, Washington Gas Light Co. employe, 2807 Fifth Street Northeast; Jesse H. Plowman, 40, department store clerk, 336 O Street Southeast; Malcolm S. Beaton, 36, postal clerk, 2937 Nash Place Southeast; Walter H. ## House Receives St. Lawrence Power Measure

Legislation authorizing development of te power and navigation resources of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes basin was introduced in the House yesterday by Chairman Mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, of the Rivers and Harbors Committee. Hearings are to start June 16.

Enactment of the bill would constitute Congressional approval of the agreement negotiated between the United States and Canada for development of the big power and navigation project.

"The works allocated for construction by the United States under said agreement shall be undertaken immediately under the direction of the Secretary of War and the supervision of the chief of engineers," the measure specified.

Under the legislation, the President would be authorized to negotiate with the New York State Power Authority for transfer of power facilities in the International Rapids section of th eSt. Lawrence on the northern New York border.

Draft Labor, Asks Bishop Leonard

Westminster, Md., June 2 (AP).—Conscription of labor to prevent strikes on defense projects was urged today by Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, who declared: "It is as unpatriotic for a man to refuse to work as it is for a young man to refuse to go into the service of his country."

"If we are going to conscript our boys into the Army, I would conscript labor so that they may not strike during our defense work," the bishop of the Washington area of the Methodist church told 184 graduates of Western Maryland College at commencement exercises.

A Consolidated Aircraft Co. spokesman said there was "evidence of sabotage" in the crash

Bluefield Man Dies In W. Va. Plane Crash

Beckley, W. Va., June 2 (AP).—Rinard Thornton, 20, of Bluefield, was killed today when a small training plane crashed at the Beckley Airport.

Thornton took off shortly after noon in one of the planes owned at theairport. Witnesses said the ship climbed about 100 feet, turned suddenly to the left and dived into the ground.

Tell Post All About Dad Before June 10 And Give Him a Chance to Achieve Glory

What do ou think of your dad?

All right, put it on paper, address an envelope to the Father's Day Editor, in care of The Washington Post, and sit back to wait for a telephone call about one week hence announcing that your candidate has been chosen as Washington's ideal father.

It may come out that way, you know. Someone's father will be selected. It may as well be yours. But we have to learn about him first—his name and address and just why you think he's A-1.

Father's Day comes on June 15. Present plans call for the contest winner to be announced on June 13. All entries should be postmarked no later than midnight June 10.

Th evictor's children—or child—maye be grown or youngsters. He may be young, middle-aged or elderly. Whether he is an industrial tycoon, a Government clerk or a school teacher—his occupation makes no difference.

He may be nominated by a son, a daughter, a wife, a friend or even by his own father. Tell it in ten words or tell it in a thousand, but tell us why you think the one of your choice is Washington's typical dad.

Don't wait until the last minute to file your nomination. If you have a snapshot of your candidate, send it along with the letter, inclosing postage for its return.

But do it now! Don't let June 10 deadline sneak up on you nad find undone your job of telling the town what a fine father you have.

First Troops To Enter Va. 'Battlefield'

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 2.—The Caroline County training area, designated the "A. P. Hill Military Reservation" by the War Department, will become a center of training activities Thursday and Friday.

Troops of the Forty-fourth Division, Fort Dix, N. J., will come in this week, followed by a succession of regiments from the Twenty-ninth Division of Fort Meade, Md.

A motor convoy from Fort Bragg, N. C., carrying men of the Fiftieth Combat team of the Ninth Division also is scheduled to arrive this week to engage in maneuvers with the Forty-fourth Division troops Thursday and Friday. About 700 motor vehicles will be in the convoy.

Escort of Planes

An airplane observation squadron will serve as an escort for the approximately 20,000 New Jersey troops.

Upon completion of these maneuvers, the 116th Infantry, composed of Virginia troops, will move in Sunday, accompanied by the First Battalion, 111th Field Artillery, of Norfolk.

The 115th Infantry from Maryland will be the next to move in to the new training area, and as the summer advances more and more troops will be using it constantly.

The whole of the Twenty-ninth Division will "fight" there in August.

In designating the Caroline area the A. P. Hill Military Reservation, headquarters of the Second Army Corps, Wilmington, Del., said there was a possibility that the War Department would require acquisition of additional land to increase the acreage originally contemplated.

Virginian Found Dead in Cabin

Woodstock, Va., June 2.—Cecil Good, 35, was found dead today in a tourist cabin near here, apparently from an overdose of sleeping tablets, police said. Good, who formerly lived here, had been working in the vicinity of Washington and an identification card gave his address as 1041 Fillmore Street, Arlington.

The victim, who had been dead about eight hours, rented a cabin Sunday afternoon, the proprietor of the tourist camp said.

Bay Search Halted For Missing Sergeant

Langley Field, Va., June 2 (AP).—Officials have abandoned the search for Staff Sergt. Ellsworth Smith, missing since Thursday afternoon when a small boat he occupied with Technical Sergt. Robert S. Sutton capsized in Chesapeake Bay off Buckroe Beach during a squall.

Smith and Sutton, attached to the Second Bombardment Squadron, rented a boat Thursday afternoon and were tossed overboard when the storm struck about 7 o'clock. Sutton, clinging to a submarine net pole, was rescued by an L-boat from Fort Monroe.

American Pilot Guns 2 Planes On Nazi Field

By International News Service

London, June 2.—Fighter planes of the Royal Air Force, one of them piloted by an American, today lashed at German airdromes in northern France, E-boats in the English Channel and motor transport along the coast in a series of daylight raids, the air ministry announced tonight.

Ranging far along the French coast, the R. A. F. fighters first cleared the skies of Luftwaffe planes and then turned their machine guns and aerial cannon on every possible target.

The American pilot was credited with shooting up two Messerschmitt 109 fighters on the ground in a single-handed attack on an airdrome. Other Nazi machines were destroyed or severely damaged in this manner, while three fighters were shot down in aerial combat.

An E-boat (motor torpedo boat) was shelled and left wallowing in the Channel. One pilot reported machine-gunning a military motor transport train and German ortops rushing for shelter.

A lone Nazi raider bombed a northeastern coastal town at dusk causing slight damage before being chased away by fighters.

Manchester, England, June 2 (AP).—The Luftwaffe broke days of relative calm over England with a smashing explosive and fire attack upon this Midlands factory city early today.

Rescuers struggling with wreckage through a pall of smoke hesitated to estimate the casualties. However, many homes, at least four shelters, a nurses' home, two hospitals, three churches, three hotels and two movie theaters were hit and observers expected the dead and wounded to reach large totals. Business property was considerably damaged.

The nurses' home was wrecked by a direct and many women were believed to have been buried. A physician crawled into the hospital wreckage with a miner's lamp and amputated the debris-pinned arm of a nurse. She died shortly after.

In one district a bomb killed a family of three on the street as they ran for shelter. A young curate on shelter duty outside his church and five air wardens on street patrols were among the casualties.

The attack, which lasted two hours, was the worst the city had seen in months. Several fires were started, but they were kept under control.

Volunteers Registering for Civilian Defense Can Choose Branch of Service

If you can sew on a button, wrap a bandage, bake a cake or drive a car, the District wants you for its volunteer civilian defense service.

And if you are skilled in other ways—a carpenter, electrician, bookkeeper or mechanic—the same applies.

On the registration days of June 10, 11 and 12, according to Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the volunteer service committee of the District Defense Council, persons offering services will be given an opportunity to select their choice of multiple activities.

They also will be asked to list qualifications and skills over and above type of service preferred.

"In other words," said Mrs. Bernton, "we want to know not only what volunteers want to do, but what they can do should the emergency arise."

Persons registering—and everyone over 16 has been urged to do so—need not necessarily apply for work in his or her particular field, but should be specific in detailing what they are able to do, Mrs. Bernton said.

On the days designated, registrants may apply at the public school nearest their community. A total of 48 schools will be used. Registration hours on the three days will be from 3:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

At first, Mrs. Bernton declared, volunteers will be divided into three branches of work—in hospitals, with various community agencies and under the seven committees of the Defense Council.

The service committee chairman said she was particularly anxious to find persons who are qualified to teach such things as automobile driving, first aid, typing and other activities which would fie into the civilian defense program.

Categories listed on registration cards will include office work, entertainment and recreation, homemaking, medical aid, motor corps, manual labor, cooking, public relations and social welfare.

Registrants also will be asked to list their hobbies and special interests so their abilities may be fitted into the general scheme.

Mrs. Bernton said she can use several hundred volunteers immediately and others will be called upon as the need arises. She expects some 35,000 men and women to register on the three days.

Treasury Relaxes Fiscal Policy

would force a vote immediately after Sullivan testifies and predicted they would win by a substantial margin unless President Roosevelt brings pressure on the Democratic majority.

In the first executive session held after hearings were closed the committee today heard Colin F. Stam, chief of the Congressional tax experts, condemn the Treasury excess profits proposal. Stam asserted that it would destroy many corporations and have a disastrous effect on business generally.

Stam insisted the present excess profits system, which allows corporations to pay either on an invested capital or average earnings basis, should be retained. He suggested that rates might be increased and exemptions lowered in order to bring in additional revenue for the defense program.

At present, corporations are allowed a 95 per cent credit on average earnings between 1936-40, before paying excess profits ranging from 25 to 50 per cent, and 6 per cent exemption on the basis of invested capital with the excess profits levies being imposed on profits over $500,000.

Mt. Rainier Asks Another Justice

The Mount Rainier, Md., town council last night voted to request Governor O'Conor to appoint an additional justice of the peace for the town "to cooperate further with the police department in the enforcement of municipal ordinances."

The town's only justice of the peace at present is Robert Joyce.

The council also voted to seek a share of the $800,000 fund which Prince Georges County plans to raise by a bond issue for improvements in the matropolitan area. The council decided to request sufficient funds to construct storm sewers on Valley Avenue, 37th Street and 33rd Street.

Mayor Floyd B. Mathias was unable to attend the meeting because of illness. Warren James, council president, presided i nthe mayor's absence.

Recreation Committee Hearings Postponed

Postponement of District Recreation subcommittee hearings scheduled for today was announced last night by Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, subcommittee chairman.

Officials of the Natoinal Capital Parks and the District Recreation Department will be heard sometime this week, Hunter said.

Indianhead Strike Is Ended

More than 500 striking A. F. L. construction workers will return to their jobs on the defense housing project at Indianhead, Md., at 8 a. m. today, ending a walkout which began two weeks ago this morning.

John Locher, secretary of the Washington Building and Construction Trades Council, said yesterday the executive board of the council decided the men should resume work "in view of the necessity of those houses and because of the national defense emergency."

The decision to return to work was reached yesterday after trades council officials met with representatives of general contractors on the Indianhead project.

Cause of the strike was a jurisdictional dispute between the A. F. L. and C. I. O. after 2 of 11 contractors on the job hired C. I. O. labor.

C. I. O. spokesmen said members of their organization have been continuing at their jobs and will stay with them until the project is completed.

John M. Carmody, Federal Works Agency administrator, said he was "happy" at the settlement. How soon the job will be completed officials could not determine last night.

If you bought a car that looked all through

And then found out it ran like new—

Mister, you'd have a buy!

And if you found, one happy day,

Great whiskey priced the modest way

You'd also have... A BUY!

So you've been looking for this break?

You'll get your wish if you'll just take—

Ft. Dix Troops To Meet Scrap South of Here

Men of the Forty-fourth Division, recalled from leave Saturday to start a motorized march from Fort Dix, N. J., through Washington, will run headlong into a blitzkrieg somewhere south of Fredericksburg, Va.

While the division, 18,000 former National Guardsmen and selectees from New Jersey and New York, prepared to board trucks tonight or tomorrow for the long hike southward, other troops were converging in the general direction of Bowling Green, Va.

Quietly and under secret orders, four troops of the Third Cavalry, with special weapons and field artillery, clattered away from Fort Myer early yesterday, strung out along the highway southward and plunged into the heavy woods of Fairfax County. Officers would not say where they were going or how long they would be gone, but the mounted troopers were followed by a long baggage train and selectees sent to fire at the Camp Sims range were forced to march back to Myer last night because the post was stripped of motor transport.

The Sixth Regiment combat team was ordered detached tomorrow from the triangular Ninth Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., to march by motor convoy to the 70,000-acre maneuver area near Bowling Green. The combat team includes the Sixtieth Infantry, Sixtieth Field Artillery Battalion, Thirty-fourth Field Artillery Battalion and half of the Ninth Reconnaisance Troop.

At Fort George G. Meade, Md., the Seventieth Tank Battalion, under orders to join the armored force in Second Army maneuvers in Middle Tennessee, had not left last night, although maneuvers began in Tennessee yesterday. Speculation here included the possibility the Seventieth might take its 50-odd tanks and 650 men into the Virginia fracas before moving to the Southwest.

Scene of Plane Crash Which Killed Two

Defense Mediation Board Appeal to Strikers And Bethlehem to Resume Building Ships

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday stepped into the confused, three-cornered labor dispute which has tied up $500,000,000 of naval shipbuilding in the San Francisco Bay area with an appeal to strikers and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation to resume work.

The request was made by wire a few minutes after the Secretary of Labor certified to it the strike of the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council against the Bethlehem Corporation's Union Iron Works Division. The controversy is one segment of a three-week-old strike of the A. F. of L. machinists' union, Local 68 (a member of the Metal Trades Council), affecting ten other shipbuilding plants in the area besides the Bethlehem yards.

Labor officials indicated that a board settlement of the Bethlehem strike, which is understood to center on the issue of a union shop, might pave the way for agreement to end the machinists' dispute, which so far has resisted all conciliation efforts of the Navy, OPM, local officials, the A. F. of L. metal trades department and William Green, A. F. of L. president.

Asked to Show Patriotism

The board's back-to-work appeal, contained in a telegram over the signature of William H. Davis, board vice chairman, quoted President Roosevelt's emergency proclamation a week ago calling on "all loyal citizens engaged in production for defense to give precedence to the needs of the Nation."

Davis asked that both parties "show their patriotism" to insure immediate resumption of operations, "in the spirit of the President's proclamation and in the interest of national defense."

Meantime, on other labor fronts yesterday:

About 4,500 San Francisco warehouse workers, one-sixth of them women, struck for higher wages in 190 establsihments. The strikers, members of the C. I. O. International Longshoremens and Warehousemen's Union, are seeking increases of 10 cents an hour and have rejected an employers' offer of 5 cents an hour.

A three-week old strike at the main plant of the Detroit Steel Products Co., employing 800 men, spread to the company's spring plant, affecting 250 additional workers. A C. I. O. United Auto Workers union spokesman said the issues were bargaining rights and an election.

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown, Ohio, paid out $170,000 as full payment of back wage claims to 258 employes who engaged in the 1937 C. I. O. steel strike.

Strike Closes X-Ray Plant

In Cleveland, the Picker X-ray Corporation plant, said to be the only maker of portable X-ray units for the Army Medical Corps, was shut by a strike of a C. I. O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union local. About 200 employes failed to report for work. The union has been seeking higher wages, but a company spokesman said the deadlock was reached after the company rejected demands for a closed shop and the union refused to accept a "no strike" and arbitration clause.

The machinists' strike against the 11 San Francisco shipyards has been classed by Green and John P. Frey, head of the metal trades department, as an "outlaw strike." The Bethlehem dispute is supported by the Bay Cities Council.

Don't brush your false teeth or dental plates—you can't purify them that way—you can't even clean them properly that way.

Keep up with the times—get today a generous 30-cent bottle of Stera-Kleen—give your plate a bath as directed, and after the first bath your false teeth will start to sparkle with purity and cleanliness—will so glisten with beauty that you'll be proud of them. Your mouth will feel much better—rejuvenated.

Just a little of Stera-Kleen in a half glass of water and all slimy mucin stains and murkiness begin to go—it's amazing—lasts for weeks—30 cents—all drug stores.

It's simple to mix work and play while enjoying a vacation if you choose "New York's friendly hotel." Just for example, at The Lexington you can entertain your business associates as hospitably as though you were on a trip to Honolulu...in the famous Hawaiian Room, of course! So, this year take your annual holiday in New York City and bring your family. Rates for double rooms start at $5.

"I never dreamed the monthly payments on a Pontiac could be so small!"

A GENERAL MOTORS MASTERPIECE

WHEN AN OWNER of a lowest-priced car changes to Pontiac, the first good news he gets is the small size of his monthly payments. For, contrary to what some may think, Pontiac owners will tell you Pontiac is priced so close to the lowest-priced cars they hardly notice the difference in their monthly payments!

Yet this is only one way Pontiac saves you money. Owners will also tell you that Pontiac is so economical on gas, oil and upkeep that it is actually costing them no more—and sometimes less—to own and operate than their former lowest-priced cars!

And the best news of all is that you actually pay no more for a Pontiac. You simply invest a little more because, thanks to Pontiac's reputation for dependability and the great demand for it as a used car, those few extra dollars come back to you in higher value at trade-in time!

And in the meantime, you're enjoying the greater size, the more distinctive Body by Fisher beauty, the superior comfort, the finer performance and the remarkable economy of the fine car with the low price!

Why don't you investigate Pontiac? Your Pontiac dealer can prove to you, in five minutes, that, if you can afford any new car, you can afford a Pontiac "Torpedo"!

ONLY $65 MORE FOR AN EIGHT IN ANY MODEL

Winant Arrives to Talk to Chiefs

John G. Winant, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived here by plane from New York last night but refused to discuss his impending conferences with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

He said he probably would see Hull either later last night or early today, after which he will meet with the President. He added that he would have no statement until after the White House visit.

A State Department official said yesterday that Winant had returned to the United States only for a general exchange of views. He said the Ambassador had asked about 10 days ago that he be permitted to return here for consultation. As far as was known, he added, Winant had brought no special message from the British government.

Houston Sworn In as Junior Texas Senator

LEARNS THE RULES—Before taking his seat in the Senate yesterday, Andrew Jackson Houston, of Texas, went over the Senate Manual with Senator Connally (right), of Texas. Houston, who will celebrate his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary this month, is the son of Sam Houston

The 86-year-old son of Gen. Sam Houston was sworn in yesterday as junior Senator from Texas.

Escorted by Senator Connally, of Texas, Andrew Jackson Houston stepped into the well of the Senate chamber and took the oath from Vice President Wallace.

Senator Houston remained on the floor for about 15 minutes of his first Senate session, receiving the greetings of other members of the upper chamber, a dozen of the Lone Star State's delegation to the House and several Texan officials, including Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones.

Two of his daughters, the Misses Ariadne and Margarite Houston, watched from the gallery as he took the oath.

Senator Houston canceled a scheduled press conference, explaining that he was still "too tired" from the train journey from his home at La Porte, Tex. His physician, Dr. Delano Aves, of La Porte, said the general physical condition of the Senator was "excellent."

Before retiring to his hotel yesterday, Houston issued a statement expressing full support for the Administration's foreign policy and defense program. He condemned defense strikes and said he is backing Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel in the Texas Senatorial race.

Gov. ODaniel appointed Houston to serve until the special election, June 28, when a successor to the late Morris Sheppard will be chosen.

George Petteys, ICC Employe, Dies in His Office

George A. Petteys, 62, resident of the Washington area for 35 years, died yesterday in his office in the Bureau of Statistics, Interstate Commerce Commission.

A native of Locke, Mich., Mr. Petteys had been connected with the commission since 1904. Most recently he was a correspondence reviewer. He lived at 457 N. Nelson Street, Arlington.

He was active in the Washington Centennial Lodge of Masons. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen E. Petteys; and a son, Donald A. Petteys.

Services will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Hysong's funeral home. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Brazilian Receives Meyer Medal

Dr Edmunde Navarro de Andrade of Sao Paulo, Brazil, yesterday received the Meyer Medal for distinguished services in plant introduction presented by the Council of the American Genetic Association.

The presentation took place at the plant introduction station of the Department of Agriculture at Glenn Dale, Md., in Prince Georges County.

The Meyer Medal was established in 1919 in memory of Plant Explorer Frank N. Meyer of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Cash Customers Elect April Champions

Six Films, All Seen Here, Top Month's Output; Eddie Bracken Recovering From 'Old Age;' This, That and the Other About the Theater

SIX BOX-OFFICE CHAMPIONS for April were determined by the ticket purchases in the key cities of the United States, as reported in the May 31 issue of the Motion Picure Herald, the leading film trade journal of the country, which specializes in such things when it can find time and space . . . They were "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," "The Great Dictator," "The Lady Eve," "The Road to Zanzibar," "The Sea Wolf" and "That Night in Rio" . . . All have been seen in Washington, but not all of them proved to be champions on F and Thirteenth Streets . . . The biggest surprise to the local talent was that "The Lady Eve" was not embraced as one of the most eagerly sought of the season's comedies . . . National honors are fairly well scattered, with Paramount chalking up two of the champs and M-G-M, United Artists, Warner Brothers and Twentieth Century-Fox one each . . . It wasn't true what we said in a recent photo caption about Ann Miller's having receded from the high promise of "You Can't Take It With You" and "Too Many Girls" . . . On the strength of her outstanding work with Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Allen Jenkins, Richard Lane, the Three Stooges, the Six Hits and a Miss and Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Orchestra, Columbia has signed the nimble Miss Miller to a term contract calling for two pictures a year . . . Sorry—not about the contract, but our premature lament.

ooo

Paul Green's heroic drama of "The Lost Colony," an annual fixture at Manteo, N. C., will go into rehearsal early this month, with its opening date set for July 3, at the waterside amphitheater at Fort Raleigh. This is a bit of historical pageantry that attracts audience from all parts of the United States. Katherine Cale will play the role of Eleanor Dare, mother of the first white child born in America, for the fifth consecutive season.

Superannuated Star Stages Comeback

Old Man Eddie Bracken, now in his early 20's, is getting back into the celluloid scramble—and at the top . . . He was a Hollywood washout at the age of 10 . . . That makes sense because he was one of the "Our Gang" kid comics and at 10 one is an ancient Dodo in that outfit . . . Then along came George Abbott with "Brother Rat," "What a Life" and "Too Many Girls" . . . And now along comes Eddie with Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew in "Reaching for the Sun," opening Friday at the Earle . . . They say he's funnier than one of Arthur Donovan's decisions . . . Speaking of the Earle, the Golden Gate Quartet, now headlining the stage bill, sing like a million dollars—with apologies to the title of the screen feature—but would sound like two million without that constant tapping of the feet . . . Just a little corny, and we're not punning . . . This being their first theater engagement, as I understand it, they haven't learned how to get on and off yet, either . . . but that doesn't matter . . . All you have to do is close your eyes . . . That cool, showery weekend was no tonic to the outdoor amusements, but it certainly piled 'em into the downtown theaters . . . It's an ill wind, etc.

ooo

That silver-domed Demosthenes of the dancing daguerreotypes, Rufus Blair, is the convivial commuter who makes two or three whirls around the country a year and between times supplies the drama desks with Paramount art. His art isn't always so hot, but his letters of transmittal invariably are. For instance: "Deal Nelson: While hanging out the Monday wash and gassing away over the fence with my neighbor, Beulah McClusky, it suddenly occurred to me that I hadn't sent you a damn thing lately on Paramount's 'Shepherd of the Hills.' Well, sir, you can imagine the distraction caused by this sudden reflection. Honestly, I was like Peacock Alley in a high wind. Dropped two chiffon scarfs trimmed in colored sequins into a bucket of goosegrease I was saving for winter chest colds, and, clutching my blouse at the throat so as to keep it from flapping in the breeze, I ran shrieking with apprehension into the house, knocking over the rabbit hutch and scaring the hell out of three goats, to say nothing of brushing practically all the eggs off the eggplant. It was quite a shambles, really now, and caused no end of snide talk by the McClusky woman, who is no better than I always suspected since the day I found her nibbling on a sprig of sassafras dipped in sherry. But here they are." Quaint fellow.

Will Pause by the Roadside

"Women Aren't Angels," in which he was importantly cast, having closed, Norman Rose, one of the favorites of previous seasons, will return to the Roadside Theater for the summer . . . He has been cast in "Mountain Limited," the opener, scheduled for June 16 . . . On Tuesday, June 10, the Young People's Dramatic Club of St. Ann's Church will offer a program of three one-act plays, including "Write Me a Love Scene," "The Love Pirate" and "They're None of Them Perfect . . . Out at Glen Echo Park, Paul Kain, conductor of the Spanish Garden Ballroom Orchestra, is closing each nightly session with "The Star-Spangled Banner," Adele Van singing the lyrics . . . Pretty impressive after the jitterbugging.

Famous-Last-Words Note

How did it ever get that late!

So That's the Way They Dressed!

MARLENE DIETRICH

all stayed and ruffled up for the title role in "The Flame of New Orleans," next attraction on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater. Bruce Cabot, Roland Young, Andy Devine and Mischa Auer are the gentlemen, and otherwise, principally concerned in Miss Dietrich's adventures in the Crescent City

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 2 (DS).—When Joan Crawford went to New York it was her intention to remain there all summer.

But with her last movie, "A Woman's Face," packing them in, Joan's stock has suddenly gone sky high, so she returns to appear in a modern version of Rachel Crothers' play, "When Ladies Meet." Perhaps I should say suggested by "When Ladies Meet," for the story has been completely modernized. When I tell you that lovely Greer Garson will costar with Joan, you'll know this is going to be one of M-G-M's important pictures.

PARSONS

ooo

That young lady, May Robson, who celebrated her seventy-seventh birthday April 19, will shortly be handed a term contract by Warner Bros. Muzzy May is a sensation in "Million Dollar Baby." She hasn't had such a good role since she made "Lady With a Past" and was up for the Academy Award. Warners are crazy about her and just because "Arsenic and Old Lace" won't be made until next year and May can't be inactive, they are scurrying around to find another good role for her.

ooo

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: A check-up on an ailment of a few years ago was what took Mrs. James Roosevelt into the hospital for a ten-day stay. Mrs. R.'s sister, Phyllis Schneider, will wait until John H. Christ, her fiance, is out of the Army camp before she marries him; Lynn Bari is wearing a new square-cut diamond ring on her engagement finger. Yes, it's an engagement ring put there by her husband, Walter Kane, who waited until he could buy her a good one.

Linda Darnell has a new Buick coupe; Ann Gillis and Gene Reynolds, the cutest pair in town; Colin Tapley, having finished his training stint, is now an officer in the R. A. F.:

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

New York, June 2.

MAURY MAVERICK, the New Deal Congressman who became Mayor of San Antonio, Tex., brought to that city almost all the reforms which Fiorello LaGuardia had introduced to New York. Maverick worked hard and administered his job honestly and capably—but when he ran for re-election a few days ago he was defeated . . . Maverick took a long automobile drive with one of his friends during the night—who told him: "Well, Maury—you had your nerve—trying to introduce honest, rational government to a city like this" . . . Maverick remained silent, his eyes fixed upon the spring stars twinkling over Texas . . . Then he spoke: "People like democracy so much—except when they've got it."

JERRY CHODOROV and Joe Fields have been collaborating in their writings for many years. Their newest success is the Broadway hit, "My Sister Eileen," but long before the play was presented in New York the team of Chodorov & Fields had written dozens of scripts for for the movies, radio and the theater . . . At the recent conference between the Authors League and the Screenwriters Guild, Chodorov & Fields agreed to prepare and deliver a joint essay about collaboration among writers. At the last minute Joe Fields was afflicted with stage fright and so, for the first time they split their collaboration—and Chodorov delivered it alone.

When the furrier demanded an explanation the resigning aviator confessed: "I got too dizzy—writing the letter 'g'."

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 2.

Gabriel Pascal has quietly taken some experts up to Toronto, Canada, to look over the Revina Studios. If possible, he'll produce his next picture there. Could this be a deal to use the impounded British money that can't cross the border? If it is, he's smart. He's preparing "The Devil's Disciple" and "The Doctor's Dilemma," both by Shaw. Wonder if G. B. would cross the big pond to keep an eye on Pascal.

June 15 will be Judy Garland's twentieth birthday, and on that day she's planning a huge garden party for her friends and studio workers to celebrate her natal day and announce her engagement to Dave Rose. I've been hoping Judy would postpone her wedding. It's pretty hard to manage a husband and a career at the same time. Yes, I know lots of people have done it. But they were older and wiser, and even though Judy's grown up, she still seems such a baby in many ways.

When Will died, and for many years before that, his column earned $2,500 a week.*

Dunbar Drill Companies Win First, Second

Under leaden skies before a gala crowd of 12,000 wildly cheering high school students, their parents and friends, Dunbar High School annexed first and second honors in the annual company competition of the Twenty-fourth Regiment of High School Cadets, yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

The winner, Capt. William Hyde, commanding B Company, was awarded the Teachers' Diamond Medal by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education. He will wear it for the remainder of the school year.

He was presented a gold medal by Lieut. James Fowler, U. S. M. A., recent West Point graduate, and former member of the high school regiment, who won crescendoes of applause. Medals were presented also to First Lieut. Willard Lane and Second Lieut. Charles Davis.

Company D a Winner

The Stephen A. Kramer consolation cup was awarded Capt. Walter Combs, commanding D Company, Dunbar, by Col. Larkland F. Hewitt, Massachusetts National Guard, and silver medals were awarded the officers by Capt. Elijah Reynolds.

Awards to the third company, K of Cardozo, Capt. James Witcher commanding, were made by Lieut. James H. Hillard. Preceding the awards an inspection was made by Col. West A. Hamilton, 366th Infantry, Fort Devens, Mass., and Lieut. Fowler.

The regiment then passed in review before the superintendent of schools, Dr. F. W. Ballou; Assistant Superintendent Garnet C. Wilkinson; John F. Wilson and Mrs. Velma Williams, together with Mrs. Doyle and Col. Hamilton, members of the Board of Education; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, Assistant Superintendents A. K. Savoy and Howard H. Long and Mrs. Julia West Hamilton. They were led by the Cardozo High School Band.

Representative Arthur W. Mitchell (Democrat), of Illinois, who was to make the diamond medal presentation and who appointed Lieut. Fowler to West Point, was in Kentucky and unable to be present. Judges of the competition were Lieut. Col. Larkland F. Hewitt, Lieut. James H. Hillard and Lieut. Lloyd A. Parker.

Company Members Listed

The roster of the winning company included the following:

Capt. William Hyde. First Lieut. Willard Lane. Second Lieut. Charles Davis. First Sergt. Henry Washington.

Sergeants: Beverly Adams, Irving Cassell, Lucian Rich, Howard Spencer, Charles Thompkins.

Corporals: Cornelius Boykin, Herman Darden, Leroy Harrison, Sterling Jones, Albert Nash, William Ramsey.

On August 8, this group will receive salary checks covering the last week in July and the first week in August.

Meanwhile, an equal number of workers will have been paid on July 15 and July 31.

Disclosure of details of the stagger-payday plan came from the Treasury after Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, conferred with Treasury officials yesterday.

Several weeks ago, Capper introduced a bill calling for four Federal paydays a month. A similar measure subsequently was dropped into the House hopper by Representative F. Edward Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana.

Treasury officials, Capper said, told him "they were glad to have had the staggered payday problem brought to a head by my bill." He added that a plan is to be put into operation "before long" and that legislation will not be required.

Staggered paydays, the Treasury reported, will be instituted by "executive direction." Delay in execution of the plan, it was stated, was due to the fact that the Treasury was anxious to make certain that Federal workers will have no difficulty in cashing checks and in meeting their obligations.

burst about him, some firing the gasoline dumps and ammunition depots nearby with terrific explosions.

"Neal sang and shouted encouragement to his companions.

"Then he countered the Nazi countertactic. He attached the gun to a light lorry and immediately after firing at the last plane of a formation, Neal and other marines hopped onto the lorry and moved the gun to another position.

"Nazi bombs kept bursting on spots Neal and his gun had just abandoned," Mohoney chuckled.

From another point, the gun would go into action again, and shortly before Mohoney left he said he saw Neal bag two Stukas in a ten-machine formation.

"I do hope he got away safely," Mohoney said.

New York, June 2 (AP).—Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, will be awarded the doctor of laws degree by Columbia University at commencement exercises Tuesday, university officials announced today.

Army Offers Bill to Give President Power to Seize Any Property in U. S.

of defense materials by giving the Government a "big stick" for such cases.

6. Grant authority to take over privately owned airplanes where it may be decided they could be of use to national defense.

7. Give the Army authority to compel corporations and plants under foreign ownership or control to comply with defense needs.

Up to President

The bill would empower the President "when he deems it in the interest of national defense" to requisition real or personal property of any kind, tangible or intangible—stocks and bonds, etc.—contract rights, patents, licenses, or any interests in property. He might take over such property either temporarily or permanently and could sell or otherwise dispose of it.

Under its terms the President would determine what is "fair and just" compensation for the property taken. If the owner is not satisfied he could accept 75 per cent of this sum and sue the Government for the remainder he thinks he should have.

The President could exercise the powers contained in the bill through any Government agency, in contrast to the existing law for taking over recalcitrant plants which places such authority in the Army and Navy. Thus in practice, any department, office or board could initiate such action.

Inclusion of the right to take interests in property would enable the Government to act in such cases as the proposed petroleum pipeline from Texas to the Atlantic seaboard, blocked by the refusal of some rights of way.

World War Laws

Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson sent the bill to Congress with a covering letter reciting the existing statutes on the subject and those in effect during the World War.

"The authority conferred by the statutes now in force," he said, "is inadequate to meet conditions encountered as a result of the existing emergency. As to real estate the required procedure is cumbersome and slow.

"Recalcitrant plants cannot be taken over until an order has been placed and refused and then the entire plant must be taken over and not a part of it only, while the present power of the War Department to obtain by compulsion equipment, supplies and materials vitally needed for national defense purposes is limited to those procured, processed or manufactured for export and denied export. Broader authority is deemed essential."

Ship Law Suspended

Besides signing the mandatory priorities bill, President Roosevelt approved legislation suspending for a year law which reserves coastwise trade to American ships. The new act is designed to permit Canadian ships to carry ore between American ports on the Great Lakes, which cannot be handled by available United States vessels.

Officials said there have been legal difficulties in the way of the Government taking over materials ordered by the French, notably at present some steel ordered by the Citroen Automobile Co. The "draft property" bill would remove such difficulties.

Hagerstown Girl To Sign Film Contract

Hagerstown, Md., June 2.—Prof. and Mrs. Roy A. MacMichael, of this city, have received word from their daughter, Miss Florence MacMichael, who has a leading role in the Broadway play, "Out of the Frying Pan," that she will sign a seven-year contract with Paramount pictures and will go to Hollywood in the fall. She is to return to her home here next week for a brief vacation, after which she will play in summer stock until leaving in September for Hollywood.

Pacific Coos

The reaffirmation in the Hull-Quo correspondence of the close ties existing between Washington and Chungking may scotch the reviving talk in favor of appeasing Japan at China's expense. After the President's fighting speech last Tuesday the air got dense with what many people probably took to be trial balloons destined for Tokyo. The activity was more than strange. Mr. Roosevelt had declared our common cause with the fight against Hitler, yet the first concrete step, apparently, turned out to be the release of these reports that we might come to terms with Hitler's Japanese stooge. Perhaps those reports were simply journalistic "think pieces" based upon Mr. Roosevelt's failure last Tuesday to mention Japan, or to call attention to our great problem in the Pacific. Be that as it may, the reports gave "face" to the expansionists in Japan. Worse, they gave corresponding perturbation to Chungking which the letters exchanged between Mr. Hull and Quo Tai-chi may now be expected to remove.

Japan's warlords of late have been sitting on a seat which is hot enough to have made the comfort coming from the trial ballooning exceedingly welcome. Free China has shown no sign of willingness to bring the four-year-old war to an end in any manner which would give the Nipponese militarists the slightest reparation for their colossal blunders. The Japanese generals on their part are in no mood themselves to cooperate with Japan's high politicians who would like to wind up the "incident" in China and go after bigger game. Moscow, in spite of its neutrality pact with Japan, is still as sphinx-like as ever. Few Japanese troops, at any rate, have been withdrawn from the Manchukuo-Siberian frontier In token of any Japanese faith in that agreement, and Free China, moreover, is still getting supplies from Russia. And at home the economic condition of the Japanese people is getting worse. Without a doubt the joining together of Britain and America in comprehensive economic sanctions against all the Axis powers would reveal Japan's feet of clay, and puncture for all time the stuff and nonsense of her grandiose dream of the "Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere."

But the trial ballooning in Washington, or whatever it was, revived the waning spirits of Japan's expansionists, if only for the nonce. It enabled them again to talk big. There was almost a relish in the way that Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka crushed the balloons eagerly in his hands with the declaration that Japan's bonds with Hitler are "immutable." He even took a draft on his courage to hint a new threat to the Dutch East Indies. Anybody with a rudimentary knowledge of the Japanese mind could have foretold precisely this reaction. Japan is of all countries the most adept in playing both ends against the middle. In World War I, in spite of her alliance with Britain, she played politics with Germany; and in this war she intends to keep on exploiting her nuisance value. Accordingly the coos from America enabled the Japanese—at a time when Hitler must be clamoring for action—to "talk" up to their Axis engagement without straying off the sidelines.

Secretary Hull's letter to the Chinese foreign minister, however, will return the Japanese to their perennial state of suspense. The Chinese after the war are promised an end to the system of extraterritoriality. In other words, we shall not insist on our treaty rights to try our nationals in our own courts on Chinese soil, but will acknowledge Chinese jurisdiction. The pledge to support China in this and other assertions of full sovereignty is a plain intimation to Tokyo that its plan to hold China in leading strings will never have this country's sanction. Not till Japan shows by acts and not words a liquidation of her overweening ambition to be mistress of Far Eastern Asia, let alone of the Pacific, can our Government afford any overture for sweet reasonableness. It is always dangerous to try to ride a couple of horses going in different directions. It is downright folly to do so in the Far East. Nothing is more calculated to set the Japanese on the rampage than the sight of hesitation in Washington. The more delicate the situation, the more decisive we should be. Mr. Hull's pledge to China, indeed, should be accompanied by the filling in of a notable omission in the President's fireside chat—namely a declaration that Singapore is holding our attention, along with Dakar and other western approaches to our continent, in our scheme of aggressive defense against Hitler and his allies.

Defense Goal

The signing of a mandatory priorities measure endows the OPM with power to impose priorities on goods needed to fulfill contracts under the lend-lease aid programs as well as under Army and Navy contracts. Armed with such far reaching authority over industry, OPM officials are now in a position to demand that the full weight of our immense resources shall be put behind the defense effort. So far that effort has been inadequate—dangerously so, in fact, to judge from the opinion expressed on Sunday by Stacy May, head of the OPM's Bureau of Research and Statistics. Mr. May concludes that if we are to overcome Germany's headstart, and arm sufficiently to be more than a match for the Axis powers, our arms production must go to $40,000,000,000 annually.

That would be about four times the present rate of spending. Thus we are far from Mr. May's objective. That does not mean we are incapable of attaining it, however, but it does mean that we must have proper planning and a willingness to subordinate civilian to defense needs.

Our slowness in keeping abreast of the needs has been due primarily to lack of vision. Lack of imagination, and perhaps over-optimism, was responsible for an imperfect comprehension of the magnitude of our pledge of all-out aid to Britain and all-in defense combined. For a long time the Administration, backed by expert advice, clung to the belief that the program could be superimposed upon business as usual. It was felt that we need simply bring into use surpluses of idle man power and productive facilities that were already in existence. And that belief carried with it a reluctance to resort to strong measures, a disposition to wait until shortages developed before doing anything of a corrective nature.

This is not said in criticism of OPM. In justice to the men who have had the hard work of guiding the defense program, we must remember that till recently our defense objectives themselves have been ill-defined. Nobody can lay intelligent plans for getting things done unless he knows how much he is expected to do. Nobody can be spurred to effort by just groping toward an unseen goal.

Now there is no longer any excuse for dilatoriness. We now know, and Ambassador Winant is at present telling the President, that we face a task that will impose a tremendous strain upon our resources. The job ahead calls for over-all planning of a comprehensive, highly integrated sort that will leave no room for industrial malingering or evasion of defense obligations. Manufacturers may not like to farm out work to subcontractors, but they must be made to do it, if that is the quickest way of getting things done. The one or two shift operations that keep indispensable equipment idle for long hours likewise cannot be tolerated when defense orders are pressing.

As a matter of fact, we had been assured that all these leisurely practices were fast being abandoned until the defense authorities themselves began to make confession to the contrary. Now we have Mr. May's word for it that our best industrial efforts have so far been directed toward production for civilian use! Actually military necessities have been regarded by some of our best managerial groups as sidelines. That is a situation that has to be changed at once in the face of emergency, if all-out effort or all-in defense means anything at all. Production for civilian use must, for the time being, become the sideline activity.

That is to say, industries manufacturing goods for civilian use must accommodate the volume and character of their output to the prior and paramount requirements of the defense program—a program which, in the light of the President's speech last Tuesday, must now be called a victory program. That will entail some sacrifices, but assuredly there need be no intolerable hardships. All we need is an intelligent plan and the men with the courage to see that it is carried out.

Eire's Dilemma

It was said at the beginning of the war that the Irish wanted the British to win but hoped they would come close to losing! They hugged to their bosom the belief that they would be spared the horrors of war by officially pursuing a policy of strict neutrality. They were not alone in that comfortable belief. It was shared by the Danes and Norwegians, the Dutch and Belgians, the Yugoslavs and Greeks and, for that matter, by a large number of Americans as well. In one instance after another, however, neutrality proved to be the opposite of a shield against war. On the contrary, it proved to be an invitation to war, because the policy permitted the Nazis to pounce on their neutral neighbors when it suited their interests to do so.

Thus far Eire has successfully avoided direct involvement in the war. But she has not been wholly spared the evils of war. On Saturday, for instance, Dublin was bombed for the second time, and in that bombing 27 persons were killed and 80 injured. Neither the Dublin government nor the Irish people are under any illusions as to who was responsible for the bombing. The stiff note sent to Berlin makes it clear that the Irish authorities are convinced that the blame must be put at the door of the Third Reich. Nor can there be any doubt that the bombing was terroristic in origin, designed to intimidate the Eire government into refraining from granting concessions to Great Britain or the United States which might defeat the Nazis in the Battle of the Atlantic.

What can the Irish do? We can imagine that the old belief in their aloofness is changing, that they feel that, even in spite of Cromwell, their best hope of survival is to see Britain win, and to win quickly. Soon, indeed, they might be asking, in an Irishism, against whom they ought to be neutral! For they must know now that a policy of scrupulous neutrality would not save them if and when Germany finds anything to be gained by invading the island. Perhaps they are waiting upon the strategic naval dispositions on the other side of the Atlantic which Mr. Roosevelt announced in his fireside chat last Tuesday.

Good Plan For Aliens

In an editorial appearing in this place on May 25 entitled "Good Place For Aliens" The Post supported the Hobbs bill. Now the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, in a letter appearing in our correspondence columns today, takes exception of our observations. First we wish to express regret over an unfortunate typographical error in the heading of the editorial. It was originally entitled "A Good Plan For Aliens," but appeared as "A Good Place For Aliens," thereby putting an unintentional emphasis upon the need for internment camps. Now for the bill itself. The best answer we can give to the charges of the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born is to quote excerpts from the Hobbs bill. The first is: "Any alien detained under the provisions of this act shall be released whenever the public safety or public interest no longer requires his detention, or upon a showing that he has made arrangements to depart from the United States and upon complying with such reasonable conditions as may be prescribed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to assure his departure." The bill further provides that "nothing in this title [Title 11 covering deportable aliens convicted of various specified crimes] shall be construed so as to prevent any alien detained without bail thereunder from questioning, on petition for writ of habeas corpus filed in the district court of the United States of the district wherein he is detained, the validity of such detention, including the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the findings of fact." The Hobbs bill also provides for very liberal treatment of deportable aliens of good moral character. The Attorney General may suspend deportation of such persons "if not racially inadmissible or ineligible to naturalization in the United States if he finds that the alien has resided in the United States for seven consecutive years or that such deportation would result in serious economic detriment to a citizen or legally resident alien who is the spouse, parent, or minor child of such deportable alien." In a letter to the Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee in support of the bill, Attorney General Jackson pointed out that it was no longer possible to rely upon deportation as a protection against undesirable aliens. "For criminal classes of deportees," he said, "confinement pending deportation is the only alternative I can suggest. There is no reason for the detention of persons whose deportability arises solely from technical insufficiency of entry papers. Deserving aliens, awaiting deportation, could be released on a parole procedure, either upon bond or upon their own recognizance, and under such supervision as might be conducive to public safety." In these circumstances we still support the Hobbs bill.

A LETTER TO ONE AMONG THE ROOTS

Remember walking the garden here
In the cool damp dews in the spring of year?

The arbors hung with roses alone—
We made our way over grass and stone,

And to the fullest limb we would climb,
Remember? But winter's come and time

Seems incredibly slow to one who
Always knew the green rains and the dew.

The wind we heard in the rustling leaves
Is snowy now, and the bare tree grieves;

And the pale pigeons that took to air
Stand silly round with a curious stare.

I hear in the tree where we heard song
Silence of music played now too long.

The sweet spring breeze that was our own
Plays dumb in the leafless tree alone.

Cling tightly to roots of leafless limbs
Deep under the earth, and send up hymns,

For it must be now the source of song
Lies deep in the roots that you make strong;

And walking in orchards hung pure white,
I'll sing with you in the dewy night.

Aid For Japan

The editorial in The Post of May 27 on Japan's newest "leeler" of American sentiment by destroying American goods destined for China is a hopeful indication of your return to the sentiments you so happily sponsored when China first became the victim of Japan's barbarism four years ago.

However, it seems unfortunate that the American sentiment seems to find expression only when material things are destroyed which belong to us. Had more editorials of this nature appeared during the long four years since China has been drained of her very life-blood, which America, as the chief salesmen of destructive scrap iron, oil and gasoline has been guilty of shedding, this traffic would have ceased. As it is, the "licensing lists" are a mockery and more oil and gasoline to power Japan's navy and air vultures has been shipped this year than in 1940. Excited orators vaguely refer to China's "magnificent defense" of democracy, but carefully refrain from flatly demanding that we cease helping to destroy that democracy. So futile are these inconsistencies that further denunciation of any of the Axis powers by our hypocritical mouth pieces is almost an offense.

President's Speech

It was a good speech and prepared for—with what theater! It has met spontaneous acclaim, like several that preceded, now almost forgotten in this age of rapid movement. But many Americans are grateful for the decreased note of hysteria.

Yet the speech cleverly advanced the Nation a little farther along the road to war in that it contained a proclamation of extreme national emergency. Enemies of the New Deal abroad, and those at home guilty of the crime of disagreement with itself, were shellacked in customary form and revealed in their full, true iniquity.

But the Administration is incorrect if it concludes from its private urges and present direction that the man in the street approves headlong entry into the war, under New Deal auspices.

The President suggested Bunker Hill is scheduled to be moved to some new frontier afloat or in Europe. This is a typical New Deal conception, which merits the suggestion: Let's keep it here!

Little disapproval will be found with that part of the speech that pans defense strikers. However, these strikers have one alibi. The New Deal encouraged them for years to denounce their "exploiters," and to throw off their chains. This they have done to such good effect that they have tossed the chains into the gears of the defense program.

Time To Act

The idea that when Hitler is subjugated, peace will descend with dovelike precision while four glorious banners of freedom are unfurled to far corners of the universe, is as chimerical as the proverbial pipedream. Ours is a savage world and must be recognized as such. The problems of hatred, commercial rivalry and greed will not be settled by battering certain groups into "zoolike" submission, or by eloquent fireside chats.

For centuries men have indulged in ceaseless warfare to solve their problems and yet today we are told by politicians that the present war is "different" from former wars. Hence, it must be fought to a bloody finish in order to preserve our democratic ideas. Hooey!

Hasn't the time arrived for our great Nation to make some effort to end the existent devastation which shows no signs of abatement and which may culminate in world chaos unless checked?

Our Cartoons

I wish to make a few comments on your cartoon printed on May 27 and also on the letter published in your column on May 30, entitled "Protests Cartoons," signed "A Subscriber."

1. Your cartoon is an excellent picture of the modern Attila. It is not propagandistic; it is educational. It is not inflammatory; it is inspiring, thought-provoking.

2. The question it asks is a challenge to the heart and mind of every human being on this earth who loves freedom and decency and who is opposed to international gangsterism.

3. The writer of that letter is, to say the least, a Nazi fellow traveler. Since he does not approve of the thought behind your cartoon—a thought which represents the sentiment of an overwhelming majority of the people of this country—let him go where his ideas are appreciated.

4. He has refused to sign his name.

5. I, too, am a Post subscriber, and my name is Edward K. Merat.

Mr. Pegler And France

May I have the privilege of commenting on a letter of May 29 signed "Jeanne M.," "Hornet's Nest for Mr. Pegler"?

I have enough French blood coursing through my veins to feel with her from the beginning to the end of her article in defense of the French people. But it seems to me that they do not really need any defense. The Chinese have a proverb which says, "A hungry man knows no ethics." Well-fed people such as we are at the present time have no right to judge the reactions of a people who have been tried countless times practically beyond endurance and who, throughout the ages have always come back. We have no reason to think that their pattern has changed in a short period of 25 years.

I do think that "Jeanne M." has taken Mr. Pegler too seriously. Sometimes, though I admire his bravery, I do feel that Mr. P. is prone to be carried away by his own oratory. If we allow ourselves to soar too high on the wings of words, we are in danger of leaving logic behind.

Mr. P. is given to generalizing, and glittering generalities are seldom sound. All Frenchmen are this—all Germans are that. Nothing is all up or all down. Even the Devil himself serves the double purpose of helping the wicked (very valiantly I feel at present) and of enabling the righteous to feel more righteous by comparison. And he is the busiest thing alive! If the righteous had the industry of the Devil, then this would be a far different world to live in!

Mr. P. is also given to the misuse of words. He is capable of saying stingy when he would seem to mean frugal or thrifty.

In my opinion he is not always correct in his interpretation of motives. "Setting up a round of drinks" is not a proper criterion for judging a person's capacity for generosity. Rather the person may be setting up the drinks with the not unfounded hope that the others will follow suit. Mr. P. ought to know by now, if he has been around (and I think he has) that the "jolly good fellow" is notoriously a slacker when it comes to the hum-drum duties of living. He is very likely to be the sort of a fellow of whom it has been said that "He is the most generous person I ever saw. He will give you the shirt off of my back, and think nothing of it."

Mr. Pegler is brave and daring and I admire his brilliance and read what he writes. But I find him more brilliant than profound.

I really sincerely believe that nothing he says or writes will keep France from rising again. She has too much of an edge on him.

LAURA K. POLLOCK.

Inflation And Chaos

It certainly cannot be denied, not even by persons whose honest opinion has compelled them from time to time to raise their voice against our entry into the present conflict, that a serious crisis lies before us. So close and so real is this crisis, that delays at defense centers cannot any longer be tolerated.

It has become quite obvious that capital and labor have chosen, what they doubtless consider the opportune time, to assert their freedom, by fighting and scratching each other over the question of profits and higher salaries just as misbehaving children do when they feel that their parents will spare the rod in the presence of visitors.

Future delays at defense centers must, and can be prevented by necessary legislation by Congress. In that legislation there should be included provisions for the raising of prices so that salaries should be slightly above the cost of living in relative terms. If this is not done quickly, then we may assuredly expect inflation and chaos.

Good Place For Aliens

[Editor's note: The following letter is discussed today in an editorial entitled "Good Plan For Aliens."]

We wish to register our protest against the editorial in The Post of Sunday, May 25, entitled "Good Place for 'Aliens,'" which, in our opinion, is both misinformed and misleading.

Not only is the Hobbs Bill, H. R. 3, an antialien measure, it is also a concentration camp bill, and a deportation bill. It is antidemocratic and un-American in concept and would seriously affect the constitutional and democratic rights of every American citizen.

The Hobbs Bill imports into our American law the Nazi concept of imprisonment for life without trial by jury—not for the commission of any crime, but simply because certain deportable aliens cannot be deported, through no fault of their own. The cry has gone up that the Hobbs Bill is supposed to protect our American institutions—but it is this very bill which will undermine our Constitution and our Bill of Rights.

Your editorial (as well as your news columns) failed to report to your readers that, at the public hearings on H. R. 3 before the House Judiciary Committee, 19 organizations from six States appeared to testify against the measure. Those opposing the bill represented more than 15,000,000 organized Americans in all walks of life, while only one organization appeared in support of the concentration camp measure, the Common Council for American Unity.

There is widespread opposition to this bill because it imitates Hitler's ways by establishing the principle of concentration camp imprisonment in our country. We feel that your editorial support for this un-American measure is indicative of a spirit of intolerance which has been stimulated by war hysteria. It is not only the alien whose democratic rights are jeopardized by this bill, which your paper is publicly supporting, but also the rights of every American, whether native or foreign born.

H. R. 3 is unnecessary and dangerous. We urge that your readers communicate with their Congressmen immediately their opposition to this vicious and un-American piece of legislation.

ABNER GREEN,
Legislative Director, American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born.
Washington, May 28.

The Post Impressionist

The Agony Column

In the London Times a "Personal Column" has been running for the better part of that paper's 150 years. To be exact, the paper started publishing the column back in 1788. One hundred and fifty-three years later the paper still features on page one the "Personal Column" and it will take more than Hitler's blitz moves to shove out a lover's quarrel or Mr. Chillicothe's garden news.

It was to this column that Sherlock Holmes avidly turned each day as soon as the paper reached his doorstep. Comfortably hunched in his study in the dingy rooms on Baker Street, the master detective often, by reading an item in the column, caught the scent of the vile Moriarity and unraveled another hair-raising mystery.

But the whole world likes to call this column, "The Agony Column," because, in the miscellany of its advertisements, run the emotions, hopes, fears, wants, ambitions, ideas and notions of an empire. The column contains a wealth of cultivated humanity.

In America the "Public Notices" and "Personal Column" run counterpart to the same column of The London Times. Many readers turn to it directly, finding in it that strange mixture of private lives and public announcements which furnish the stuff that news is made of.

These columns run all the way from lofty idealism to crass commercialism, from South Seas expeditions to worn fur coats. It is a market place for both the usual and the unusual; a bulletin board for personal needs and public offerings; the "Personal Column" is read all over the United States for entertainment as much as for the information contained in it.

Those who like to peer behind the scenes, hoping to catch a fleeting glimpse of the comedies and tragedies of workaday life, the foundations of business and domestic relations of men and women who yet yearn for romance and occasional adventure—these are wont to scan with a certain vicarious relish the notices in the "Agony Column" of newspapers wherever they are published. Through this column, readers may discern tiny facets of human experience that reflect light like jewels in a dark cave.

A few typical insertions picked at random, read as follows:

Chas.—Darling, a surprise for you today, so please be cheerful.—M.

Snoring!—Who knows of a cure? Reward given if successful. Box B. 123 Times.

E.—Friday, May 15, 1:30. You never 'phoned. Why?—U.

L. F.—Answer me—oh, answer me.—Lucile.

A.—I have done my part. How 'bout you?—Tess.

It is in the "Personal Column" that partners give warning that they are partners no more; husbands announce that they will not be responsible for bills contracted by wives who have left their "bed and board." A telephone number informs us that there is a "piano for sale." A gentleman motoring Southward "seeks remunerative companionship on trip." Witnesses are sought who saw "elderly lady hit by automobile on Steen Street last January." The hopes and fears of all the year are met in "respectable couple wishes to offer baby for adoption immediately after its birth."

Parents use the "Agony Column" to communicate with their children and children use it trying to reach, "Dear Dad—to come home, Mother very ill and wants you." Husbands and wives use the same column trying to locate their runaway mate, and last but not least, sweethearts use the column to make dates and send sentimental messages. Nearly all of these pitiful statements would make and have made excellent plots for fiction writers.

Most of the items selected show a curious phase of life, interesting to an observer of human existence, and human eccentricities. They are veiled in an air of mystery, with a view to blinding the general public, but at the same time give a clue unmistakable to those to whom they are intended.

Through our daily walk in life we brush up against millions of fellow-men; yet of how few among them do we know anything? We each live in a world of our own: we draw a circle, as it were, around us, within which center all our interests. How lightly our feelings are touched by what happens outside our circle is shown by the exclamation that escaped our lips as we read a fresh tragedy in the daily papers. The actors in it are unknown to us, and in a moment or two the paper is laid aside with a smile on our lips—the news that blighted many lives forgotten! But if it comes within the charmed circle, how different our feelings!

On the other hand, how very little we know of the inner or deeper life of even those in our own world. Romances, stranger than fiction, happen right under our very eyes, and we do not see them. With hearts that are breaking, men and women can go through the duties of everyday life, wearing calm and even smiling faces. He knew human nature well who wrote:

"Broken hearts are dumb—

What is there to tell us that such smiles are only on the surface? Nothing. So, is it not possible that the very advertisement that appealed to our feelings in the day's paper may have been inserted by someone living under the same roof with us!

It would be a sad, sad day, indeed, for the thousands of people if the editorial policy of a newspaper ceased to keep open house for localized grievances.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The By-Passing Of Congress

LIPPMANN

IN THIS GREAT emergency The American system of government is not working as it was meant to work, as it ought to work, as in fact it could very easily be made to work. The Executive is becoming dangerously separated from Congress, a fact which precludes the consolidation of national unity, and the President carries a much greater share of responsibility than any human being can or ought to bear. This is a serious matter now, and will, unless it is remedied, become much more serious in the future.

Yet it can easily be remedied if its cause is recognized.

LET US LOOK first at the fact of the separation between Congress and the President. Last Tuesday evening Mr. Roosevelt made as important a declaration of American foreign policy as has been made since President Monroe proclaimed the Monroe Doctrine. But whereas President Monroe made his statement in a message to Congress, President Roosevelt made his in a radio broadcast from the White House. The very fact that we all took this proceedure for granted shows how far we have drifted from the method and spirit of Constitutional representative government. For surely, if our system of government were working properly, a critical statement of national policy ought to be addressed to the Congress.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S enemies, notably Senator Wheeler, would say that the President is making a detour around Congress because in a dictatorial manner he is seeking to put the country into war against the will of the people. This explanation is demonstrably untrue. The reason why the President seeks wherever possible to by-pass Congress is that the rules of the United States Senate, as exploited by Senator Wheeler and his friends, have caused a breakdown of representative government and of the principle of majority rule. The fact that Senator Wheeler and Senator Nye will filibuster against any measure of which they disapprove has made it almost impossible to achieve a workable coordination between Congress and the Executive. It is the filibuster, always threatened and often practiced, which has made representative government almost unworkable during this great emergency.

THE PRESIDENT has had a clear majority in both houses of Congress for every specific measure of national defense and foreign policy which he has proposed. He had it for the repeal of the arms embargo, for the selective service law, for the destroyer-bases transaction, for the lease-lend bill, and he has it now for the use of convoys if he should consider them advisable. This is easily proved. Congress, when at last it was allowed to vote, repealed the arms embargo, enacted conscription, and authorized the lease-lend program by large majorities. That it would have approved the destroyer-bases transaction, had it been put to a vote, is evident since no one in the opposition ventured to propose any kind of vote of censure after the arrangement was announced.

As regards convoys, it is even clearer that there is a strong majority in Congress which wishes the President to use his Constitutional powers if he considers convoys to be necessary. The proof of that lies in the fact that Senator Tobey had a resolution to forbid convoys and that the opposition persuaded him not to let it go to a vote on the floor of the Senate. Why? Because the majority would have voted down the Tobey resolution. There is, therefore, no doubt whatever that on the plain record the opposition are a minority, that they know this, and that their policy is to avoid a showdown in the Senate. Their method of avoiding a showdown is to filibuster and by the everlasting threat of filibustering to deter the President from going to Congress for support of the foreign policy of the United States. For a minority can by filibustering obstruct a majority, agitate public opinion, and prevent responsible decision resulting from orderly debate.

THE FILIBUSTER, as employed by Senator Wheeler and his associates, is the fundamental reason for the breakdown of confidence and cooperation between Congress and the Executive. If the President could go to Congress and after reasonable debate, get a vote, there would be no shadow of excuse for the by-passing of Congress. But if every measure necessary to the national safety can be turned by a minority into an opportunity for a long agitation, accompanied by a well-financed propaganda, the President is bound to avoid these demoralizing debates whenever ingenuity can devise a way.

But, though this may be the lesser of two evils, it is a great and dangerous evil. In a crisis of this sort the President ought to be able to go to Congress for advice and for support at every step he takes. That is impossible because Senator Wheeler and his friends will not debate and vote. They filibuster and agitate. They are thus doing the greatest kind of injury to the letter and spirit of representative government. They are making the Senate of the United States an unworkable organ of government, and they have, therefore, undermined the functions of Congress as a whole.

YET THE REMEDY is simple. Let Senator Wheeler and his associates agree that they will permit the Senate to become again a deliberating and deciding body—that they will not filibuster, that they will allow any measure to go to a vote after a reasonable time for debate, agreed upon in advance, and the evil will cure itself. The public will then insist that the President go to Congress, because the public then will know that he can go. The authority of Congress will be restored. The division between Congress and the Executive will be narrowed. the Government of the United States will be working as it was meant to work, and the return to the normal procedure of the Constitution will enable the Nation to share the President's responsibilities.

Text Of War Powers Bill

Presidential Tonic

The text of the bill submitted to Congress by the War Department yesterday, with the approval of President Roosevelt, to authorize the President to requisition property of any kind necessary for national defense follows:

"A bill to authorize the President of the United States to requisition certain property for the use of or disposition by the United States.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That, during any period of National emergency proclaimed by the President, the President is authorized, when he deems it in the interest of National defense, (A) to requisition and take over, either temporarily or permanently, property of any kind or character, whether real or personal, tangible or intangible, or any part thereof, or any right or interest therein or with respect thereto, whether by virtue of contract, patent, license or otherwise, which itself or through its exercise or control can be used or is adaptable for use directly or indirectly in any way for National defense or in the construction, manufacture, production, transportation, repair, testing, or storage of military or naval supplies or other articles, commodities, materials, machinery or equipment for national defense, and (B) to use and, on such terms as he shall deem satisfactory, to sell or otherwise dispose of, either temporarily or permanently, any property, right or interest requisitioned or taken over pursuant to the provisions of this act.

"Section 2. Whenever the President shall requisition and take over any property pursuant to the provisions of this act, the person or persons having any right, title or interest therein shall be paid as compensation therefor such sum as the President shall determine to be fair and just. If any such person or persons entitled to receive it are unwilling to accept as full and complete compensation for such property the sum so determined by the President, such person or persons shall be paid 75 per centum of the sum so determined by the President and shall be entitled to sue the United States for such additional sum as when added to the sum already received shall be determined as fair and just compensation for such property in the manner provided for by section 4, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the Judicial Code (U. S. Code, title 28, section 41, paragraph 20 and section 250), but no recovery shall be allowed against the United States in any such action unless the action be brought within two years after the date on which notice shall have been given by the determination by the President of the amount to be paid as compensation.

"Section 3. Appropriations available for the acquisition of property for national defense purposes shall be available for the acquisition of such property under the provision of this act; and any moneys received by the United States as the proceeds of any disposition of any property sold or disposed of pursuant hereto shall be deposited to the credit of the current appropriations corresponding to that out of which was paid the cost to the United States of the property thus disposed of, and the same shall immediately become available for expenditure during the fiscal year in which the disposition was effected and the fiscal year next following for the purposes named in such current appropriation.

"Section 4. The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations and is empowered to require such information as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this act, and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this act through such department, agency, board or officer as he shall direct or appoint.

"Section 5. The provisions of this act shall be effective notwithstanding the provisions of any other act, provided, however, that this act shall not be construed as repealing, altering or amending any provisions of acts authorizing the acquisition of property by the United States, but shall be construed and considered as an additional grant of authority."

Registrants Given 10 Days To Fill Draft Questionnaires

Selectees will have ten days in which to return draft questionnaires to their local boards in the future, instead of five days, as previously, it was announced yesterday.

In announcing the latest amendment to Selective Service regulations, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local draft chief, said boards will be permitted to grant further extension when valid reasons are presented by the registrant.

Meanwhile, National Selective headquarters announced that it expects 3,834 registrants for the July 1 registration in Washington. The Census Bureau, which supplied the figure, estimates approximately 832,000 new registrants in the continental United States.

Names of registrants to be inducted today follow. White registrants will be inducted at Richmond and colored registrants at Baltimore.

Fair Enough

The "We Boys" Of The Unions

THE EDITOR of one of the few honest union publications in the country has written a criticism which puzzles me. "My honest belief is that you were doing all of us a good thing at first," he says, "but have lost some of your power through bickering over petty affairs that serve now as space-fillers rather than as an actual service. I only hope that you can be of real help in getting some of the remaining chislers and crooks exposed to daylight."

PEGLER

NOW, I TOO, have felt that to expose as an extortioner, stick-up man of ballhat parliamentarian some criminal boss over the members of an isolated local union may be to magnify a petty situation. But how can "the remaining chislers and crooks" be "exposed to daylight" unless they are exposed individually? And why do not the papers of the so-called labor press themselves conduct such investigations and publish the facts to the rank and file? A long time ago I promised William Green to expose a hundred criminals in official positions in the unions of the American Federation of Labor. I have lost track of the score, but among those whom I did expose, always referred to in the union press as "one or two untrustworthy brothers," were two international union treasurers, three international presidents and I don't exactly know how many presidents and business agents of locals. I proved also that a Chicago judge, Oscar Nelson, who still sits on the bench as a labor judge and who was a high official of the Chicago Federation of Labor for 25 years, served as counsel for the crooked Building Service Union, and, through his law firm, collected a rake-off of hundreds of thousands of dollars from a lot of poor janitors engaged in handling garbage, stoking boilers and the like. I proved that the general counsel of the American Federation of Labor itself, Joseph Padway, served as counsel for the crooked Scalise and, with Mr. Green, certified that Scalise was of good character when he was obviously a gangster who lived well by robbing the workers. I proved, further, that Padway was serving—and still serves—as general counsel for the Movie Employes Union and rapturously extolled gangster George Browne, the president of that organization, who sits with Mr. Green in the executive council of the A. F. of L. with the title of vice president. I have never offered this before, but I might add that Mr. Green's own ambassador to the West Coast, Mayer L. Lewis, on February 23, 1940, sent an official telegram of sympathy to Willie Bioff, the old mackerel, praising his "splendid work" and "excellent leadership," although it was then common knowledge that this crook had used his power as bargaining agent to shake down the bargaining agent of the employers. I might add, too, that Congressman William Schulte, of Hammond, Ind., a member of the committee which governs the Capital City of the United States, not only knows intimately the characters and affairs of gangster Browne's union, which recently have brought Federal indictments against Browne and Bioff charging the extortion of $550,000 but served on a committee of the union which investigated the conduct of the union in California in 1938. Schulte is a member of the union and, by this investigation, certainly had a fine chance to discover the crookedness that was then in progress. I see no reason to assume that he didn't discover it. I am more tempted to believe that he did because the opportunity was so good.

RICHARD LAMB, of the Pittsburgh Press, went through a big file of letters received from rank and file union men and women, and from others, and, in a single-handed investigation, turned up a roster of, I think, 60 crooks with criminal records. And I am sure that if it were possible to put a man on each individual lead, as the FBI and the Treasury can afford to do, it could be shown that the American Federation of Labor is absolutely crawling with crooks. In New York Tom Dewey has been sending them off to prison, one by one, and mostly small fry, for years with no assistance from organized labor, and in Cleveland there was a great catch of thieves in the union racket. The Common Laborers Union, which has had no convenvention in 30 years, and two of whose local officials owned racing stables, is a promising field for minute investigation.

The labor editor who wrote me seems not to consider the fact that it is the "petty" union boss or racketeer who robs and oppresses the members and exploits them for extortion, in the first place. Multiply him by X and he is no longer "petty" but a great, brutal robber operating under charter from the American Federation of Labor.

OF COURSE, I needn't ask why the editors of the union press fail to do their obvious duty as journalists and unionists to run down individual crooks and drum them out of labor and into prison. They are mostly not journalists at all, but "we boys," engaged in plugging their own racket and shielding the union bosses who pay them, all to the distress and detriment of the rank and file workmen of the United States, and the integrity of the Nation.

Air Highway Across Atlantic Proposed to Protect Convoys

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., June 2.—A spokesman for the American aircraft industry today proposed that long-range, four-engine bombers deployed across the Atlantic on an air highway 200 miles wide "can help to solve the convoy problem."

In an address prepared for delivery before the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association, John H. Jouett, of Washington, D. C., president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, said, "sent out from bases on this side of the Atlantic, departing on something like every-hour-on-the-hour schedules, they can carry enough heavy bombs to sink large ships.

"They can patrol a zigzag course over a convoy route, say 200 miles wide, all the way to England with a fair chance of spotting and destroying surface or subsurface raiders that might be lurking within striking distance of the supply ships in a convoy."

Whether official Washington or the British government actually contemplated any such move Jouett did not say, but he emphasized that the current production objective of the Roosevelt Administration was 500 heavy bombers a month.

His address opened four days of dicussion by more than 1,000 leaders in American aviation. Coupled with the convention was the fourth annual "National Aviation Forum," designed to thresh out problems of military, commercial and private flying.

Roger Wolfe Kahn, of New York, wealthy sportsman pilot and occasional test pilot, told the convention in another paper that the United States armed services were not making proper use of the huge Government-trained pilots who will soon number 100,000. He urged that at least 12,000 small airplanes be produced, in spite of the demands on factories for military planes, for their use.

Among the uses to which private flying could be put, he said, were "ferrying" military planes from one point to another, ambulance work and troop transport in the 16,000 small planes now available. Regarding troop transport in civil planes, Kahn remarked, "the Germans did it in Belgium, Holland and Norway."

Jouett said American air research engineers were working toward:

Making airplanes faster by shooting engine exhaust gases through jets to obtain a "rocket propulsion' effect.

Increasing propeller efficiency by installing counterrotating propellers which would obviate the engine torque effect common to all planes. Experiments on that have been in progress at the Army air corps labortory at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Equipping American pursuit planes with "five times" as many cannon as they now carry. One standard pursuit plane manufactured in the United States carries a single cannon, another manufactured for the British, two.

Jouett asserted that the Germans, now stopping production to retool on new models of bombers and fighters, "are nowwhere near up to their potential production capacity."

Copyright by New York Times

Eire will accept President Roosevelt's offer to sell two merchant ships, together with the gift of $500,000 worth of foods and other relief supplies, according to notification given to Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles by Irish Minister Robert Brennan. The two vessels have not yet been selected.

Brennan will visit American Red Cross headquarters here this week to arange for the distribution of the relief cargoes among approximately 70,000 refugees who have reached Eire from England and from Northern Ireland.

Too Late to Freeze Axis Funds in U. S., Morgenthau Says

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday it was too late to prevent the escape of Axis funds from the United States by a "freezing" order.

Asked at a press conference whether he still favored a general freezing order designed to prevent the removal of German, Italian, Japanese and all other foreign funds from the United States, he replied: "The barn is empty."

He added that the Axis already had removed sizable funds in anticipation of such an order. It had been said that the State Department opposed such an order when Morgenthau proposed it.

Army Intelligence

Dear Ma.

This is just to tell you some more about the I. Q. tests in the Army. I. Q. stands for Is Quick, meaning is quick at answering questions that nobody wood ask anybody except in a draft camp. I will explain some of the questions.

Question 1 was state if a trigger is a kind of medicine a music instrument or a part of a gun. Well ma if there is any jeep who thinks a trigger is part of a flower or a music instrument all I hope is he aint in my outfit during a hot battle. Question 2 was state what is wrong with the sentence chevrons are good to eat. I said everything was wrong with it as any fool knows chevrons taste awful even with plenty of catsup.

Question 3 was to check witch was righta callope is used for range finding, for washing bay windows or for giving off music. Well this kind of stuck me. I know a calliope aint used to wash no windows but I aint sure about the other two so I took a chance and said a calliope is used for range finding. If I am wrong this is a swell time to find out before I get to the front aint it so ma? Question 5 was to check which was right in the sentence vitamins are good for airplane motors human health or rock gardens. I showed em I was no fool there ma. I said vitamins was good for all three and from all the advertisements claim they are also good for smallpox, flat feet top sergents and even army tanks.

A lot of questions was even sillier. Like the ones witch follows:

10—State if these is right or wrong. There are 36 hours in a day.

11.—It takes 12 dimes to make a dollar.

12—When a man has reached the age of three score and ten he is 35 years old.

1.—Sunday is the sixth day in the week except in Leap Years.

14—The head of the American Army in the last world war was General U. S. Grant.

15—There are six quarts in a pint.

17—A mongoose is a male duck.

I guess the army is just fooling. If it aint fooling it makes me very nervous to think it suspecks the army is full of fellows which can be wronger about things than Oscar Lavant. Of course I don't blame some jeeps for thinking there is 36 hours in a day as it certainly seems so in this man's army and I wood even guess 48. But I should think nobody was so ignorrant not to know that eleven dimes made a dollar.

And even if I left school early I lernt enough to know that three score and ten is 70 and what difference does it make to us as nobody in army lives that long unless he is a top sergent like Sergent Mooney who makes others do all the work. To the statement that Sunday is the sixth day in the week I just wrote in the word "only stops at Bridgeport and does not carry dining car" just to see if anybody ever read the answers to these crossed examinashuns.

The Time Is Very Short

THERE NEED BE no mystery about Ambassador John G. Winant's mission in this country. The prime motive of Ambassador Winant's return from London is to tell the President in person, with all the persuasive force at his command, that the time is getting very short. For it is Winant's view that if this country delays acting much longer, the time for useful action may have passed.

ALSOP

This may perhaps be denied, both by Winant and the White House, yet it is an incontestable fact all the same. Nor is it surprising that Winant should hold such a view, and should have made a special trip to the United States to press it upon the President. The truth is that the same view is held by virtually every reasonably competent Presidential adviser here in Washington. The known facts of the war situation are quite sufficient to carry conviction, without first-hand experience in London.

THE FACTS behind Winant's view, which might just as well be called the War and Navy Department's view, are of two kinds. First there are the facts of the position of the British people. For ten terrible months the British people have maintained their resistance with magnificent courage, notwithstanding a grinding, cruel attrition without a murmur or whimper. Courage flows, however, from hope—in this case the hope that aid from America will some day permit Britain to take the offensive. The process of attrition continues unabated. New blows have recently been showered on the British people in the Mediterranean; and the end is not in sight.

No competent observer, official or unofficial, who has recently come back from Britain, thinks it prudent for this country to count on the inexhaustibility of British courage, unless we are prepared to accept full fighting partnership in the war. Even if the people of Britain are not fully aware of the seriousness of their plight, their leaders are. And not all the British leaders are possessed of the bulldog tenacity and determination to fight even a lost cause to the finish that Winston Churchill has displayed.

Such is the best available summary of the first set of facts, which has been little mentioned in public, but much discussed in private by the men who make American policy. As for the second set of facts, it should be known to every intelligent reader of the newspapers.

By deferring action this country has permitted Britain to be progressively weakened. In every contest between British and German forces, there has been a margin between success and failure which the British could not cover. In several contests the margin has been narrow enough to be covered by this country. Yet it has not been covered, and the contests have been lost. This process is now reaching a stage of acute danger. Crete has fallen, thus greatly increasing the threat to the British position in Egypt. The Vichy regime, despite its loud protestations to our State Department, seems to be preparing to put all its resources at the disposal of Germany. Gen. Wavell has fortunately been reinforced, in the last three or four days, by large desperately needed shipments of mechanized material. Yet the Eastern Mediterranean picture is extremely dark.

THE WESTERN Mediterranean depends, to a large degree, on the Eastern Mediterranean. If things go badly in the Eastern Mediterranean and this country continues to delay its decision, then the Germans will have little difficulty in taking the Iberian Peninsula and French Africa. By so doing, they will greatly improve their chances in the battle of the Atlantic, measurably weaken British courage, and gain possession of bases—Dakar, Casa Blanca, the Cape Verdes, the Azores and Lisbon — which will directly threaten us.

The cost of delay is appalling. The great majority of people in this country are ready, as the polls show, to accept full fighting partnership with Britain if that is necessary to avert a German victory. The President warned them of the necessity, not openly, but by implication, in his message to the Nation last week. He also promised to do all things that need to be done, but again he failed to say how or when he proposed to do them.

THEREFORE, the important thing today is the timing of American action. That is what worries Ambassador Winant and the chief officials and most important strategists of the War and Navy Departments. They do not doubt that action will come in the end. But they fear that for political and other reasons the President may wait to act until the moment for action has passed, or almost passed.

KINTNER

Immediately after the President's great message, the signs indicated plainly that action would be taken at once. Since then, there have been contrary signs. Heavy emphasis has been placed on "delivering the goods to Britain," although Britain is now so weakened that mere delivery of the goods will not be enough. Much has been made of the Atlantic patrol, suggesting that the President perhaps intends to defer action in the hope that the patrol will be aid enough, or that it will create an incident which will serve as a pretext for action. But the bleak truth still remains, that if the United States proposes to act at all, the time to act is now, and not next week or even tomorrow. As has been said, this truth is agreed to by every reasonably competent Presidential adviser. It is to be hoped that if the truth still needs to be brought home to the President, Ambassador Winant's voice will turn the trick.

FCC Chairman Says Congress Compelled Radio Trust Inquiry

By the Associated Press

James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communication Commission, told a Senate committee yesterday that the commissioner's investigation of chain broadcasting, which resulted in issuance of rules providing for reorganization of some existing systems, was conducted "only under compulsion of both houses of Congress."

He testified at a hearing of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on a resolution by Senator White (Republican Maine), calling for an investigation of the commission's rules. One effect of the rules would be to prevent the operation of two networks by the National Broadcasting Co.

Fly cited numerous resolutions and speeches by members of Congress, including White, calling for action against "monopoly" in radio, which Fly said resulted in the commission's investigation and resultant rules.

The chairman said he was "happy to have the opportunity to come before this committee and explore fully" the questions raised in White's resolution but that "I do think it is quite another question whether the processes or judgment of an administrative agency should be paralyzed over a long period during extended hearings . . . and the endless delays that could arise."

Under White's resolution, Congress would request the FCC to suspend its new rules until the congressional investigation had been completed.

Before Fly testified, White expressed himself as "surprised and somewhat shocked" that the FCC should oppose the resolution.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, said he thought the question for the Senate committee to decide was whether the commission had exceeded its authority.

"If it hasn't exceeded its authority," he declared, "I don't think we ought to have an investigation."

Meanwhile, the FCC announced it would start public hearings June 25 in its investigation of the joint control of newspapers and radio stations.

U. S. O. Asks Washington To Give $250,000

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

"Where do we go from here, when the camp day's drilling and K. P. is done?"

This question will be left up to "the army behind the Army"—meaning the citizens who, beginning tomorrow, will be asked for $16,765,000 to maintain recreation clubs for service men and defense workers.

Washington's quota in the Nation-wide drive is $250,000. Solicitation will follow the general lines of the Community Chest campaigns, functioning from local headquarters of the United Service Organizations for National Defense, Inc., at 1419 F Street Northwest.

Nationally, the drive starts with a broadcast from 9:30 p. m. to 10 p. m. today, with Secretaries Knox and Stimson, Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and other prominent speakers describing needs for recreational and social facilities under the Nation's widespread mobilization.

What can be described of the proposed clubs—which the Government will build, and six welfare and social agencies maintain—might make an old World War soldier, sailor or Marine ask, "What's going on these days?"

Former soldiers who took their fun in the variety of quickly erected recreation centers might think the 1941 models replicas of things good hotels have to offer. And these, under the plan, will be universally used by today's service men and defense workers. Three hundred and sixty localities, adjacent to military, naval or defense establishments, are expected to get them.

The appointments call for lounging rooms with open fireplaces, recreation rooms, "snack" and refreshment bars, lounges for the entertainment of visiting friends and relatives, social halls. And in localities short on lodging accommodations, arrangements will be made for the placing of cots.

Washington, it was pointed out yesterday at the headquarters, has been confronted with the need for sleeping places for thousands of service men visitors, particularly on weekends. So $105,000 of Washington's requested $250,000 contribution will be used by the six local agencies in meeting this need. The remainder will go into the national fund for maintenance of the clubs.

The agencies which must stand the entire maintenance cost, including supplying of staffs, after the Government builds the centers, are the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the National Catholic Community Service, the Salvation Army, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Travelers Aid.

Clubs are expected to be placed in the many military and naval areas around the District, and because of the number of these it is expected that the District will get a good return from its contribution.

The service organizations have designated this weekend as "United Service Organizations Sabbath." Services will be held in the orthodox Jewish synagogues nationally Friday evening and continuing through Saturday. Catholic and Protestant churches will observe the campaign at services Sunday.

One solicitation unit, special gifts under leadership of Dwight F. Davis, which already has been active, will make its final report June 10 at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel. District solicitation activities are headed by Sidney F. Taliaferro, vice president and trust officer of the Riggs National Bank.

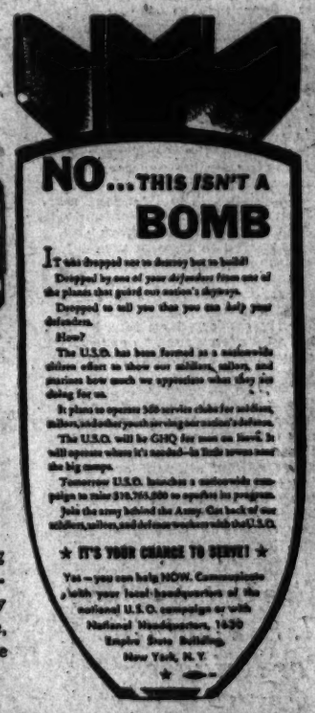
C. A. A. Halts U. S. O. Leaflet Bombardment

A proposed flight of Army and Navy airplanes over Washington to drop leaflets describing the United Service Organizations for National Defense campaign for funds was halted yesterday by CAA restrictions.

The rule that no leaflets nor anything else may be dropped on the Nation's Capital prevented Army bombers and Navy training craft, enlisted for the enterprise, from participating, it was said at the Anacostia Air Station.



NO... THIS ISN'T A BOMB
IT was dropped not to destroy but to build!
Dropped by one of your defenders from one of the planes that guard our nation's skyways.
Dropped to tell you that you can help your defenders.
How?
The U.S.O. has been formed as a nation-wide citizen effort to show our soldiers, sailors, and marines how much we appreciate what they are doing for us.
It plans to operate 500 service clubs for soldiers, sailors, and other youth serving our nation's defense.
The U.S.O. will be GHQ for none on Herel. It will operate where it's needed—in little towns near the big camps.
Tomorrow U.S.O. launches a nation-wide campaign to raise $16,765,000 to equalize its program.
Join the army behind the Army. Get back of our soldiers, sailors, and defense workers with the U.S.O.

Bill Cunningham's Column:

Plain Folks Loyal But Not Looking for War

By Bill Cunningham

Olean, N. Y.—You can butter it, baste it and flavor to taste, but you can't beat the nutriment out of the statement that the most important team of them all right now is the big U. S. A.

varsity, pulling on duty spangles of red, white and blue and waiting to find out whether or not the game's going to be postponed. If a fellow's going to make a profession of looking at teams, how about feeling the muscle, checking the wind and sizing the morale of the real all-America.

We're all members of that particular team, whether we like it or not. Some must carry the ball, some throw the blocks; some must care for the equipment; some wait on the bench ready to take over if a star drops, or the offense stalls. It's the fact that we all belong that's of first importance.

Although the lover of a good neighborhood, come all ye, and a fond fancier of the self-starting intersectional rib, I never hear such terms as "Yankee," "cracker," "native son," "cockleburr kicker," and similar denominational data spat with a snarl instead of passed with a grin that I don't think of a Sabbath afternoon in the jungles of Georgia when a gentleman of the district ferried me out to see a cockfight.

Because of his high moral position, his chickens were trained by, and quartered upon, a venerable colored retainer who went by the name of, believe it or not, Suddenly.

We repaired to the appointed swamp in a large limousine. But when Suddenly unhorsed his chicken crate and upped the lid, the two roosters of the gentleman were obviously in no state to do combat. They'd already been doing combat for quite a while. They had clawed and pecked each other into such a sad state that one was laid out cold and the other looked like Buddy Baer after that second Louis knock-down.

"How come this?" roared the astounded proprietor, boring a baleful gleam into the popping orbs of his anguished roostergroom.

"Ah doan know, Mistah Bob," finally said Suddenly. "It appears them chickens ain't got sense enough to appreciate that they's both on the same side . . ."

Talking With Our Side

I've been talking with a lot of our side up through this region today, taking them as they came and stopping them where I could. I talked with a farmer, a merchant, an editor, a mother, whose son enlisted three weeks ago, a truck driver, a soldier, a bum thumbing a ride. I asked them about us, where they thought we were going and how they thought we'd make out. It wasn't easy. Some of them thought I was crazy. Others wondered what the racket was.

But most of them warmed up after so long a time, and the net of what they all said was loyalty to this land, which means to the team; no enthusiasm whatsoever for war; no definite idea whether we are in, or whether we ought to go in; and deep concern of what war may do to their personal pictures.

The mother—her name was Mrs. Knapp, and she ran a homey roadside restaurant back up the pike here some 30 miles—said, "My son and three or four more of them around here enlisted about three weeks ago. But there was no enthusiasm about it. They just figured they were going to have to go, anyhow, and they might as well get in and get a little preference, if they could."

No, she didn't listen to the President's speech. She hadn't even read it. She hadn't forgotten it, but all that sort of stuff was so terrible, and she couldn't do anything about it—except not listen to any more of it than she could help.

The truck driver down the counter on a long interstate haul cut in here for the first time and his words had the ring of bitterness.

"Enthusiasm?" he said. "Who can have any enthusiasm about fighting somebody else's war? They got themselves into it. Let them get themselves out of it. I don't want no part of Hitler, but we fought their war once and what did it get us? Now apparently we've got to fight it again, only worse. Nobody I know's got much of any stomach for it."

Rush for Equipment

The farmer's name was Hobbs, and his third grandfather back helped shoot the British loose from the very acres that stretched to the purplish hills all about us. He had no opinion to express concerning our international duty, or vice versa. He seemed to take it for grantec we are going to fight and he was worried about the future of the farmer.

The farmers in these parts, he said, are mostly taking big chances, and they may get into a lot of trouble. Still, if they don't take the chances they might get into more trouble. It's mostly the matter of buying new motorized equipment before the prices go sky high, the supply is cut off, or both. Many of them are borrowing the money, but they're afraid to wait. After the World War the price of farm machinery sky-rocketed—murderously, and they all remember it. The farmer, he said, is expected to feed the Nation if things get tough, but he may go personally bankrupt trying to procure the means to do it, and still be caught short when it's over.

And so it goes out here with the rest of the team. I expect to keep asking and reporting from points farther on. If we've got to face the kick-off, I figured you might be interested in learning how the fellows down the bench look and what's mostly on their minds.

Passing this way, I thought I'd ask 'em.

Dark Sheers Suitable For Office or Dating

From morning until night a sheer dark mesh is the backbone dress that every woman is thinking about for her summer wardrobe. It is crisp for the office and disarming for dates after 5. And the penny-wise homemaker will find dark sheers go a long way toward balancing the budget. For summer long wear they require a minimum of upkeep and are easy to slip into

Grandmas Learn to Let Infants Howl

By Ida Jean Kain

OVER AT MANHATTAN'S Maternity Center the expectant grandmother is acquiring some techniques which are bound to be a jolt to the new arrivals when they try to proceed according to the tradition that all a fellow has to do to get his grandmother to pick him up is to howl until he looks apoplectic.

"Just let him yell," Grandmother will say with pleasant equanimity, as she picks up her knitting and moves out of range.

"After all, that is the only exercise he gets, and if he doesn't get it now, he will arouse the entire household in the middle of the night." That from the lady who is expected to worry about letting him cry for fear he might rupture himself.

From what I learn at the Center, the expectant grandmothers are taking to the advanced school of thought on such matters with an alacrity that is positively surprising. They don't even hold out for the "abdominal band"—long a bone of contention—which was supposed to keep the baby warm about his middle and to act as a support for his back.

Exercise Needed

Perhaps all Grandmother ever needed was an explanation with some sense to it. She acquiesces readily enough with the observation at the Center that if a baby is cold he is cold all over and not for a four-inch strip around his stomach. And, nowadays, Grandmother is no exercise wise that she knows it takes exercise, not support, to strengthen the young one's muscles.

It may be that this receptiveness to new theories is partially due to the fact that the one theory about which Grandmother is adamant is being pushed the hardest by the Center: Mother's milk is the baby's best diet.

Stock maternal objections are these: The mother is of a very nervous temperament, which affect's baby's diet and upsets him; that it is impossible for the mother to tie herself down to such a rigid schedule.

The counter observations are that mother's milk is the natural and therefore always the best for the infant, and that since even a little is better than none, a formula can be substituted whenever necessary to break the schedule. If mothers could be sold on the idea, it is estimated that 90 per cent of all babies could have the advantage of this natural diet.

New Bath Basin

To make the schedule easier, the 2 o'clock feeding is being dispensed with except in cases where the baby needs building up. When the baby is trained at the hospital to forego the 2 o'clock feeding, the mother is saved a great deal of bother.

Another thing—the old-fashioned bath basin, which allows the mother to sit down to bathe the baby, is right back in style. Because the new mother needs to conserve her energy, it is considered vastly superior to the bath contrivances at which she is forced to stand.

Taking baby out to the park for an airing—or to show him off—often means letting the housework go. The Center experts, who don't seem to have missed a point, believe baby can usually get enough air and sun in his own room, provided the sun is direct and not filtered through window glass, which removes the ultra-violet rays necessary for vitamin D. When extra vitamin D is needed, the codliver oil bottle can always be depended upon.

Yes, indeed! Grandmother is certainly bringing her ideas up to date. She is even learning to be a diplomat. Even though she does recall how "Harry was walking at 11 months," she won't mention it to the mother of Harry, jr., who is 15 months old and hasn't taken a step.

For Eight Years, Woman, Now 52, Has Been Weighing Question of Whether to Marry Man 12 Years Younger; He Proposed After 3 Months' Friendship

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman 52 years old, and for the past eight years I have been weighing the proposition of marrying a man who is 12 years younger than I. We met when he came to work at the sanitarium in which I was employed. After three months' friendship, he asked me to be his wife. I told him it was out of the question, because I was so much older than he.

He seemed to think the age angle wasn't important. He pointed out that both of us needed a home and companionship; that we had many interests in common and cared for each other very much,—which we did and still do. He had been married and at that time was divorced. In the years since, his wife has died, as has their only child, a little girl. He is of Portuguese parentage, and my family is English. (And, incidentally, I have ever been married).

I have never been able to make up my mind what is best to do. Sometimes I say I will marry him. Then again, I say it simply wouldn't work. Now, it happen that each of us is somewhat in debt, and I feel that since both of us would continue working if we got married, we should at least start marriage free of debt. However, I sometimes wonder if this is the real reason why I keep putting him off.

I wonder if I am like the man whose problem you discussed in your column of April 24. His fiancee had eloped with another fellow. He said she did it because he had been delaying their marriage for various reasons, mostly having to do with finances. You said he had never really wanted to marry her; that he was probably secretly relieved to have her off his hands. Could the same be true of me? And what do you think of a "partnership" marriage, such as my friend thinks would be possible for us?

Am I considering myself too much and him not enough? I am afraid I am swayed by what my friends and relatives would think if I married him. (They would think I was foolish, of course.) Why do we take for granted that it is all right for an older man to marry a younger woman—but feel it is wrong the other way around? I believe we two would be happy together, if once settled down; but I also think many adjustments would have to be made, and that struggling against debt would seriously handicap us. Please give me your opinions. N. K. G.

Famous Author's Views On Why Men Marry

DEAR N. K. G.: Any man who would remain steadfast, for almost a decade, in his desire to marry one woman, should make that woman a most dependable husband. Such remarkable evidence of devotion (doubly remarkable in this age of easy infidelity and "catch-as-catch-can" sentimental attachments), ought to convince even the most skeptical, indecisive lady that the man is satisfied he has found in her the answer to all his needs of marital companionship. And the fact that this man was 32 years of age when he proposed marriage to you, offers further guarantee that he knew then (and still knows) what kind of woman he wants to live out his life with—and that you more nearly answer that description than any woman he has ever met.

Seated next Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind," at a dinner this winter, it was my good fortune to hear, at some length, her views on men, women and marriage. One of her more interesting observations was to the effect that, "believe it or not, men do mellow gradually into emotional maturity with the passing of the years; usually hitting their stride somewhere in the thirties."

The gist of her remarks was that men, as a rule, seem to "find themselves," emotionally, in the thirties; and that a man in his thirties marries for more sensible and hence potentially more lasting reasons than a man in his twenties, who inclines to respond impulsively to provocative challenges, such as a pretty face, the theoretical unattainability supposedly concomitant with great popularity, sheer physical magnetism, etc.

She had noted that men in their thirties were less concerned with prettiness in women than with compatibility. And she had observed that those who married in the twenties, and still warmly approved their own choice in the thirties, were men who had grown into a deep companionship with their respective wives,—a companionship based on intellectual kinship, common social interests consistently shared, never-failing mutual consideration, the reciprocal conviction, gradually built up, that each could always find, in the other's sympathetic understanding and fealty, "sanctuary" from a troubled world outside the door.

One gleaned from her comment that a man who marries, in his twenties, in romantic mood, a winsome girl, and lives to find her a soul-satisfying wife in his thirties, is a lucky man. The intelligent man in his thirties, who is looking for a wife, wants—and knows he wants—a woman who draws and holds and sustains his spirit by intimations of profound calmness and strength in her nature.

"He wants 'sanctuary' in his home life, in his marriage,' Miss Mitchell said, in effect. "And there alone will he find it, if anywhere,—with the world as it is today. Few women realize, as men do, the terrific strain, the uncertainties of all kinds, imposed by the struggle to survive in our competitive social system. The wife who creates, for and with her husband, a home that is a quiet refuge from the fierce storms that shake the world today, a place that embraces him in an atmosphere of cheerful peace whenever he enters there, doesn't need youth or prettiness to hold her man. He will cling to her as he would cling to life itself."

So much for the man's angle in the marriage quest. It suggests that you could marry your patient suitor with reasonable guarantee of lasting companionship, providing (and it's an important proviso), you care for him as deeply, and find him as congenial, as he does you. It is possible, however, that you are temperamentally better suited to spinsterhood than wifehood; that you have a subconscious aversion to the married state. Or it might be, merely, that you are afraid to subject his devotion to the searching test of daily, intimate living, now that your youthful vigor and bloom are on the wane.

In any event, your indecision cannot rightly be attributed to the financial status of either. That is just a convenient camouflage label for your undefined reluctance,—which may have to do, far more than you think, with the anticipated derisive reaction of your relatives and friends. And if fear of their outcries and scornful disapproval is chiefly responsible for holding you back, then I think you are being pitifully cowardly. Since the man knows, and doesn't care, that you are 12 years his senior; and since you are (so you say), "convinced that you would be very happy together, if once settled down,"—I feel justified in giving my blessing to the long-discussed marriage.

As to why there is an American sentiment to the effect that "it is wrong" for older women to marry younger men—I think it dates back to pioneer days, when the hardships of life aged a woman much more quickly than a man; and when every wife was expected—as part of her duty—to bear her husband many children to aid him in his agrarian endeavors.

M. H.

Witty Phrases Pep Up Talk

DO MEN have a way of drifting off after a dance or an introduction—leaving you to sit? You can easily tie the wandering male to your side when you know gracious phrases.

"You're really a very good dancer, you know," said with a smile, makes him feel you're a girl with the right ideas! And easy to get things going after an introduction with a few well-chosen questions: "Are you a friend of Sue's?" "Have you been to the tennis matches?"

Then, once you have him talking, that's your cue to register feminine appreciation: "My, how interesting!" "I certainly agree."

You can quickly stock up on phrases that smooth your way socially. Tell your hostess, "So nice of you to ask me!" Thank a friend for a gift with "You're always so thoughtful!" You'll be remembered again.

And you appear a clever talker when you know sparkling figures of speech: "Chattering like a magpie." "Shiny as a new penny." When you're being business-like, too, don't have to grope for words. Speak up efficiently: "Thank you, Mr. Smith. I'll have Mr. Blank call you."

What confidence it gives you to know the right thing to say! Our 40-page booklet, 1500 Useful Phrases, lists phrases for business and social occasions; has hundreds of lively word combinations and figures of speech to dress up your conversation.

Wage-Earning Women Enrich Family Life, Dr. Douglass Says

Far from taking jobs from men, women who earn wages are increasing prosperity, laying a broad base for democratic freedom and enriching family life, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, new president of American University, asserted last night. He addressed the banquet of the Business and Professional Women's Club at Columbia Country Club at which Mrs. Laura Waters was installed as president.

The "myth" that women take jobs from men was pointed out as one of the greatest absurdities in the world's thinking by Dr. Douglas, who spoke on "Woman-Power in World Redemption."

In the hands of free women, the destiny of Germany as a member of the society of nations could be achieved, the speaker said, in discussing viewpoints of Carl von Ossietzky, Nobel Peace Prize winner, on the status of women in Germany. The rellegation of women again to children, church and kitchen was a first step in the evolution of German Fascism, it was stated.

MRS. LAURA WATERS

Dr. Douglass urged the club members, "because of your peculiar position here in aWshington," to become militant in upholding the position of the emancipated woman.

On all fronts and in America, too, even in American women's colleges, the feminist movement is taking staggering losses and setbacks, he said. Unless this is halted, the women of America cannot contribute their genius to the solution of world problems as free individuals, he added.

The redemptive power of women, expressing itself from free minds and free economic positions, can change our world, said Dr. Douglass.

Gracielas Mandujano, of Santiago, Chile, who has been doing social work among rural families in that country, was introduced among the guests of honor. Others included William Cassel Hanson, president of the Lions Cub of Washington, and Mrs. Hanson; George N. Mathews, district governor of Rotary International; Mary Stewart, of Sacramento, author of the "Collect for Club-woman;" Edith Whitton, president of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club; Margaret Troxell, president of Arlington Business and Professional Women's Club; John Waters, vice president of the Lions Club of Washington and husband of Mrs. Laura Waters who was installed at last night's banuet.

Judge Lucy Somerville Haworth, national chairman of public affairs, introduced Earlene White, honorary national president, who installed the new officers. They are, in addition to Mrs. Waters, vice president, Brownie Kerr; recording secretary, Helen Neal; corresponding secretary, Berniece Potter; treasurer, Elizabeth Mann; directors, Margaret Rauber and Margaret A. Sweeney.

Shoppers To Elect

Miss Evelyn N. Cooper heads the slate to be voted on today by the League of Women Shoppers at its annual meeting to be held at Self-Help House, 3213 Q Street. Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel is the retiring president.

Other officers on the slate who have no opposition are Mrs. Clifford Durr, for vice president; Mrs. Bernice Isaacson, executive secretary; Mrs. R. M. Blair-Smith, chairman of the investigating committee and Ruth Norr, chairman of the legislative committee.

The league members will bring picnic lunches to the meeting and coffee will be provided by the Self-Help Exchange.

In the afternoon, Miss Frances Williams, assistant to the chief of the consumer contact section of the consumer division of the Office of Emergency Management, will analyze costs and discuss their effect on living standards.

Janney P.-T.A. To Fete Principal

The Janney School Parent-Teacher Association will entertain at tea Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 in honor of Miss Blanche L. Pulizzi, who is retiring in August as principal of the school.

Miss Pulizzi has been principal of Janney since it was built in 1925 and is retiring after 50 years of service in the District school system.

Among the guests will be officials of the public schools and officers and members of the Parent-Teacher Association of which Mrs. R. R. Foster is president.

Foreign Minister Of Netherlands Here

By Dudley Harmon

After traveling more than half the globe by air, the Netherlands Foreign Minister and young Mme. Van Kleffens have returned to Washington for a few days rest on land. Since the March morning when they set off for Lisbon from London, the couple have covered 30,000 miles, all by plane.

These days, when events move fast, so do diplomats. From Lisbon to New York, New York to Washington, here to San Francisco, then on to Java, from there to Sydney, Australia, and Wellington, New Zealand, and bac kagain would leave Jules Verne breathless. The Van Kleffens did it in a little over two months. But they are used to hurried travel. When they left Holland by plane just after the German invasion, they forgot their maps, and it was only because one of the men has done a lot of sailing off the cost of England that they were able to locate Brighton. There they alighted, waving a white shirt for fear of being taken for Germans. When the Atlantic Clipper, bringing them back to New York, landed in a storm, Mme. Van Kleffens was thrown out of her chair into a pool of salt water which runined all her hats.

While M. and Mme. Kleffens were coming into Washington by plane yesterday, the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon were jogging along North Carolina roads in a station wagon. They chose this informal means of getting to Duke University, where the Minister made a speech. His attractive American wife, incidentally, speaks Dutch so well that on tours of Dutch-American cities of the Middle West she frequently "says a few words" at women's gatherings.

The Minister will return to Washington today to welcome the Van Kleffens. Yesterday the visitors lunched with the Embassy Counselor and Baroness van Boetzalaer to map out details for another flying trip. They will leave tomorrow evening for Chisago, where he'll make a speech before a business group, and then they'll go on to Canada at the invitation of the Canadian government. They'll look up Crown Princess Juliana and her family at their home in Ottawa, and also expect to visit the training camp for Dutch soldiers just across the border from Detroit. The middle of the month will find the Van Kleffens bound—by plane, of course—for London.

Following his official tour of the Netherlands East Indies, the foreign minister reports that he is satisfied with the defenses, especially the air force. He adds that everyone there is prepared to put up a struggle if necessary. Interesting to us are his good words for the air force, which is being trained in part by young American fliers hired by the Dutch government.

Mme. van Kleffens, the youngest wife of a foreign minister in the history of Holland, paused in Salt Lake City to look up her relatives (her mother was an American). Returning to Washington with her and her husband was the Legation Counselor, Count van Rechteren Limpurg, who traveled with them.

To Summer At Nonquitt

In a few weeks Mme. Loudon will go to Nonquitt, on Buzzards Bay, for the warm months, leaving the Minister behind to continue his heavy working schedule. There promises to be quite a foreign colony up that way this summer; I hear that Crown Princess Martha of Norway has taken a house at SaltersPoint, near where Mrs. Demarest Lloyd has a home.

Mrs. Hoyer Millar, wife of the First Secretary of the British Embassy, and her relatives, the Charles Carroll Glovers, will be others in the Nonquitt colony this summer. Also going there are Mrs. David Barry and Miss Alice Barry. Mrs. Barry will not live in Washington next winter; instead, she will go to Philadelphia to join Maj. Barry, who was called back to duty there.

Another couple in the Nonquitt colony will be Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Hartley, who have a summer home at the resort.

Miss Clement To Be Wed

Mrs. Edward H. Martin, of Washington will be matron of honor at the wedding June 11 of Miss Catharine Allison Clement, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Nathaniel Holmes Clement, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to Arnold Moore Withers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Granville T. Withers, jr., of Pueblo, Calif. The ceremony will take place at the Brooklyn home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Leon H. Griffiths.

William D. Foster, of Buckhannon, W. Va., will be best man. A small reception will follow the ceremony.

The bride-elect, a granddaughter of the late Justice Nathaniel Holmes Clement of New York Supreme Court, was graduated from the Madeira School and from Vassar College. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Withers is an alumnus of the University of Arizona and did graduate work in archeology there.

Hamiltons Visit Capital, Are Feted By the Clappers

Paying a brief visit to Washington are John Hamilton, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Mrs. Hamilton. The latter who was before her recent marriage Jane Kendall Mason, has been in Florida to close her house at Tampa and collect her children.

The Hamiltons lived at Tampa for a brief time after their marriage and are now busy getting settled in the farm they recently bought near Paoli, Pa. Last night they were honor guests at a small informal dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper. Others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Duke Shoop, Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Waltman, George Abell and Mr. and Mrs. Walker Buell.

Countess To Be Feted

A dinner in honor of the Countess of Abingdon to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor is one of the many fetes that will precede tomorrow evening's subscription concert at the Polish Embassy for the benefit of a Polish hospital in Edinburgh, Scotland. Lady Abingdon, who is coming from New York for the event, is chairman of the organization, Refugees of England, Inc., which has charge of the disposition of the funds for the hospital.

Another coming from New York for the benefit is Mrs. Vernon Kellogg. She is chairman of the Paderewski Testimonial Fund under whose name the local committee for Polish relief is sponsoring the concert.

Mrs. Truxton Beale is also planning a dinner before going on to tomorrow night's benefit. Others taking guests to the concert are the Cuban Ambassador and Senora Conchesco, Princess Boncompagni, Countess de Limur, Count and Countess de Castellane, Mme. Fotitch, Lady Gainsborough, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pillsbury Gale, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Cary D. Langhorne, Mrs. George H. Myers, Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles, Sir Arthur Salter and Lady Salter and Mr. and Mrs. Cocoran Thom.

Miss Hoskinson And James O'Grady Are Entertained

Miss Nancy Hoskinson and James O'Grady, who will be married June 11, were honor guests at two parties yesterday. Frank Holcomb entertained at cocktails for them and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mackintosh were hosts at a dinner.

Mr. Holcomb entertained at the quarters of his parents, the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb. He will be best man at the wedding, which will take place at the Sulgrave Club. About 200 members of the younger set attended, including last year's and this season's debutantes.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh entertained at a seated dinner for 50 at Hotel Twent-four Hundred. Guests included their friends as well as members of the young crowd.

McClarans Return From Florida

Rear Admiral J. Walter McClaran, retired, has returned to Washington with Mrs. McClaran and their twin daughters, Ann and Patricia, after spending the winter at Captiva Island, Fla. Stephen McClaran, who has been attending Slade School in Olney, Md., is vacationing with his family in the Alexandria house which they have rented for the next two months.

Miss Jane Cassedy, Mrs. McClaran's daughter, who is taking courses in occupational therapy in Philadelphia, is planning to spend the week of June 14 with Admiral and Mrs. McClaran.

Polish Embassy Welcomes Two Military Attaches

The Polish Embassy now has two military attaches, both of whom have just arrived from London. They are Col. Onacewicz and Maj. Dobrowolski, veterans of the defense of Poland. Maj. Dobrowolski, whose mother was a Scotswoman, is accompanied by his wife.

Miss Natalie Askanazy, of the Polish Embassy staff, will introduce the two military attaches to a group of her friends at cocktail party on Thursday.

Deaconess Yeo Marks Anniversary With Tea

Among those assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Mrs. P. Lee Phillips, Mrs. Henry Curtis Morris, Mrs. James Millholland, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. Thomas Lockwood, Mrs. A. N. Talbot, Mrs. Horatio G. Gillmor, Mrs. John Howard, Mrs. Harry L. Grant, Mrs. Laurence Gouverneur Hoes, Mrs. Atherton Macondray, Mrs. William F. Sowers, Mrs. W. Cabell Moore, Mrs. ZeBarney Phillips, and Mrs. James J. Queally.

MRS. GERALD DELAPALME

Chaplain William Thomas Officiates; Bride Is the Daughter of Admiral LeBreton; Mrs. Murray Acts as Matron of Honor

At a quiet ceremony, Miss Pauline LeBreton and Gerard Delapalme were married yesterday afternoon at 4:30 in the chapel of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. The bride is the daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. David LeBreton, of Washington, and Mr. Delapalme's parents are M. and Mme. Pierre Delapalme, of Paris.

Chaplain William Thomas officiated at the ceremony in a setting of white flowers. The bride's gown was fashioned of heavy white satin, with a square neckline and a full skirt which ended in a circular train. Her three-quarter length veil was of heirloom lace and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis.

Her matron of honor was her cousin, Mrs. Murray Preston, who chose pink marquisette and carried larkspur and delphinium. Miss Barbara Rainsford, another cousin, was a bridesmaid and was similarly dressed. Etienne Burin des Roziers, of the French Embassy, was best man.

Owing to war conditions, the couple are uncertain where they will make their home. The bride, whose father was formerly Naval Attache at the American Embassy in Paris, studied at the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn. Mr. Delapalme was educated in Paris.

Wedding Invitations Recalled

Owing to the sudden death of Mr. Easley, Mrs. George Gilmer Easley has recalled the invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Beverley Mason, to Claude Willard Sprouse, jr., which was to have taken place on Monday, June 9.

Signora Rosso Sees Daughter Before Sailing

Uncertain when they'll see each other again, Signora Augosto Rosso and her daughter, Miss Adele Bunker, are in San Francisco together before Signora Augosto Rosso sails on Thursday for Siberia. Because of the war, she must take that route to join her husband, talian Ambassador to the Soviet.

Signora Rosso, the former Mrs. Frances Wilkinson Bunker, of Washington, has been in this country for several months renewing old friendships. Her daughter will come to the Capital after her mother sails to spend a week with Miss Barbara Bolling. Later the pair will motor to New Hampshire, where Miss Bunker will spend the summer on her father's farm.

Last evening Miss Bolling and Miss Peggy Essary were cohostesses at a kitchen shower given for Miss Marjorie Custis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gray Custis, whose marriage to Joseph Watson will take place June 12. The party was held at the home of Miss Essary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, of Newark Street.

Miss Bolling, a talented singer, will sing at the wedding and Miss Essary will be a bridesmaid. Among the guests last night were Miss Betty Lee Price, the maid of honor; Mrs. Custis, Miss Patsy Jones, Miss Ruth Dunlop, Miss Winifred Pickens, Miss Mary Parker, Miss Jane Costello, Miss Jane Gibbons, Miss Mary Schreiber and Miss Barbara Henning.

Lady Halifax To Pick Bouquet For British Queen

Lady Halifax will pick a "bouquet for Britain" this afternoon in the garden atop the British Building in Rockefeller Center, N. Y. The bouquet, picked in a dry ice container, will be flown by Clipper to Lisbon and from there to London, and the flowers will be presented to the Queen on Friday by London officials.

Viscountess Halifax will visit the garden as guest of the British American Ambulance Corps, for whose benefit were sold the seeds of common British and American flowers from which the plants were grown.

The Ambassador's wife will return to New York on Monday to attend the dinner to be given that night by Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler. She will lunch with Dr. and Mrs. Butler the next day, Tuesday, and with Mrs. Roosevelt will be honor guest at the Astor Roof preview fashion show of the Women's Export Group of Great Britain.

Mrs. Roland Byers Goes to Locust, N. J.

Mrs. Roland Byers has gone to Locust, N. J., to spend this month with Mrs. Warren Barbour. From there she will go to the Adirondacks to visit her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Barbour.

Mrs. Byers' home is in Ireland. Last fall she came here "for the duration" with her young daughter at the invitation of her American cousin, Senator Warren Barbour.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Frederick Sterling, wife of the United States Minister to Sweden, has returned from a trip to Newport, where she recently purchased a house.

Mrs. S. Kent Negare is in New York, where she is staying at the Ritz Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor have returned to their home here after a visit to New York.

Maj. and Mrs. Edward S. Bibson are in Washington and are stopping at the Martinique.

Miss Mary Senate Howes has invitations out for a tea June 12 in honor to Miss Katherine Friant and Nelson Post. The party will be held in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower.

Mrs. T. Q. Donaldson, widow of Maj. Gen. Donaldson, who has been in the South for several months, is in Washington to attend the graduation today from Gunston Hall of her granddaughter, Miss Mary Sue Rucker The latter's mother, Mrs. C. B. Rucker, wife of Col. Rucker, is here from Battle Creek, Mich. for the event.

William P. Homans, of Boston, is spending several days here on business with the office of production management.

Capt. and Mrs. Alfred Virag, of San Francisco are at the Martinique. Others there include Lieut. and Mrs. Jack Boyer, of Taos, N. Mex., and Lieut. and Mrs. P. S. Pollock, of Selfridge Field, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McD. Adams of 1220 Hemlock Street celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary with a reception on Saturday evening. Among the guests were Mrs. Adams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gosnell, who the Thursday before had celebrated their fifty-third wedding anniversary. The table was centered with 25 white roses in a silver bowl and a three tier wedding cake. Assisting were Mrs. Albie Helmick, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Yeager.

Leach–Clarke Nuptials Held

Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Leach announce the marriage on Sunday of their daughter, Elizabeth Jane Leach, to Fredric D. Clarke, Ensign, U. S. N., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Clarke, of Long Beach, Calif.

The ceremony took place at 9 so'clock in the morning in the parsonage of the Wesley Methodist Church here, the Rev. Luther J. Neff officiating. A breakfast for intimate friends followed at the Columbia Country Club. The couple will live in New London, Conn., where the bridegroom is stationed.

The bride, whose father is Washington correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, is a graduate of Holton Arms School and attended Connecticut College. Ensign Clark was graduated from Annapolis in 1939.

Elanor Layton To Be Wed June 28

Mrs. Samuel Allen Freas announces the engagement of her daughter, Mis Eleanor Layton, to Carl Frederick nabe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frederick Knabe, of Baltimore. The wedding will take place June 8, at Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church.

Mr. Knabe is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, where he was a member of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. Miss Layton will be graduated this month from Goucher College, where she is a member of Delta Gamma.

Castro y Silvas Will Sail Soon

Vice Admiral J. M. Castro y Silva, of Brazil, one of the Latin-American naval officials who have been touring the country as guests of our Government, and Senhora Castro y Silva will leave tomorrow for New York and will sail on the S. S. Argentina on Friday for Brazil.

Last evening the visitors were honor guests at a farewell dinner given by Commander and Mrs. Edward C. Ewen at the Shoreham Blue Room. The Ewens spent two years in Rio de Janeiro, where the commander was with the American Aviation Mission. They arrived in Washington two weeks ago after being stationed in Honolulu and California. Commander Ewen was squadron commander of the U. S. airplane carrier Enterprise. Commander Ewen and his wife, who is a niece of Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, are staying at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Shouse's daughter, Miss Joan Dodd, returned from school in Charlotttesville, Va., yesterday, in time to accompany her mother on the trip. 3

'House-Cooling' Party Given By Mrs. Dawley

Just before leaving Washington for Narragansett, Mrs. M. Webster Dawley entertained at a "house cooling" party yesterday afternoon at her soon-to-be-vacated home in Wesley Heights. A verdict of the party was pronounced by George Dean when he met the new owner of the house, Homer S. Cummings, as he was leaving, "Are your parties here going to be as good as this one?" he asked. And Mr. Cummings glanced at the well-filled hall and dining room and could only sai, "I certainly hope so!"

Mrs. Dawley received her guests just inside the door in the panelled hall. She wore flowing blue marquisette patterned in pastel colored beads and a lavender orchid. Her daughters, acting as co-hostesses, greeted the guests of their own "younger set" and escorted them downstairs where dancing was being enjoyed. Gail Dawley set off her long blond hair with a gay street-length dress of flowered chintz. Her sister Harriet, chose a large-patterned print of orange and green on a white background, with which she wore a gardenia carsage.

Those who could speak French were found negrossed in conversation with Camille Chautemps, former Premier of France, while his pretty wife assisted at the tea table. A festive board was spread in the tapestry-hung dining room and drinks were served from a bar in a nearby alcove.

Mrs. Carl ZoZiller, who stood at the punch bowl, wore a lipstick-red hat which attracted as much comment as the cooling beverage she was serving. Baroness von Below was seen chattaing with Representative Joseph Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Herrick conversed with Mr. and Mrs. Eldon King. Others there were Miss Margaret Gage, Col. and Mrs. Consuelo Seoane, Mrs. Paris Bringle, Mrs. Frank Whitmore, who was wearing a pert red hat with her black dress; Mrs. J. J. Mack, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daniel, Miss Cornelia Bowle and Mrs. John B. McClure in a blue-trimmed white hat.

Mrs. Eward Everett Gann poured coffee for a time. Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton were other guests.

In the ounger group were Miss Peter Norris, Miss Holly Hubbard, Miss Liz Wilbur, Miss Rosemary Morse, Miss Peggy Tuckerman, Miss Mimi Meredith and Miss Harriet Hoffman. On the masculine side of the ledger were Charles Grant, Joe Huber, Joe Glover, Martin Barry, James Wells, Frank Thrope, Frank Burke and Berkeley Simmons.

Dr. Douglas Praises Women With Jobs

By Lucia Giddens.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will call a conference of heads of other national women's organizations in New York City June 13 to plan the mobilization of women throughout the country in the defense program, she announced yesterday.

On her first visit to Federation headquarters here since her election at the Atlantic City convention, Mrs. Whitehurst immediately turned to detail of the tremendous task which the Federation has set for itself in national defense.

Twelve committees will be set up in the Federation's new department of national defense, Mrs. Whitehurst revealed yesterday—organization, registration, Americanization, housing, nutrition, nursing, industry, agriculture, recreation, consumer problems, taxation, defense stamps and bonds.

The 2,000,000 members of the Federation, largest organization of women in the world, will cooperate with other millions of women throughout the land to strengthen home defense in the program visualized by Mrs. Whitehurst.

"I've been asked what relationship our program will have to that headed by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York in the office of civilian defense. Of course we will correlate our work with his," Mrs. Whitehurst said.

She hopes to confer with him on details of this cooperation, on his visit to her home city, Baltimore, this week, she said.

"The first thing women leaders have to do is to try to change the psychology of women themselves toward the defense program," Mrs. Whitehurst declared, as she sat at her new desk yesterday at headquarters, 1734 N Street Northwest.

"We have worked for peace and talked peace until some women are reluctant to support an adequate national defense program. We need an educational program to try to make them see that strong national defense is necessary to secure peace," she added.

Although the federation is taking the lead in the nationwide women's movement, "there is no desire on its part to dominate the set-up," Mrs. Whitehurst emphasized yesterday. She has urged clubs in the federation to "have all of the women's organizations work with you; let them elect their own coordinator if necessary."

Although organization plans are yet to be worked out in detail, she suggested yesterday that each State might have a coordinator for the mobilization of women, under the Governor and State defense council. Mrs. Whitehurst is such a candidate for Maryland where she will get what she calls "laborator experience experience" to aid her in planning the national program.

Each State coordinator, she indicated, would have an advisory committee drawn from women's organizations, and an administrative setup of the 12 committees.

Elaborating on the tasks of these committees, Mrs. Whitehurst pointed out that the aviation group as a part of its "ground work" would take part in the aircraft warning service in which women telephone operators are needed, along with typists and clerks.

The recreation committee will plan activities for service men, especially those on leave in large cities, she said.

The industry committee will see that women get information about possibilities for vocational training for positions in industry where they might have to take the place of men. The teaching of scientific farming to women would be a concern of the agriculture committee. All women should have some knowledge of nursing, Mrs. Whitehurst said, and that committee will see that more of them get it. The nutrition committee will disseminate knowledge about food values and about substitutes for certain foods.

"I believe women should do all in their power to help sell stamps and bonds to finance an adequate defense program," she said, and for that purpose a committee has been set up.

Democrats Hold Luncheon

The Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday held their last luncheon of the season.

Mrs. Curtis Shears, the club president, reviewed activities of the past three months including the series of "information hour" programs on defense.

The club is announcing a summer series of 15 minute broadcasts on their national defense program. The first of these will be heard from 3:30 to 3:45 today Station WWDC when Mrs. Shears will speak. Also this afternoon from 3:45 to 4 o'clock over Station WJSV, round table speakers will be the two vice presidents of the club, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis who will be interviewed by Mrs. Albert Cox, wife of Brig. General Albert C. Cox, director of the Selective Service system for the District of Columbia.

The club's defense project committee also has announced that Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, member of the board of governors of the Woman's National Democratic Club, has accepted the chairmanship of the ball to be given in October at the Mayflower for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club. This is part of the club's fund raising program for this service men's club cooperating with the Woman's Army and Navy League which has maintained it for many years.

D. C. Leaders To Attend Tea

Many reservations have been made by members of Capital society for the bridge tea to be held tomorrow at Larz Anderson House for the benefit of French refugees in England. Mrs. Carlton Holdrege is chairman of the committee.

Among those who have taken tables are Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the South African Minister; Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mrs. Carroll Greenough, Countess Andre de Limur, Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. George Becker, Mrs. George Thorpe, Princess Boncompagni, Mrs. Barron DuBois, Mrs. Paul Healy and Mrs. Prentiss Cooney.

Mrs. Veda M. Jones, of Portland, Oreg., president of Supreme Chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, who has been visiting her son, Capt. Edmund H. Jones, and his wife, of Arlington, Va., for several days, left yesterday for Mansfield, Pa., where she will be the guest of honor and speaker at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, to be held June 4 and 5.

Mrs. Jones came to Washington from Massachusetts, where she has been attending the Massachusetts State Chapter convention. She was honored on Saturday at luncheon at the Woodward & Lothrop tea room given by Mrs. T. A. Hutton, newly elected president of the District of Columbia Chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood. Among guests invited to meet her were officers and past presidents of the District of Columbia Chapter, the delegates who will attend the supreme convention to be held in Victoria, British Columbia, in September.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Jones outlined the plans for the convention, which will have over 2,000 delegates in attendance and will be held in the Crystal Gardens in Victoria.

PI LAMBDA THETA honorary educational sorority at George Washington University, will have a luncheon meeting at the Dodge Hut on Saturday, preceded by an initiation and followed by the installation of new officers.

Guests of honor will be Dr. Bess Goodykoontz, assistant U. S. Commissioner of Education and national vice president of the sorority; Dr. Helen MacIntosh, of the Office of Education, and Miss Elizabeth Grimth, of the research department of the Washington public schools. Miss Grimth will give a humorous chalk talk.

Mrs. Mitchell Dreese, president of the chapter, will initiate the new members, who are Dr. Julia Letheld Hahn, Mrs. Janie Hilder and Mrs. Ruth Kincer Webb, of the university faculty.

Dr. Hahn, supervising principal of elementary schools in the third division, is now on leave of absence, working on informative exchange in education in national defense at the Office of Education. She directs doctors' theses in her field at the university and will go to the University of California to teach at the summer session. Dr. Hahn is also author of the widely used series of books, "Child Development Readers."

Mrs. Hilder is supervisor of remedial reading in the fifth division of public schools and teaches that subject at George Washington. She formerly conducted experimental work as counselor of character education at Cook School. This summer she will teach at the University of Oregon.

Mrs. Webb, formerly administrative principal at Addison-Curtis-Hyde Elementary School, is now principal of the demonstration school conducted by Wilson Teachers' College. She has taught supervision and administration at George Washington University and, this summer, will conduct a course in the philosophy of education and a demonstration school. She was chairman of the cooperative spring conference of educators this year and of the Middle States Regional Conference on Progressive Education last year.

New officers to be installed are Miss Agnes Peltz, president; Miss Eleanor Garner, vice president; Mrs. Sam Houston, corresponding secretary; Miss Emily Allen, keeper of records, and Mrs. Leo Nielson, treasurer.

MOUNT HOLYOKE CLUB—Mrs. Charles Irving Brown has been elected to head the Mount Holyoke Club for the coming year. Other new officers who will serve with her include Miss Helen Goodner, first vice-president; Miss Eleanor Neill, second vice-president; Miss Dorothy Dyar, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur F. Beal, recording secretary, and Miss Jean Benton, treasurer.

New Officers Elected By Hope Auxiliary

The Washington Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Sanatorium, known as the City of Hope, has installed officers for the coming year.

They are: President, Mrs. Benjamin Brill; first vice president, Mrs. Herman S. Hoffman; second vice president, Mrs. Herman Hertzberg.

President Asks 125 Million for Defense Roads

President Roosevelt recommended to Congress yesterday additional appropriations of $125,000,000 for special defense highway construction.

In a message to Congress the President proposed that $100,000,000 be authorized specifically for assisting in the development of access roads and $25,000,000 to strengthen bridges and widen services in key areas.

The message said that the Federal Works administrator soon would submit a draft of a bill authorizing the appropriations "and it is hoped that this matter may have early consideration."

The President's recommendations were based upon a survey by the Federal Works administrator of highway facilities from the viewpoint of national defense.

This survey related particularly "to the adequacy of ingress to and egress from urban centers, the servicing of existing and proposed Army, naval and air bases and the possible necessity for the strengthening of bridges and the widening of roads in strategic areas."

The survey, the President said, "indicated that there were 204 areas to which access roads and highway bridges in military, naval and industrial areas were of the utmost importance."

Since the survey was comoleted, he estimated that 100 additional areas had become involved and that "the over-all cost of providing these facilities will now reach a figure of $350,000,000."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the work thus far provided had been financed by the Works Projects Administration, by Federal-aid highway funds and by contributions of counties or States and that it was hoped that readjustments in highway programs might release additional funds for meeting in part the new requirements.

In many instances, the President said, it may be necessary for the Federal Government to bear the entire expense of these facilities "but local participation should be encouraged to the fullest possible extent."

He said that the Federal Works Agency had estimated that $458,000,000 would be required as a minimum for strengthening the entire strategic network of highways of more than 75,000 miles but that he believed "that no necessity exists for undertaking such an extensive program now."

Railman Loses Hand After Holdup-Assault

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., June 2.—Willis C. Pollock, 50, Ridgeway Terrace, is reported improving at Allegany Hospital, where he submitted to amputation of his left arm below the wrist. According to the police, Pollock was slugged and robbed early Friday while engaged in his duties as conductor in the Baltimore & Ohio yards.

He had given a lantern signal to the engineer, several hundred feet away, when he was struck from behind. He fell forward and his left arm was cruched by the car wheels. His empty wallet from which $35 was extracted, was found near him.

What You Lose If Hitler Wins This War

It Is High Time You Knew What Will Happen to You, Your Family, Your Home, Your Business! Here Are the Plain Facts:

Your BREAD

How much of it could you buy (even if it were not rationed) if 72¢ out of every $1.00 you made had to go into expenditures for armaments, as in Germany today?

Your EARNINGS

You would have only 28% left to live on. Inflation would almost certainly cut the purchasing power of this still further. And savings, investments, insurance... gone with the wind!

Your SHOES

During the last war we had a brief taste of soaring prices and inferior substitutes. But "ersatz" on the fabulous Hitler scale is a permanent nightmare.

Your CHILD

How could you ever hope to send your son or daughter to college? Even aside from the financial problem, the nation's youth would always be bound in service to the state.

Your CAR

It would be jacked up for good if tires cost you $50.00 each, as they would in Hitler-controlled markets. And how often could you have a new car if even the cheapest cost $4,000?

Your CHURCH

If Hitler wins this war your losses will not be material only. His plans for world-wide domination call for the destruction of all religious life and teachings.

YOU have been told what a Hitler victory would mean to the freedoms that are the very breath of our American way of life.

You know in general that under Nazi rule you would no longer be free to speak your mind, to assemble with your neighbors, to worship as you choose, or to enjoy an un-bossed newspaper or radio station.

But NOW let's get down to dollars and cents.

The pictures on this page show a few samples of what you would have if Hitler sat in our saddle. They aren't merely pictures of what would happen if the Nazis invaded and conquered America. They are what would happen even if Hitler never even raised a finger against America — but got the upper hand (as so far he IS getting it) in the places America has to depend upon for its very life. If the freedom of the seas vanishes, the freedom and prosperity of America go with it!

Twenty-five cent loaves of bread, fifty-dollar tires on four-thousand-dollar automobiles, and two-hundred-dollar suits of clothes wouldn't be easy to buy. Particularly when 72¢ out of every dollar of your pay would have to be turned back to the government.

Yet prices like these are the thing we are squarely headed for unless we get this man Hitler accounted for—and do it fast.

Either We Win This War—Or We Lose Our Peace!

The materials which come to America from every part of the globe are vital to the life of our nation. Even a nation as great as America cannot isolate itself from the effects of depression, revolution or war in other parts of the world.

The first bill for our twenty-year case of indifference to this fact is 42 billion dollars. And we've only begun. Instead of the impending alarming increase in our taxes (from around 9 up to 12 billions a year), American taxpayers would have to pay about 60 billions a year if we lived in Hitler's world.

No—it's not "EUROPE'S Funeral" any more! It's OURS ... unless we ACT AT ONCE! And by "ours" is meant the man or woman who is earning $15 or $25 or $50 or $100 a week just as surely as the one who reads the financial page to see whether his next quarter's income will be boosted to $50,000 or cut to $5,000.

What Can We Do?

No matter how pure our ideals or noble our patriotism, we cannot divorce war from its costs. No matter whether we have to fight Hitler's military might or only his economic power, it will cost us a tremendous amount. It is high time you knew what that amount will be, and how it will affect you.

The answers are in this new book—PAX AMERICANA, the book that James H. R. Cromwell, former American Minister to Canada, has had the courage to write. Here is the unvarnished picture of what you, your family, your friends, your business associates, can look forward to—UNLESS you take the specific steps in this book to stop Hitler NOW!

This Book TELLS You

You want to know why the Nazis have been so fatally successful in the other vanquished democracies. This book tells you. What can we do NOW to stop the spreading cancer of Hitlerism? This book gives you the answer. How quickly can we get into action? — do we still have time? — is there any chance for ending this wholesale murder, and getting some sort of reliable peace in the world again? Mr. Cromwell gives you the facts, and he shows you—without passion or bias—how these facts can be marshalled to save our country and the freedom that embraces everything we stand for.

If you value the way of life this nation has taken 165 years to create ... if you want some hope of a world where you can walk abroad like a man instead of scurrying rabbit-like into a bomb shelter at every alarm ... if you want your children to face a better world than the caldron of hatred they have inherited so far ... this book was written for YOU!

THESE VITAL QUESTIONS DETERMINE YOUR ENTIRE FUTURE

They are answered in PAX AMERICANA

What are the 39 "Strategic Materials" and "Critical Materials" upon which America's life depends?

By what miracle can America hope to be spared the fate of the other democracies?

How far have we gone on the road that proved the death of France?

Why did the "war to end war" end in the peace to end peace?

What factor in our way of living may now prove our destruction unless quickly adjusted?

Which American cause of economic warfare has been called "the second greatest example of economic illiteracy in all history"?

How true are the tales of Nazi economic miracles?

Why did Hitler HAVE to start this war Sept. 1st, 1939?

How does a TOTAL war economy operate?

How long could we hold our South American trade if Hitler wins?

Can America really maintain the freedom of the seas?

Should we remain on the defensive, or take the offensive?

What changes will this war inevitably make in our way of life?

Is there hope of solving the problem of unemployment?

Read This Book—Without Obligation

Every true American who reads PAX AMERICANA will see more clearly the job that lies ahead of him. In our opinion, the facts and figures so far released have not made that job sufficiently clear.

NOT ONE AMERICAN IN TEN today realizes what we are up against; what we will lose if we keep on the path we so far have trod; what we have to do, and do fast, if we expect to come out of this mess as an independent and decent land—instead of a truckling, half-starved, enslaved and impotent suburb of a domineering Berlin.

We want every real American to read PAX AMERICANA. So certain are we of the importance of this book to you that we are willing to take the risk. If it is not everything that we represent it to be, return it to us and we will instantly refund your money.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday suggested indirectly that the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance be moved out of Washington. The bureau is in the Social Security Board and it has more than 1,400 of its employes here. However, it was learned from an official of the Social Security Board that the board itself has under consideration a plan to consolidate the bureau's offices located in Washington and Baltimore in another city. The fact is that the bureau requested the House committee for authority to negotiate leases for office space outside the District for periods of 5 years with the merger thought in mind.

Strange to say, the committee refused to recommend the 5-year lease clause, a necessary device if the board is to decentralize. The committee then recommended that decentralization be studied, which contradicts the committee's action in refusing the board authority to rent property for a long period outside the District.

"The bureau," the committee report said, "is a completely integrated unit of operation and one that can very well be decentralized and operated in Washington or Baltimore. At present, the bureau is operating in Baltimore and is unable to find space for the expanding activities of the bureau. The committee is of the opinion that the board should survey other cities for the purpose of locating a place where this unit of Government can move and be assured not alone of building facilities sufficient for the operation of the office, but also adequate and reasonably priced housing facilities for the employes.

"The defense program," the report explained, "has projected a very serious housing situation in Washington and everything possible must be done to decentralize Government activities and have them established in areas outside the confines of Washington in cases where there will be no impairment in productive or efficiency factors as a result of such decentralization. The Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance," the report concluded, "lends itself to this possibility of decentralization."

The bureau has 8,900 employes. In Washington are 1,400, in Baltimore are 4,200, and 3,300 are located in field offices. The committee recommended funds to hire 268 new employes of which 223 would be in Washington. The work of the bureau will increase and additional help will be needed for some time to come. The bureau would like to merge its Washington and Baltimore offices. Officials say a better and faster job could be done in handling claims.

The transfer to Baltimore a few years ago was a temporary proposition until a new building could be constructed here. The building has been built but before the 4,200 employes could be moved in OPM and the War Department took it over. The bureau now has about given up hope of getting adequate space in Washington for the next half a dozen years. That's why it's looking elsewhere. Officials also say they can't get space in Baltimore to move the 1,400 Washington employes. The offices in Baltimore are so cramped that the 4,200 workers have to work on a two-shift basis.

The House committee, in reporting the Labor-Federal Security Appropriation Bill, also recommended consolidation of the Wage and Hour Division, and the Division of Public Contracts which is charged with enforcement of the Walsh-Healy Act. The committee said the merger would result in "economies in administration." The Division of Public Contracts would be able to hire nine additional inspectors and two more clerks under the 1942 appropriation approved by the committee. Wage and Hour Division, however, was cut $750,000, with which it wanted to hire 140 additional inspectors. Some of the inspectors already have been fired.

National Youth Administration would not be permitted to bring its employes under Civil Service by the Ramspeck Act under a rider the House Appropriations Committee attached to its appropriation bill. The rider prohibits payment of salaries to NYA employes brought under the merit system. The committee said it considered NYA a "temporary" agency. NYA has recommended to the Civil Service Commission that 2,800 of its jobs be brought under the merit system on July 1.

Missionary Reported Safe

RETURNING TO AMERICA JUNE 27—Relatives yesterday received word from the State Department that the Rev. Gaither P. Warfield, 46, of Rockville, Md., and his Polish wife and adopted daughter are safe in Lisbon, Portugal. They plan to leave for America on June 27, Dr. R. C. Warfield, his father, was informed. Warfield, a retired Rockville dentist, who will cefebrate his eightieth birthday anniversary June 15, said, "the news is like a birthday present." The Rev. Mr. Warfield had been connected with the Methodist Missions in Warsaw and had been unreported for several months

Bacon Indicted In Alexandria Traffic Death

William H. Bacon, jr., Arlington contractor, was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Alexandria yesterday on a charge of manslaughter resulting from the death of John A. Clapdore, Alexandria fireman, who was killed on the Mount Vernon Memorial Boulevard last November by Bacon's auto.

The trial was originally set for today, but was postponed indefinitely at the request of Bacon's attorney, Walter I. Young. Young said the manslaughter indictment "came as a complete surprise," since Bacon originally was charged with reckless driving and failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

Killed Instantly

Clapdore was killed instantly near the intersection of the Memorial Boulevard and Belle Haven Road by an auto which failed to stop. An hour later, however, Bacon appeared at Alexandria police headquarters and gave himself up.

The indictment was one of 15 returned by the Federal jury.

The grand jury also returned a true bill against Robert Scism, of Fairfax, who was charged with evading the Selective Service Act through his "wilful failure" to register for draft duty last October.

Other Indictments

Other indictments were returned as follows: John Tardiff, reckless driving, speeding and failure to stop at the scene of an accident; Hurley Jones and John W. Warring, escape from a Federal prison; Carroll A. Johnson, theft of Government property; Kenneth Goode, reckless driving and failure to stop at the scene of an accident; George L. Ennis, Minor R. Garver and Neil Ennis, possession of an unregistered still, illegal manufacture of whisky and operating an unbonded distillery; Lawrence Denoyer, theft of Government property; Milton E. Brown, receiving stolen Government property; Woodrow W. Cornwell, transporation of untaxed liquor; Soloman A. M. Landers and George R. Peele, illegal sale of liquor on a Government reservation; Stewart W. Freyberger, Albert V. Hamm, jr., Howard Acton Jur, and Royal J. Ievis, transporting a stolen auto across a State line.

A petit jury which convened in the afternoon disposed of three cases involving defendants previously indicted. Joseph Mills, charged with the manufacture of unlicensed liquor, was sentenced to one year and a day in prison; John Prendergast was sentenced to three months for simple assault on Government property, and John C. Wooley was sentenced to a year and a day following his conviction on a charge of sodomy.

Akers and Matre In Montgomery Federation Race

A spirited contest for the presidency of the Montgomery County, Md., Civic Federation, at its meeting Monday night, was presaged by the nominations releasedby the nominating committee yesterday.

Four members of the nominating committee have presented the name o tRichard H. Akers, of Edgemoor, for president, while a minority of three members has presented the name of Joseph B. Matre, of North Woodside-Montgomery Hills.

O. M. Kile, the present incumbent, is fro mthe western side of thhe county, and it has been the custom to alternate as much as possible between the two suburban areas. Akers is from the western side and Matre from the eastern, or Silver Spring area.

Other nominations were unanimous, as follows:

Other nominations were unanimous as follows: Walter C. DeGroot, East Silver Valley Citizens Association, recording secretary; Courtland E. Townsend, Greater Kensington Civic League, corresponding secretary; William B. Horne, Town of Somerset, treasurer, and Allen H. Gardner, Woodside Park; James D. King, Montgomery County Farm Bureau; Carey E. Quinn, Battery Park, and Clarence N. Smith, of Silver Park Hills, members of the executive committee.

Hobby Show Slated

Leonardtown, Md., June 2.—Students and teachers of St. Paul's Church School will give a hobby show June 7 in Prince Frederick.

Women Urged To Help in War Of Production

Women were urged to help Create public opinion to "Win the Battle of Production" yesterday by Miss Constance Roach, secretary of organization for the National League of Women Voters, in an address before the Montgomery County, Md., league at the Bethesda Women's Club, Sonoma Road.

"The government can't do it alone," she said, "as it takes sacrifices from all the elements: management, labor, the public and government itself.

"Our way of life is theatened. It is worth protecting." Miss Roach emphasized. "The way to protect it is by mobilizing our enormous industrial and human strength."

Pamphlets Available

Pamphlets on the A. B. C.'s of production and other literature on defense production will be available at the county headquarters in Rockville, it was announced. Mrs. Samuel B. Bledsoe was appointed chairman of publicity for the league's campaign.

Mrs. Minnier Hostetler, retiring president of the county group and president of the Maryland League, in announcing that the campaign will be a State-wide project, said "the most important thing in life today to us is our kind of government."

The replacement of a supervisor of school property by an assistant superintendent of schools for Montgomery County is urged in a resolution adopted by the league at its business session held in the morning.

Mrs. Morehouse Elected

Introduced by Mrs. Frederic P. Lee, chairman of the study group on education, the resolution also asks that the school system be taken "out of politics." Under the present system the supervisor of school property may appoint janitors and bus drivers.

The Brookings Institute report on county government made this recommendation. The league, however, has been studying the subject for many months.

Officers eyected yesterday are as follows. Mrs. PGad Bryan Morehouse, Silver Spring, president; Mrs. William C. Bowles, first vice president; Mrs. Edward M. Willis, second vice president; Mrs. Floyd Rothballer, recording secretary; Mrs. John F. Williams, jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Francis B. Leech, treasurer; Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, parliamentarian, and Mrs. George Young, Mrs. Clarence I. Hendrickson and Mrs. Gardner Jackson, directors.

Woman Embezzler Starts Jail Term After Child-Birth

Baltimore, June 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Margaret Fields, former cashier of the Savings Bank of Nanticoke, Wicomico County, today began a two-year sentence which was delayed for six months while she awaited the birth of a child.

The sentence was reaffirmed in Federal court when Judge W. Calvin Chestnut refused to modify or suspend the prison term imposed last November 20. Mrs. Fields pleaded guilty at her trial and Judge Chestnut delayed start of the sentence until June 1.

Mrs. Fields' attorney, Simon Sobeloff, told the court that the defendant's baby had been born in April, but had fived only a day.

In reaffirming the sentence, the judge said: "My reports show me that there was a defalcation of nearly $20,000 without any extenuating circumstances, and I feel that the sentence is as lenient as I could make it."

Adult Classes Plan Outing on June 14

Luray, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—Members of adult education classes in the seven Shanandoah National Park homesteads in Rappahannock, Page, Greene and Madison Counties will hold their first annual picnic and field day at Madison Courthouse June 14.

Chester Hough, homesteads project manager, said it would be 'an all-day affair" with a few short speeches.

Montgomery Hearing Set On Budget

$3,399,451 Proposed Outlay for 1941-42 Is a $549,859 Rise Over Last Year's

Public hearing on a proposed budget for Montgomery County, Md., will be held June 16 at 7:30 p. m. in the courthouse at Rockville, Md., the Montgomery County Commissioners announced yesterday. The Commissioners reviewed the proposed items and authorized photographic copies of the budget to be made for distribution to interested civic and business leaders prior to the hearing. It is expected the copies will be available within a few days at the office of Richard H. Lansdale, clerk to the board, at Rockville.

Following the public hearing the Commissioners will review the recommendations made by the citizens and then will complete the budget and sign the annual levy. The commissioners are not bound by the recommendations of the department heads nor the county accountant but may revise the budget in any manner they deem best for the welfare of the county. The estimates have been prepared by County Comptroller Alexander K. Hancock from the requests of department heads after taking into consideration the policies of the board in that the comptroller has provided for capital outlay for schools and construction of the Poolesville-White's Ferry road out of revenues. "We have further taken into consideration the desire of the Board of County Commissioners to reduce by approximately $200,000 each year the net outstanding debt of the county," Hancock reported.

Suggested estimates of department heads totalled $3,615,025.77 but these were reduced $216,174.10, leaving the proposed outlay for the fiscal year 1941-42 a total of $3,399,451.67. The proposed budget is an increase of $549,859.42 more than the 1940-41 budget.

Md. Farmers' Vote Favors Wheat Quota

Maryland farmers returned a favorable vote Saturday on the Agriculture Department's proposal to establish market quotas on this year's wheat crop, according to unofficial results released yesterday by the State executive office of the AAA.

The vote, which was part of a Nation-wide referendum, indicated 77.6 per cent of the Maryland farmers who cast ballots were in favor of a controled wheat market. Out of 11,609 farmers eligible to vote, 2,812 participated in the referendum.

In Prince Georges County, 13 farmers out of a possible 100 voted. Nine were in favor of market quotas and six against. Voting was held in the county agricultural agent's office in Upper Marlboro and at the Mitchelville postoffice.

Montgomery County farmers voted 287 for and 45 against. Eight hundred were eligible to vote.

It was announced that 50 voters in various parts of Maryland have been challenged. Results will not be official until these votes have been cnecked.

Boy, 5, Hit by Car, Dies in Hospital

Five-year-old John Lee, Brentwood, Md., died early yesterday at Casualty Hospital from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile near his home Sunday. The child was hit while returning from a neighborhood store where he had bought a candy sucker. It was found clenched in his teeth after the accident and rescue squad men had difficulty in removing it.

Prince Georges County police last night placed a manslaughter charge against Oscar Link, 19, of Hyattsville, driver of the car which struck the child. Link was released on $500 bond pending a hearing.

Two Are Train Victims In Alleghany County

Covington, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—Two men were killed by trains in Alleghany County over the weekend. Ernest Allen, 39, employe of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, died in the hospital at Clifton Forge this morning from injuries sustained last night at Iron Gate when he was struck by a freight train.

The body of a man identified as Ashby Hoken, of Ronceverte, W. Va., was found on the C. & O. tracks at Mallow Sunday. Sheriff J. W. Meeks said he had apparently fallen from a freight train.

Buckingham Business Area Is Picketed

The business section of Buckingham Communities in Arlington, Va., was picketed yesterday by some 50 laborers who went on strike for higher wages, longer vacations and sick leave.

The walkout was called early yesterday by the Laborers District Council, Alexandria, an affiliate of the A. F. L., after the management of the apartment development had declined to act on a proposed agreement submitted a month ago by union representatives.

Painters, porters and yardmen joined the picket lines. The strike caused a delay in trash and garbage collections.

The picketing was orderly except for a minor clash between a picket and a non-union employe. Arlington police were summoned to patrol the area in scout cars.

Willy Arnheim, representative of the Laborers Council, said porters and yardmen had asked for $100 a month, a raise of $35, and that painters had asked for $135, also an increase of $35.

Other demands include ten-day vacations with pay, instead of a week and ten days' sick leave.

Harry A. Shubin, attorney, issued the following statement in behalf of the management:

"We have always paid higher wages under better working conditions than any other large scale apartment development in the Washington and Virginia area. This strike is entirely unjustified."

The Buckingham Civic Association, an organization representing tenants of the apartment project, last night adopted a resolution expressing sympathy "with the position of the striking employes." It called upon the management to meet and bargain collectively with representatives of the employes.

Equipment Ordered To Light Lee Boulevard

The Interior Department yesterday notified Arlington County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan that equipment had been ordered for lighting Lee Boulevard from the timber trestle to the Memorial Bridge.

Irving C. Root, superintendent of the National Park and Planning Commissio, said the Potomac Electric Power Co. would istall the lights as soon as the equipment is received. The delivery date, he added, was uncertain because of the demands of the defense program.

Virginians Slow In Volunteering As Plane Spotters

Richmond, Va., June 2 (A.P.).—State defense officials reported tonight that enrollment of aircraft warning service volunteers to man "filter centers" in Richmond and Roanoke and the State information center at Norfolk got off to a disappointingly slow start today.

Here in Richmond the four registration places opened, but only a trickle of volunteers reported during the day. A total of 650 volunteers are needed to man the three nerve centers in the potentially important warning service.

On the other hand, officials said the work of organizing 1,139 observation posts, each to be manned by 16 observers, went forward rapidly. Capt. W. Glenn Elliott, State director, reported that 75 per cent of the 1,139 chief observers needed had been enrolled.

Tonight practically all American Legion posts in the State arranged meetings to offer assistance in organization of the service, acting at the suggestion of T. E. Warriner, commander of the Department of Virginia. Commanders of all other State-wide veterans' organizations have been asked to hold similar meetings during the week.

75 Citizens Get Papers In Alexandria

The United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia at Alexandria welcomed 73 new citizens yesterday, as naturalization papers were granted foreign-born petitioners representing 25 nations, at a hearing conducted by Judge Robert N. Pollard. The petitioners represented the largest group ever to appear for citizenship papers at the court in a single day.

Following the mass oath of allegiance to the United States, the new citizens were welcomed by representatives of the Dr. Elisha Dick Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Alexandria Lions Club, who presented a brief patriotic program through the special permission of the court.

The Rev. Edward E. Tate, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, told the petitioners: "You are about to enter a way of life that is in vivid contrast to most of the nations in the world today."

On behalf of the Lions Club, President Charles M. Jones welcomed the new citizens to this Nation, and admonished them "never to shirk your duties or abuse the new-found privileges you have gained."

Others participating in the program were the Rev. Joseph Leitch, of St. Mary's Catholic Church; Rabbi Hugo Schiff, of Temple Beth-El; Mrs. Orlando Kirk, regent of the Dr. Dick chapter; Mrs. Dabney Waring, D. A. R. chairman on Americanism, and representatives of Alexandria Boy and Girl Scout troops.

200-Home Contract Let In Alexandria

Development Will Provide Housing For Civilian Aides At Fort Belvoir

ALEXANDRIA BUREAU OF THE POST
Telephone, TEmple 2266.

Officials of the Alexandria Housing Authority disclosed yesterday they have been notified of Federal approval of a contract to be awarded the Dyker Building Co., of New York City, for construction of a 200-home low-cost housing development for civilian personnel at Fort Belvoir, to be erected under the direction of the Alexandria authority on Duke Street extended. The New York concern was low bidder on the project two weeks ago, and had been recommended by the Alexandria agency for the contract, according to Director R. S. Marshall.

Award of the contract was approved by the Federal Works Agency and the United States Housing Authority after negotiations which resulted in a reduction of the Dyker company's bid from $699,500 to $658,743, it was announced.

The development occupies a 40-acre tract lying between Duke Street extended of the College Park subdivision, about 1 mile inside Alexandria's western boundary line.

Sullivan Files For Reelection

Roger C. Sullivan, Alexandria City treasurer, yesterday filed formal notice of his intention to seek reelection in the Democratic primary and the general election in August with Chairman R. Samuel Luckett, of the City Democratic Committee. All Democratic candidates are required by law to file with the committee no later than midnight Thursday.

Twelve Democratic committeemen will be elected in the primary, while nominees for six State offices also will be selected.

Lou Gehrig Dies of Spinal Ailment

Yankee Star Passes Away At 37; Wife At Bedside

Baseball's Famous 'Iron Horse' Played 2,130 Consecutive Games in 14 Years

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—Lou Gehrig, great first baseman of the New York Yankees for 14 years, died tonight after two years' illness of a rare disease that everyone except himself believed incurable.

The "iron horse" of baseball, who would have been 38 years old June 19, passed away at his home in the presence of his wife after a critical span of only three weeks. He did not lose consciousness until just before death at 9:10 p. m. (E. S. T.).

The disease which erased Gehrig from the line-up of the mighty Yankees on May 2, 1939, was diagnosed as "amyotrophic lateral sclerosis," a hardening of the spinal cord which caused muscles to shrivel.

Barely Able to Speak

He wasted away sharply in the final weeks and was reported 25 pounds underweight and barely able to speak shortly before he died.

He had served for a year and a half as a member of the New York city parole commission and visited his office rgularly until about a month ago, when he decided to remain at home to conserve his energy.

In his playing days Gehrig was one of baseball's greatest stars, but was most famous for his great physical feat in playing 2,130 consecutive regularly scheduled American League games in 14 years.

He twice was chosen the most valuable player in the league and over a year ago was voted a place in baseball's hall of fame, joining a score of the game's immortals.

Always Had Hope

He participated in 34 World Series games and piled up numerous batting records of various kinds.

Through all the years Gehrig was known for his clean habits and affable disposition and these factors made him one of baseball's best beloved players.

They also helped him stand off the ravages of his disease after others had given up hope.

Gehrig refused to believe that his disease was incurable and as long as possible maintained a normal routine.

Lou Was Spectator

He had withdrawn voluntarily from the line-up in the spring of 1939 because he was in a slump. At that time no one realized he was ill. But after benching himself while the club was in Detroit, Gehrig went to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., where the nature of his trouble was learned.

A treatment of daily injections was prescribed and followed faithfully for two years. Gehrig remained with the ball club for the remainder of the 1939 season, sitting in a far corner of the dugout and occasionally limping out to home plate to present the line-up to the umpires, but never taking part in another game.

The Yankees won their fourth straight world championship that fall, but Gehrig for the first time in his career with the club was a mere spectator.

Lou Gehrig was synonomous with durability, clean living and clean play in baseball.

During his sixteen seasons other players came and went, but he was the "Iron Horse," an institution as unfaltering as time itself.

Over a period of 14 years he appeared in every game the New York Yankees played—American League, World Series, Spring training or exhibition—and it was because of this incomparable record that his voluntary withdrawal from the lineup May 2, 1939 was so dramatic and the subsequent discovery that he was suffering from amyothropic lateral sclerosis.

A Part of New York

The rare disease was described as hardening of the spinal cord which causes muscles to shrivel.

A pall was cast over the sports world and the fact that his team continued on its orderly course to a fourth consecutive world championship had no effect on the opinion of most fans that his forced retirement ended an historic era in baseball.

He was a holdover from the halcyon days of Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, Frank Frisch and the other heroes.

He was as much a part of New York as Central Park. Born in Manhattan June 19, 1903, he grew up in and with the metropolis. As a high school athlete he atteined

Cards Halt Brooklyn's 9-Game Streak

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 2.—The hustling St. Louis Cardinals regained exclusive possession of the National League lead today with a 5-to-4 triumph that ended the Brooklyn Dodgers' nine-game winning streak.

The Redbirds also snapped their own three-game streak of losses and accomplished their aim with enough authority to convince a ladies day crowd of 28,281, even though the Dodgers put up a game battle and had what might have been the tying run on base in the ninth.

The Cards gained control of the game with three runs in the fifth inning and after the Dodgers exerted all their energy to tie the count in the eighth, St. Louis shoved across the deciding run in the first of the ninth. Johnny Hopp simply slammed a triple against the fence in right field and raced home after a short fly to left by Jim Brown.

Homers Start

A home run opened the run making for each team. Joe Medwick, of the Dodgers, connected for his seventh of the season in the second inning and Frank (Creepy) Crespi retaliated with a four-master in the fourth. The Dodgers loaded the bases on a single and two walks in their half of the same inning and got one run on Pitcher Kemp Wicker's single.

The Brooklyn's went to pieces in the fifth. Gus Mancuso opened with a single, was sacrificed to second, and scored on a double into the right field corner by Hopp. Brown followed with a single to center, scoring Hopp and Brown went all the way to third as Center Fielder Pete Reiser made a wild throw home. Mace Brown was summoned from the bullpen and his first throw was a wild pitch scoring Brown.

Harry Lavagetto tripled to start the Dodgers' eighth inning rally and loped home after a tremendous fly by Medwick. Joe Vosmik singled and was replaced by a pinch runner, Jim Wasdell. Two walks filled the bases and Wasdell scored on an infield out.

St. Louis used three pitchers, the veteran Clyde Shoun taking credit for the victory, while Curt Davis, a former Cardinal, was the fourth and losing hurler for the Dodgers.

Feller Wins 11th, Tribe Regains League Lead

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 2.—Bobby Feller, whose strong right arm was instrumental in keeping the Cleveland Indians on top of the American League for so long, pitched them back into first place today with a 7-to-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

This triumph, coupled with Chicago's loss to Washington, gave the Tribe a game and a half margin in first place over the White Sox, who held the top by 1 percentage point yesterday.

Feller registered his eleventh victory of the season and his sixth in succession, although his streak of scoreless hurling was ruined in the second inning after he had extended it to 30 successive innings by setting the Yanks down in the first. He went on, however, to pitch a seven-hit game, strike out six Yankees and end the Tribe's latest losing streak after four straight.

Southpaw Marius Russo was the victim of all the Indians' scoring, being driven to the showers in the sixth inning when Jeff Heath's tenth home run of the season capped Cleveland's third two-run scoring burst. Tommy Henrich accounted for three Yankee tallies with his sixth and seventh circuit blasts.

Cleveland scored its first pair of runs in the opening inning on singles by Roy Weatherly and Gee Walker, plus Joe Gordon's error and an infield out. Joe DiMaggio, hitting safely in his nineteenth consecutive game, opened the Yanks' second with a single and scored on

Nats Win, 8-3, Push Chicago From Lead

Sundra's Hurling Stops Leaders; Travis Ends Hitless Streak

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, June 2.—An excellent report is available on the Nats this afternoon. They won another ball game, in a thoroughly skillful way and were quite unrecognizable as the club that had moved into the West towing a 12-game losing streak. They slapped down the White Sox, 8 to 3, and hauled Chicago out of the league lead.

Big Steve Sundra suddenly recaptured his effectiveness today and did a clever job of it in keeping the Nats in the ball game until they could start mustering some runs for themselves. Eventually, they unloaded 13 hits against the Chicago pitching. Sundra held the White Sox to one run until a flurry in the ninth netted them a pair.

Nats Rout Dietrich

The Nats knocked Bill Dietrich, one of Jimmy Dykes' prize performers, out of the box in less than seven innings and cuffed his successor, Buck Ross, with some violence also. They scored in four consecutive innings, winding up their attack with a three-run uprising in the eighth.

It was a notable afternoon for Cecil Travis, because in the seventh inning he made a hit to check a hitless streak of 20 times at bat which had extended into four games. But the batting heroes of the day for the Nats were Jake Early, who crashed out a pair of two-baggers, Sundra himself, who stuck two important singles into the proceedings, and Mickey Vernon, whose two hits figured in four Washington runs.

Joe Kuhel hit a third-inning homer that barely dropped into the right-field bleachers and that produced the only run of the ball game until the fifth inning when the Nats started to get tough with Dietrich.

They tied the score at 1-1 in the fifth after Buddy Myer opened the inning with a double to center. To that point, the Nats had only three hits off Dietrich and all of them were doubles, so Jake Early maintained the general theme by banging a two-bagger into right field to score Myer.

The Nats produced two runs on only two hits in the sixth to take a 3-1 lead. Cramer opened the inning with a single and moved to third when Vernon singled to right with one out. Myer grounded to Appling and Cramer scored when Appling's throw to the plate sailed over Catcher Mike Tresh's head.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, June 2.—There seems to have been some mistake about one phase of this American League pennant race. One point that never was debated much was the belief that Cleveland owns the superior pitching. Now it has been suddenly discovered that that is a popular fallacy. Cleveland doesn't own the league's best pitching. The Chicago White Sox do.

POVICH

We don't mean to bore you with figures, but as of today Jimmy Dykes' pitching, unaided by any such brilliant infield defense as the Indians own, has been eclipsing the Cleveland pitchers by a wide margin. In 48 games, Cleveland pitchers have started and finished only 18. Dykes' pitchers, in five fewer games have gone the full route 32 times. One of the standards for gauging the effectiveness of a pitcher long has been his ability to finish what he started.

There is more than a shred of evidence that the Cleveland pitching staff is composed of Bob Feller and a lot of other guys who are no balls of fire. Of the 18 times that a Cleveland pitcher has gone the route, Feller has been that man ten times. That reduces the record of the other Cleveland pitchers to eight complete games in 38 attempts which can not be construed as a hot record.

Dykes' pitchers—Teddy Lyons, Johnny Rigney, Bill Dietrich and Thornton Lee—merit a special sort of credit, inasmuch as they have been pitching winning ball for a club that has neither the power nor the defensive skill of the Indians. They have been getting few runs to work with, what with the White Sox last in team-batting with a mere .234 average, and nobody could accuse the Chicago infield of being a great comfort to any pitcher, in contrast to Cleveland's hit-wrecking crew of infielders.

Dykes freely waives all credit to himself for the success of the Chicago pitching and modestly points to a prematurely gray little fellow on his coaching staff when the talks turns to the Sox' success with pitchers. "There's the guy who knows more about my pitching staff than I do—Muddy Ruel," says Dykes. "He puts this pitching staff together."

Ruel was snatched up by Dykes in 1934 when the Browns gave him his unconditional release. Dykes had recently been named manager of the White Sox and he made no claim to being a pitching strategist. "I was an infielder all my life and I wanted a coach who knew something about pitchers, so I grabbed Ruel. One of the best deals we made didn't cost the club a dime."

The White Sox manager leans almost completely on Ruel in pitching matters. Dykes pulls the strings on his pitchers during a ball game, but Ruel tells him what the state of pitching affairs is before every series and on Ruel's word Dykes maps his pitching program.

Ruel is no unfamiliar name to Washington fans, of course. It was his genius behind the plate that was a powerful factor in Washington's pennant triumphs of 1924-1925. Incongruously small as big league catchers went, Ruel was one of the best of his time, and the fact is that the Washington catching has not been in such capable hands since.

The wonders that have been worked with the Chicago pitching staff are the more amazing inasmuch as Dykes and Ruel hurdled one of the worst setbacks that ever befell any club. That was when Monte Stratton, fast winning recognition as one of the standout pitchers of the league, shot off his right leg in a hunting accident and ended his pitching career. Within two years after losing their best pitcher, the Sox have reassembled the league's best staff.

Roger Cramer's embarrassing moment of the other day when First Baseman Joe Kuhel pulled the moth-eaten hidden ball trick on him at first base gives this department excuse to drag out our pet hidden-ball story.

Rabbit Maranville was the victim of that one, to his great chagrin, back in 1932 when he was playing with the St. Louis Cardinals. He was nearing the 20-year mark in the big leagues and had often pulled the trick himself but never was a victim of it. He was inconsolable at his own stupidity and was a very dejected guy at dinner in his hotel that night.

Maranville was dining with the hotel manager who was ostensibly trying to cheer him up. "Never mind what happened this afternoon, Rabbit," his host told him. "Try some of our ice cream for dessert, you'll like it." A heaping plate of ice cream was ordered by Maranville who was chatting somewhat more gayly while consuming same, until his spoon felt something unyielding. It was a hidden baseball, buried in the dessert.

Texan Favored to Win National Open Tourney

By the United Press

Fort Worth, Tex., June 2.—Texans, who have enjoyed pitting their own against the field ever since they took on Santa Anna at the Alamo, believed that a native son is a shoo-in for the National Open Golf Championship which starts Thursday over the Colonial Club course.

Betting commissioners, who never let their hearts rule their heads while turning a few dollars, agree with the Texans.

The two home-town boys—Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan—who moved out of the caddy ranks into golfdom's first ten, are being held at the extremely short odds of 5 to 1. Hogan, last year's leading money-winner and heading the cash brigade this season and Nelson, winner of the Open two years ago, both believe the odds are too short.

Anything Can Happen

"No one was ever that sure of winning the Open since Bobby Jones steppe dout of the picture," Nelson said. "I'm hitting my shots well and my putter is working nicely, but in golf you never know what will happen. When I won the Open I couldn't get going the first round and I ended up playing the best game of my life."

Hogan, the little fellow who gets tremendous distance off the tee, said anyone who had watched him play recently certainly shouldn't be betting on him.

"My game's sour and I haven't been able to work it out," he said today while hitting practice irons. "I can't let out with my woods without losing control. Those fellows are just after the folks' money when they put me down at those odds."

Lou Gehrig Began 'Iron Man' Stand On June 2, 1925

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, June 2.—On the sixteenth anniversary of the start of the career that made him one of baseball's immortals, Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees' "Iron Horse," came to the end of the trail today, victim of the disease he alone had confidence of overcoming.

It was June 2, 1925, that big Lou first was assigned to first base to play a full game for the New York Yankees. From that day until illness forced his retirement in 1939. From that day until illness forced his retirement in 1939, Gehrig never missed a game—compiling the amazing streak of 2,130 that gave him his famous nickname.

Lou had gone to bat for the Yankees on June 1 as a pinch-hitter, and the following day Miller Huggins juggled the line-up in a move that sent Lou to first base in place of Wally Pipp. Lou had never left the assignment until his retirement.

Baseball Leaders Deeply Shocked At Gehrig's Death

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 2.—William Harridge, president of the American League, expressed deep regret tonight at the death of Lou Gehrig, one of baseball's greatest stars.

"The passing of Lou Gehrig," said Mr. Harridge, "has removed from baseball one of its most beloved and outstanding players. His conduct and sportsmanship on and off the playing field will remain an everlasting monument to his memory.

"We in the American League are shocked at his untimely death."

Warren C. Giles, general manager of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, paid tribute to Lou Gehrig with the simple statement: "He was a great, great guy."

Ex-Hawaiian Player Tops Fied of 105

Mrs. Meckley, Stokes, Davy, Pray Post 86's; Mrs. Neblett, Simons Tie With Scores of 88

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Mrs. Thomas O. Brandon, a three-time finalist in the Hawaiian Womens' championship who has been playing here less than a year, posted an 85 for medal honors in the District Women's Tournament yesterday at Manor as scores soared without reason and 86s made the first 16.

Mrs. Brandon, representing the Columbia Country Club, played in consistent fashion with nine of 43 and 42 for the best score of the field of 105. The course was heavy from a night of rain but was in perfect scoring condition and the players could not figure how the medal was won with a score seven shots higher than last year and totals eight shots higher made in the championship flight.

Score Breaks Four-Way Tie

Mrs. Brandon's 85 was just in time to break a four-way medal tie between a quartet of the tourney co-favorites who were locked with 86s; Mrs. Betty Meckley, a former champion; Mrs. Stokes, the Maryland titlist; Mrs. L. G. Pray, the host club champion, and Mrs. Myron Davy, whose out nine of 40 was best of the day.

The mystery contender in the championship bracket, Mrs. T. F. Neblett, late of New Orleans, was extremely disappointed with an 88, which qualified with ease, but was ten or more shots off her practice round pace of the past two weeks. Mrs. Neblett, who holds numerous Southern titles, played the back nine first in 43 and then took 45 on the woods nine.

Mrs. Thomas Wins Playoff

Mrs. Woodlief Thomas, a member of the leading Kenwood team in the first team matches, won a playoff for the second time in two years for the sixteenth berth in the first flight. Mrs. Thomas, Jerry Weible, the American U. co-ed, playing one of her first rounds of the year and Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional, were tied with 98s but Mrs. Knox withdrew and Mrs. Thomas won the place on the first hole with a 5 as Miss Weible was trapped in 3 and again in 4.

The medalist played just an average round of golf in posting the lowest score of the day. Mrs. Brandon's round included nothing spectacular, but on the other hand she escaped serious trouble. In addition to her trio of runner-up berths in the Hawaiian tournament Mrs. Brandon has held four club championships in California and the State of Washington in addition to the Service Women's Championship of Hawaii.

Mrs. Davy Finds Trouble

Mrs. Davy, out in 40, ran into a trio of three-putt greens on the return trip and took three from the edge of two others for a 46 coming back. Mrs. Pray was out in 42, but hit trouble and had a 44 on the second nine, while Mrs. Meckley encountered an eight on the ninth hole and Mrs. Stokes a seven on the second to knock them out of medal contention.

Mrs. H. J. Simons, of the host club, and Mrs. Neblett were next with 88's and Defending Champion Elizabeth Houghton was the only

Fisherman Loses Tackle, but Gets 71-Pound Turtle

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, June 2.—Postman G. B. Murdock was fishing in the Chattahoochee River when he sighted a giant snapping turtle, with a yell he dropped his pole in the water, grabbed the monster's tail. A more cautious companion ran and got a rifle, shot the quarry thrice through the head.

On a scale the huge turtle weighed 71 pounds. Said Murdock, unabashed by loss of his tackle: "with enough soup to feed my whole neighborhood, what could I do with fish, anyway?"

Navy, P. C. Qualify 2 Each In Net Tourney

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, June 2.—Players from Navy and Presbyterian College, of Clinton, S. SC., racked up two victories each today as the Third District Tennis Qualifying Tournament got under way.

Examination schedules prevented entrants from Georgetown, Vanderbilt and George Washington from reaching Annapolis. Matchmakers said they would attempt to work their matches later into the schedule which runs through Friday.

On the program tomorrow are the first appearances of Navy's Joe Hunt, seeded No. 1, who will take on Fayette White, of Presbyterian, and Robert Decker, of Miami University, seeded No. 2, who will meet Midshipman John Kloiter. Also scheduled are two other singles matches and opening doubles play.

Summary of play today:

White (Presbyterian) defeated Scherer (Navy), 7—5, 7—5.

Godfrey (Navy), defeated Burkom (University of Maryland), 6—2, 4—6, 8—6.

Kerdasha (Presbyterian), defeated Baugher (University of Maryland), 6—1, 6—2.

Wyatt (Navy), defeated Royal (University of Maryland), 6—3, 6—4.

Errickson Blanks Pirates For Braves, 2-0

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 2.—The Boston Braves scored their first shutout victory today when Dick Errickson whitewashed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 0.

Errickson, who lost his first five mound starts, was in fine form giving up only five hits, two of them doubles by Elbie Fletcher.

Gene Moore, returning after a brief rest on the bench, led the Braves' assault on Johnny Lanning with three hits—two of them doubles.

Sibby Sisti knocked in both Boston runs.

In the third, Moore opened with a triple. Berres walked. Moore was run down between third and home on Errickson's bounder to Lanning but Sisti drove in Berres with a hit.

The other run came in the seventh after Rowell and Moore singled. Rowell was forced at third, but singles by Errickson and Sisti brought home Moore.

Bannockburn Invite Draws Pitt, McAleer

Manor's crack amateur duo of Harry G. Pitt and Southpaw Earl McAleer sent in their entry for the Bannockburn Invitation Tournament esterday and furthered Pro Tony Sylvester's belief of the best field of the season for the two-man tournament starting Friday.

Other star amateur teams already entered include Beaver Dam's twosome of Volney Burnett and Eddie Bean, Columbia's 1940 medalists; George Miller and Martin F. McCarthy, the host club hopes; Billy Houghton and George Molloy, in addition to Ralph Bogart, District amateur champion, and Maury Fitzgerald, half of last year's winning team.

Entries close Thursday at noon at the Bannockburn Club. Friday's qualifying round will be followed by match play in all flights Saturday and Sunday. The entry fee is $10 per team which includes an entertainment program arranged by tournament officials.

Maryland State Pro-am Wednesday

girlsih, -ffu

The second of the Maryland State Golf Association's three-in-one tournaments will be held tomorrow at the Rolling Road Club, in Catonsville. Professionals will compete in a pro sweepstakes and pro-amateur with three partners while the simonpures will have the handicap event as a side attraction. Amateurs will be allotted half handicap allowance in the amateur pro.

The State association has mailed handouts in the twenty-first amateur championship, to be played June 20-221, inclusive, at the Suburban Club in Pikesville, Md. The entrance fee is $3.

Reservations Urged For Middle Atlantic

Dr. W. C. Barr, secretary of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, urges participants in the thirty-seventh Mid-Atlantic Amateur next week at Hot Springs, Va., to wire for reservations immediately as the Washington, Baltimore and Virginia visitors will more than likely tax the capacity of the hotels.

The first Senior's Tournament will be held in conjunction with the amateur for the W. W. Hinshaw trophy. The dates for both events are June 12-13-14-15, Thursday through Sunday of next week. Entries close June 10 at 2 p. m. with Dr. Barr at the Hot Springs Golf and Tennis Club.

More than 100 Washingtonians are planning to compete in the joint events.

W. Va. Trap Shoot Set Next Thursday

Special Dispatch to The Post

Keyser, W. Va., June 2.—Leading trapshooters from all sections of the State are expected here next Thursday for the opening of the twenty-ninth annual tournament of Meadow Lark Gun Club, Inc., under registration of the Amateur Trapshooting Association. E. H. (Ernie) Wolfe, Charleston, W. Va., who won the Grand American Handicap last August at Vandalia, Ohio, will be the guest of honor.

There will be events for non-residents in addition to West Virginia and other nearby States are expected to compete for more than 50 trophies and $300 in cash prizes.

Ohio State Triumphs

Columbus, Ohio, June 2 (AP).—Ohio State University combined three hits with two walks for a three-run third inning rally today to beat the University of California baseball nine, 4 to 1.

Come What May, the 'Darby' Is Britishers' Big Occasion

By Eddy Gilmore

Associated Press Staff Writer

Newmarket, England, June 2.—Here, far from London where Charles II started horse racing in the fifteenth century, the stage is being set ofr the daddy of races, the "Darby."

Originally scheduled June 6 at Newbury, the classic was switched here by the Jockey Club and the date changed to June 18. It was run here last year.

Despite the war, excitement is running high. This green town's beautiful heaths are coming to life again. Thousands are expected to attend, though there is some criticism about the enthusiasm over hoof beats in these times.

Some critics—not Newmarketers—are advocating calling off the Derby, but this is unlikely.

Color Retained

Much of the color of the classic, traditionally run at Ephom Downs, is expected to be retained.

All talk of the probable winner gets around eventually to Sun Castle, handled by the gentleman trainer, Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochfort, sometimes called the best-dressed man in Britain.

Boyd-Rochfort probably is the best known British trainer to American fans because of the many American-owned horses he has trained for events on this side.

In addition to the good times Sun Castle has hung up in trails, the Boyd-Rochfort runner also is a papular favorite because of the legendary belief that the horse which finishes third in the "Guineas" will win the Derby. Sun Castle was a good third in that race, finishing strong.

Likes Chances

"We have a very good chance," said Boyd-Rochfort as, clock in one hand and cane in the other, he watched Sun Castle pound over the turf.

In the 14 years prior to the present war, Boyd-Rochfort's horses won purses totaling $4,42,410.

"Those days are gone for many, I am afraid," he said. "But I may have another winner here."

Britain's race horses have had their food rationed. They now get 15 pounds of oats daily, compared to their normal diet of 20 pounds. It doesn't appear to affect their speed.

One possible winning owner in the approaching Derby might have to wait until the war ends to collect his share of the purse.

Fairy Prince, winner of the Salisbury Trial Stakes, belongs to Lieut. F. T. Williams, captured at Calais last May.

THE Sophistocrat OF CIGARS IS Still THE Young IDEA!

GREAT MOMENTS in our history have always seen our country's young men in the nation's uniform. To-day, as years ago, the Robt. Burns Panatela de Luxe goes into service with them. ››› For it is always the smoking choice of smart young men of every generation. ››› Shapely, graceful, suave, this is the cigar with lines as tailored as an officer's uniform. ››› Mild, mellow, and marvelous are just three words to give you an idea of its deep-down satisfying flavor. Its all-Havana filler, its specially slow-cured tobaccos sum up the total pleasure for you. ››› Finally, that lovely girl in the picture gives her silent salute to The Sophistocrat of Cigars.

U. S. Calls Chisox Pitching Ace

Draft Board Orders Rigney Report June 20; Title Hopes Jolted

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 2.—The championship hopes of the Chicago White Sox received a jolt today from Uncle Sam, only one day after they took possession of first place in the American League.

A local draft board announced that John Rigney, ace of the pitching staff, had been ordered to report for induction into the Army June 20.

Rigney's record is not too impressive—three victories and three defeats—but he has pitched in hard luck this season. Only yesterday he set Washington down with three hits, but lost the game, mainly because the White Sox defense crumbled.

Just "Old Clothes Men" Now

In fact, the "old clothes men" of Jimmy Dykes are "up there" only because of fine pitching. But few observers give the White Sox more than a long-shot chance to repulse the first-place challenge of either the Cleveland Indians or New York Yankees. With Rigney gone, their chances are infinitely smaller.

"Yes, it's a tough break," said Dykes. "But we'll see what we can do. We'll have Rigney for about four more starting assignments. Then we'll take up the slack with Jack Hallett, the rookie, and Lee (Bucky) Ross. At least, I hope we do."

The Sox, preparing for Rigney's impending induction, purchased Ross from Philadelphia three weeks ago. He is reported ready for a starting assignment—possibly another example of Dykes' ability to transform run-of-the-mine performers into capable big leaguers.

There is still an outside chance that Rigney will be excused from Army training, since he has yet to pass the formal physical examination at induction.

If he is accepted, the training period also probably will alter his marriage plans. He had planned to be married this fall to Dorothy Comiskey, secretary and part owner of the White Sox.

Blablah's Driving Speed Takes Feature at Charles Town

Kelly Rides $12.20 Shot To Victory

Berwyn Is Second And Ginobi Third; '6 and 2' Rewards $166 in Double

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 2.—Finding the deep mud to her liking, O. S. Jennings' Blablah turned on a brand of speed that five rivals could not match here this afternoon. The 5-year-old daughter of Economic and Mint Dinah, with Jockey Willie Kelly doing the booting, drove to the finish line a length and a half in advance of R. C. Waple's Berwyn with A. H. Bowies Ginobi third. Blablah, in winner her first purse of the meeting, was only lukewarm in the betting and paid a $12.20 mutuel.

Despite overcast skies and the mushy track, a Monday crowd of 4,000 took part in the sport. Both favorites and long shots had their innings. Blablah's time of 1:18 1-5, more than four seconds over the track record for the Charles Town sprint course, indicates the condition of the running surface.

Jockey Kelly made no mistakes with Blablah. He hustled the mare to the front going to the clubhouse turn. Ginobi and Berwyn were closest as she set the pace into the backstretch. At the far turn, Berwyn, handled by Jockey Buddy Root, moved up and, approaching the stretch, was head-and-head with Blablah. But at the final bend, Berwyn swung wide and Blablah answered Kelly's urging to draw away again. At the end there was daylight between the two.

Daily doubling proved a profitable adventure for a chosen few in the crowd. Those who backed the "6 and 2" combination collected $166. Mike's Grace, under a strong ride by Apprentice L. Eversole, took the second event. Kindle was second and Way Out was third in this short sprint. In the third race, Mrs. M. V. Jenkins' Quick Vine showed a return to form by downing seven others. The 7-year-old daughter of Haste paid $14.50 and was well ridden by Jockey Bobby Bernhardt.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIKE'S GRACE, $13.60, $10.30, $4.20; KINDLE, $14.00, $7.00; WAY OUT, $2.40.

MIKE'S GRACE, under pressure from the start, wore down KINDLE in the stretch drive to win going away. KINDLE had good speed from the start, drew out, but could not resist the winner. WAY OUT, off in a tangle, closed full of run. DONA MONTEZ was off slowly and failed to gain.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:41. Winner, Mrs. M. V. Jenkins' b. m. (7), by Haste—Arbor. Trained by M. V. Jenkins. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:24⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUICK VINE, $14.60, $7.00, $4.40; TAUT, $8.00, $5.00; TAVERN, $2.80.

QUICK VINE, off alertly, drew clear while setting the pace and was not threatened while winning easily. TAUT was hard ridden and closed willingly. TAVERN was close up from the start and was held safe. ALICE DODGE was prominent to the stretch and weakened gradually.

Daily Double, MIKE'S GRACE and QUICK VINE, Paid $166.00

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:13. Off at 4:13. Winner, J. V. Shevat's b. f. †Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALLYHAUNIS, $4.20, $3.00, $2.40; IDA TIME, $3.90, $2.80; PENNY ARCADE, $2.80.

BALLYHAUNIS forged to the front in the run to the first turn, drew clear, but had to be kept to pressure to stave off IDA TIME. The latter was hard ridden while closest to the pace and was wearing down BALLYHAUNIS at the end. PENNY ARCADE was sluggish early and rallied mildly. LADY ANDY had no excuses.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 4:43½. Off at 4:44. Winner, Mrs. L. E. Powell's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VANTRYST, $4.80, $2.80, $2.60; SCHLEY GOREE, $4.20, $3.40; MEADOW GOLD, $5.00.

VANTRYST, rated early, came wide for racing room and wore down the leaders to win going away. SCHLEY GOREE moved up to force MEADOW GOLD'S pace and closed willingly. MEADOW GOLD was vigorously handled while setting the pace and weakened. CHARMING BOY was hard handled and showed a good effort.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $700. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:09. Off at 5:09½. Winner, O. H. Jennings' b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLABLAH, $12.20, $5.00, $2.60; BERWYN, $3.00, $2.20; GINOBI, $4.60.

BLABLAH took command going to the first turn, drew clear, withstood the bid of BERWYN entering the stretch and held sway thereafter. BERWYN, steadied while within striking distance, moved up menacingly on the outside, bore out slightly and was held safe in the closing test. GINOBI was hard ridden and had no excuses. DON ORLAN saved ground and was not good enough.

WEATHER, CLOUDY; TRACK, HEAVY.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:38. Off at 5:39. Winner, Mrs. M. McNey's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TYR, $12.20, $7.60, $3.40; TRANSDAY, $8.60, $4.00; YANKEE LAD, $2.60.

TYR took command in the opening furlong, saved ground while shaking off HAGERSTOWN BOY and drew out in the closing test. TRANSDAY was within striking distance from the start and lugged in through the stretch turn. YANKEE LAD was pulled up sharply in the early stages when in close quarters, saved ground and weakened after gaining ominous contention. HAGERSTOWN BOY was closest to the pace to the stretch and weakened.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:07½. Off at 6:08. Winner, H. B. Langdon's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GROUCHY, $9.20, $3.60, $3.00; PETEE LAD, $2.60, $2.40; HIGH AIM, $4.20.

GROUCHY, allowed to settle into her best stride, responded to strong handling in the stretch and held on to stave off PETEE LAD. The latter was off slowly, worked his way to contention on the inside, took a good lead and closed willingly. HIGH AIM made several moves on the inside and weakened at the close. NETTA WOOD had speed in spots.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al.

After four days of rain, I put the glasses on the flamingoes and darned if they don't look like they are grinning. My apologies to Brooke Jones of the Manor Hunt Club and H. S. Swann, of the Charles County Hunt Club, for not mentioning their shows in this column. I didn't get my mail until yesterday morning. Will "D. L.," of Marlboro, who wrote me regarding Dick Machado, please get in touch with me. To "J. V." of Rockville—I'm taking up the matter of more seats for the clubhouse. Washington's radio racing whiz has come up with some honeys in the way of pronouncing horse's names but I can't see how he gets "Cly-monnee" out of Clymene. By the way, Clymene may start for the first time this year in today's fourth race; she's ready, but is not a solid betting proposition. I'm taking a buck across the board. Former Jockey Carl Hanford saddled the first winner of his training career yesterday when he sent Ballyhaunis postward to take a seven-furlong test. Jockey Martin Bletzacker was fined $50 for cutting over too sharply with Westing. Well, all I can say Martin was trying, because Westinng was the winner. Favorites batted 38 per cent for the first three weeks of the meeting. Sammy Palumbo is still setting the pace for the jockeys here. Eddie Churchill, who is riding well here, is a Washington boy. Jockey Kenny Horvath arrived from Beulah Park and will ride here for the remainder of the meeting. Mrs. A. J. Boyle, wife of the president of the local jockey club, has received word that her Stephen The Great mare, Five Oaks, has dropped a handsome dark chestnut colt by English Knight at the Vanderbilt Farm. Five Oaks will be bred to Identify. See you on the rail—

BILL.

First race—TERRY MAY has done about everything asked hereabouts and looks like the winner of this. MAIDEN FERN was off in a tangle last out and will be close with better racing luck. PETE'S GOLD for the minor award.

Second race—HIGHLAND SONG has been rested and has oodles of speed. Should like the track and I'm going to string along. LULA KHAYYAM was kidding last out and will be a threat. CHIEF HOLLIS for the show end.

Third race—CANROCK will like the off track and is ready to down company of this sort. GOODWINE is a fair sort and belongs close to the top one. CORSICA tired and was beaten last out, but this is cheaper company.

Fourth race—ACE OF TRUMPS is the solid betting proposition in this field. Likes the route, the mud and the weight is right. FUSIONETTE closed gamely last out and is dangerous. CLYMENE will be making her debut and may need racing.

Fifth race—SCHLEY AL seems well placed in this event. Needs only the right side. SUNNY ROSE turned in an encouraging effort last out and is dangerous. OVERBOST for the show award.

Sixth race—RED IDOL should have won that last. Meets good opposition here, but I'm going to string along with a fit horse. CAIDON improved last out and belongs in the thick of contention. FLAG ETTA is in rare form.

SEVENTH RACE—SPOUT RUN gets the call in this and seems to have the situation well in hand. COCKLEBUR has been shopping around for a spot and this could be it. WESTLY to take care of the others.

Eighth race—BLENETHEL ran a good race at Pimlico and that last here was fair. Could awaken at good odds. TROSTAR and GOLDEN MAYNE probably are the best of the others.

Best bet—CANROCK.

BENNINGS AT DELAWARE

1—She Dast, Donner Pass, All Pass.
2—Miss Identify, Ward, Tellevane.
3—My Elsie, Escort, Trystak.
4—Actress, Love Mark, Cherry's Child.
5—Feed Patch, Buckle Up, Miss Goshen.
6—Silent Witness, General Mowlee, Alhalon.
7—Bounding Count, Sky Hostess, Elamp.
8—Malano, Cisneros, Dark Friend.
Best bet—My Elsie.

Eastern, Western Nines Re-Open Series Today

Tide Slight Favorite In Play-Off

Interhigh Title Clash Scheduled At Western; Hines, Deavers May Face

The promise of nothing worse than slight showers from the weather man, Washington's two contenders for the interhigh baseball championship—Eastern and Western today re-open their 3-game playoff series on the diamond of the latter. Starting time will be 3:30 o'clock.

Eastern still retains the favorite role it boasted before the clubs were rained out in theid first attempt to start the 1941 series Friday, but strictly on the basis of past performances. It won the regular season clash between the teams and finished its schedule with only one loss in six games, compared to Western's two.

The Raiders, however, are conceded the most seasoned material and enough power and pitching to win with heads-up play. The second game of the playoff will be Friday at Eastern and the third, if necessary, at Anacostia next Tuesday.

Though Coach Cliff Moore, of Western, had not named today's starting pitcher last night, his choice almost certainly will be Charley Hines, the same husky righ-hander who appeared to have White Tide batters well in hand last Friday.

Eastern, since Ken Curles was knocked from the box in Friday's 31-2 inning clash, will probably try Kenny Deavers today.

Tribe Wins, Takes American Lead

Buddy Rosar's single after Henrich walked. Henrich took third on the hit and scored on Frank Crosetti's long fly.

Cleveland went ahead in the same inning only to have Henrich's first homer tie the count in the fourth, but in the fifth the Tribe took the lead for keeps. Russo ran into a streak of wildness after two singles and a pass filled the bases and he forced in two runs by passing Feller and Lou Boudreau.

Softball League Games Postponed

Rain and wet grounds last night prevented the Kavakos Grill-Yellow Cab Capital City League softball game which would have decided the league lead at Washington Softball Stadium. The game will be played at a later date. Evening Star and Greenbelt, National Night League opponents who were slated to play in the second half of the double bill, will also renew hostilities later in the season.

Tonight, May Hardware Co. will meet Carr Bros. and Boswell ten in Capital City competition at 8 p. m. and in the second half of the twin-bill, Community Businessmen of Mount Rainier and Civil Service will clash in the National Night League at 9:15 p. m.

N. Y. Course Set For Cobb-Ruth Match

New York, June 1 (AP).—The Fresh Meadow Country Club, at Flushing, N. Y., was chosen today as the site of the second charity golf match between Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb, two southpaw sluggers of baseball fame. It will be played June 27, two days after the first encounter at Boston.

Jake Early Falls Into a Chicago Trap

Jake Early's attempt to score from third in the fifth inning of yesterday's game with Chicago got him into this spot. He's trying, and too late, to regain third after falling into a trap. Third Baseman Dario Lodigiani has taken the throw from Catcher Mike Tresh (No. 15 in foreground) and is ready to tag Jake. George Case had grounded to Lodigiani, who chose to trap Early rather than try for Case at first. Nats won, 5-3.

Homers Earn Phils 3-2 Edge On Chicago

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 2.—Danny Litwhilers sixth and seventh home runs of the season and Johnny Podgajny's seven-hit pitching gave the Phillies a 3-to-2 victory over Chicago today, their first over the Cubs this year.

Litwhiler's four-ply blows came in the third and sixth innings with none on base. He also collected a single to pace the Phils' nine-hit assault on Southpaw Larry French.

Nick Etten batted in the first Phil run in the opening inning with a single to score Joe Marty, who had doubled.

The Cubs picked up a run in the sixth on singles by Dominic Dallessandro and Lou Novikoff, followed by Phil Cavaretta's long outfield fly, and added another run in the seventh on Larry French's single, a walk to Stan Hack and another single by Lou Stringer.

Nick Williams, Ex-Diamonder, Dies

Palo Alto, Calif., June (AP).—Richard Lloyd (Nick) Williams, 61, former player, scout and manager in the Pacific Coast League and prominent in baseball for more than 30 years, died today.

Williams managed the San Francisco Seals from 1926 through 1931. He managed such Seals' stars as Paul Waner, Roy Johnson, Earl Averill, Frank Crosetti, Hal Rhyne, Swead Jolley, Walter Mails, Lefty Gomez, Dolph Camilli, Gussie Suhr, Pete Kilduff, Eddie Mulligan, Doug McWeeny, Dutch Ruether, Sam Agnew, Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, present manager, and many others.

Baseball's Lou Gehrig Dies at 37

some prominence and was an all-around sports star at Columbia University. Throughout his career he was called "Columbia Lou."

At the age of 20 he left Columbia in 1923 and signed with the Yankees. Except for parts of the 1923 and 24 seasons when he was sent under option to Hartford in the Eastern League, he never played with any other club.

After his withdrawal from baseball he retained his identity with New York by accepting a position on the city's prison parole board.

Remarkable Record

Gehrig began his remarkable consecutive game streak with the Yankees in 1925, when, on June 1, he was sent into a game as a pinch-hitter. The next day Manager Miller Huggins used him at first base in place of Wally Pipp and he never left the post until he had played 2,130 successive regularly scheduled American League games. He also played in 34 World Series contests and countless exhibitions.

Lou was a big, handsome, dimple-cheeked fellow who always looked the picture of health. He stood 6-feet-1-inch and weighed 205 pounds. Playing every game became a fetish with him and because of this, or because of his naturally careful habits, he trained more faithfully than almost any other player in the major leagues.

Like all baseball veterans he had injuries. Once in 1934 he was struck by a pitched ball during an exhibition game at Norfolk, Va., and suffered a moderate concession. Again in 1937 he hurt a finger on his right hand. In 1938 he broke a thumb. But nothing that ever happened to him over that long stretch of years kept him from getting into the lineup at least briefly every game.

For the public this was the notable feature of Gehrig's career. But for the persons connected with the sport his easy disposition and his great playing contributions to the Yanks stood out far beyond the fact that he chose not to miss a game now and then.

Most Valuable Player

Twice he was selected as the most valuable player in the American League—in 1927 and in 1936.

He led his league in batting only once, hitting .363 in 1934, but he set the pace no less than five times for runs batted in and in 1931 set the present league record of 184.

Among the other playing records, aside from endurance, that he held were; most home runs in one game—four; most years 100 or more runs batted in—13; most years 300 or more total bases—13; most home runs with bases full—23 and most years 100 runs or more—13 (consecutive).

'Big Train' Recalls Fanning Lou in 1st Game, Is Shocked

By the United Press

Germantown, Md., June 2.—Walter Johnson, whom Lou Gehrig faced in his first time at bat as a major leaguer, said tonight that the former New York star's death "is the most tragic thing that has happened to baseball in a long time."

"Lou's death is a terrible blow to everybody who loves baseball," Johnson said. "Lou helped make baseball the great thing it is today. Baseball never had a fined fellow. All who knew him personally and the millions who were thrilled by his exploits on the field will feel as greatly shocked as I do. It's a terrible blow."

The "Big Train" recalled his first meeting with Gehrig in competition.

"He went up to hit against me as a pinch-hitter back in 1925—his first time as a big leaguer," Johnson related. "I happened to strike him out then, but he got plenty of hits off me later. He was a greatboy—as fine as the game has ever seen."

Lib Sowers Bows in D. C. Net Tourney

One of the District's ranking woman tennis players was eliminated and another hard-pressed to survive as the fourteenth annual City of Washington tournament opened yesterday at Army-Navy Country Club.

Lib Sowers, No. 8 in the local ratings, was the one to fall by the wayside, being beaten by unranked and unseeded Jane Wilmerding, 6—1, 6—2.

Peggy Keyser Smith, Washington's No. 6, advanced to the quarter-finals with a 6—3, 6—2 victory over Elinor Finckel, but not before being given a real scare by Margaret Graham in the first round before winning, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Altogether, seven reached the quarter-finals, but Defending Champion Margo Lee and Frances Rowan were the only others besides Mrs. Smith to win two matches. Miss Lee dropped only three games in the two matches in which she conquered Mrs. Creighton Peet and Mrs. L. D. York.

Mrs. Rowan, however, was given a rousing three-set battle by 15-year-old Julie Fisk before prevailing at 2—6, 6—1, 6—4. Then Mrs. Rowan defeated Betty Zimmerman, 6—1, 6—0.

Sara Moore, making her first local tourney start in three years, walloped Ruth O'Neil, 6—0, 6—0, after drawing a first-round bye, while Mary Cootes Belin, champion of the 1937 and '39 tourneys, advanced all the way to the quarter-finals on a bye and a default.

Yesterday's Results

First round—Margo Lee defeated Sarita Peck, 6—0, 6—1; Mrs. L. D. York defeated Beatrice Zuckerman, 11—9, 6—4; Betty Zimmerman defeated Virginia McMenamin, by default; Frances Rowan defeated Julie Fiske, 2—6, 6—1, 6—4; Eleanor Fishburn defeated Marion Bisira, 6—0, 6—1; Elinor Pinckel defeated Eleanor Mayfield, 6—0, 6—0; Peggy Smith defeated Margaret Graham, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4.

Second round—Lee defeated York, 6—0, 6—1; Rowan defeated Zimmerman, 6—1, 6—0; Belin defeated Sherwood, by default; Sara Moore defeated Ruth O'Neil, 6—0, 6—0; Jane Wilmerding defeated Lib Sowers, 6—1, 6—3; Charlotte Decker defeated Fishburn, 6—3, 6—3; Smith defeated Finckel, 6—3, 6—2.

Today's Schedule

2 p. m.—Lee vs. Rowan.
3:30 p. m.—Belin vs. Moore, Willie Herbert vs. Gwen Groves.
4 p. m.—Smith vs. Decker.
5 p. m.—Wilmerding vs. winner Herbert-Groves match.
Doubles entries close at 6 p. m.; first-round matches to be played tomorrow.

Movies Change P. C. Track Results

Berkeley, Calif., June 2 (AP).—Motion pictures today showed Pat Haley placed third in the 100 yard dash in the Pacific Coast Conference track and field championships. Finish judges had failed even to place the Ashington State College sprinter Saturday.

The corrected standings gave the Washington State team third place with 27 points instead of a tie with Stanford at 24 points.

The official pictures also gave Fay Froom, Calif., fourth place in the 440-yard dash and John Long, Washington, Fifth, reversing their positions as called Saturday.

Corrected team standings: U. S. C., 72; California, 49½; W. S. C., 27; Stanford, 22; Washington, 8. (Rest unchanged.)

Bosox Rout Newsom, Beat Tigers, 9 to 1

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 2.—Big Buck Newsom, no puzzle at all for American League clubs this year, was just as easy for the Boston Red Sox today.

Joe Cronin's boys rapped the luckless Bo-Bo, last year Detroit's top hurler, for six hits and five homers—in the two innings he runsfour of them the result of worked and registered a third straight triumph over the Tigers, 9 to 1.

It was Newsom's seventh setback this year, against three victories.

Joe Dobson, on the other hand, was brilliant in winning his second victory. He limited the Tigers to four singles, and after the first inning, when Detroit scored an unearned run, no Tiger runner advanced beyond second. In addition, the 24-year-old right-hander led Boston's attack with three safeties, including the first home run of his baseball career.

Nats Defeat Chisox, 8-3; Sandra Victor

Vernon, who took second while Lodigiani stupidly held the ball during an argument on the play, went to third on the error, moved home on Early's long fly to Wright.

Sundra's single to left inspired two runs in the seventh inning. He was sacrificed to second, and Lewis scored him with a single to left. When Travis followed with a single that scored Lewis from second, Dietrich was through and Ross got the pitching job.

Ross ran into three-run trouble in the eighth after Pofahl opened with a single to center. He fielded Sundra's bunt and then threw the ball into center field, Pofahl reaching third and Sundra first. Case walked, to fill the bases, and after Dewis popped up Cramer got one run home with a long fly to Kreevich. A walk to Travis refilled the bases and Vernon bashed a single to right for two more runs.

Sundra, meanwhile, was pitching six-hit ball during the first eight innings. In the ninth, he ran into some trouble when Lodigiani and Kreevich banged singles with none out. Hoeg flied out, but Tresh singled, to score Lodigiani. Ben Chapman then made his appearance for the White Sox as a pinch hitter and singled to left in his batting debut, to score Krevich. But Sundra bore down and disposed of the next two hitters and had his victory.

Beerman Win, 4-0, Behind Rosenfield

Senate Beer fortified its hold on first place in the Merchant's Night Softball League last night in Ballston Stadium, rallying behind the masterful four-hit pitching of big Abe Rosenfield to blank its arch rival, International Business Machines, 4-0, before a capacity crowd.

A streak of wildness by I. B. M.'s Jack Smith paved the way for Senate's first runs in the fourth inning. Smith walked both Al Wellens and Ralph Wellens and Wallerstein shattered the scoreless tie with a single to left. Ralph Wellens tallied on Aquilino's infield hit.

In the first game, Standard Linen scored in every inning to trounce a a winless Adam Hat ten, 18-3, to go into a tie for second place.

Reds Whip Giants, 4-3, Behind Riddle

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—The Cincinnati Reds, making good use of their five hits, whipped the New York Giants, 4 to 3, today to take a lead of two games to one in the four-game series.

Eddie Joost followed Harry Craft's single in the fifth with a homer to break the scoreless deadlock. Then after the Giants had got to Elmer Riddle for three runs in the sixth on the strength of Harry Danning's two-run homer, Ernie Lombardi crashed one over the fence in the seventh to knot the count. Two walks followed and Riddle won his own game with a single in the same frame.

Fiddler Bill McGee, making his fourth start as a Giant, lost his third game, though he gave up only four hits in the 6 2-3 innings he was exposed to fire. He was followed on the mound by Cliff Melton and Ace Adams, while Riddle had to have help from Joe Beggs to weather a ninth-inning threat.

Labor Shortage Declared Acute In Retail Stores

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—Department stores are hiring more women, high school graduates, even young ministers working part time, since the draft left gaps in the regular personnel, an expert said today.

Miss Helena Fitzsimmons, of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, told the National Retail Dry Goods Association's midyear convention that surveys showed replacements were needed in practically all departments of stores and the problem of training was "acute."

Some stores are using women in departments in which men only had been employed previously, she said, and high school boys and girls are now being used for replacements, if sufficiently mature.

Securing part-time workers is becoming increasingly difficult, she said, but some stores are employing married women, men employed in other industries wishing to supplement their incomes, postoffice employe with afternoons and half Saturdays free, teachers and young ministers.

Bethlehem Sets New Production Record in May

New York, June 2 (AP).—Bethlehem Steel Co., with plants humming at 103 per cent of rated capacity, produced 1,040,000 tons of steel in May, the largest monthly output in history.

The previous high mark, the company said, was 1,024,026 tons produced from all plants also set a new mark in March, this year.

The previous high mark, the company said, was 1,024,06 tons, produced in March this year.

Shipments of finished iron and steel from all plants also set a new mark in May.

Plants ringing up new individual output highs included those at Bethlehem, Pa.; Lackawanna, N. Y., and Johnston, Pa.

Corrugated Paper Price to Advance

New York, June 2 (AP).—The price of Kraft liner board, used in making corrugated shipping containers, will be advanced $5 a ton to $60 on July 1, leading producers announced today.

It was reported the new price probably would be maintained through the last half of the year.

Leading newsprint manufacturers recently reaffirmed the newsprint price for the third quarter at the present level of $49-$50 a ton, New York.

Smith, Barney Is Low On Md. Ferry Bonds

Baltimore, June 2 (AP).—Bidding approximately .65 more than its nearest competitor, the firm of Smith, Barney & Co., New York City, purchased the $1,200,000 worth of bonds with which Maryland will buy the lines of the Annapolis-Claiborne Ferry Co.

Smith, Barney & Co. bid in the bond issue with an offer of $1,216,-852.80 at 1½ per cent.

North American Seeks to Hold Control of Middle West Units

The North American Company top holding company of a group of five utility operating systems, urged before the Securities Commission yesterday that it should be permitted to retain control of three operating properties in the middle west.

The North American's contention was made at the opening of hearings on proposals advanced by Ralph C. Binford, counsel for the commission's public utilities division, for the breakup of the North American Company's holdings under the so-called "death sentice" clause of the public utility holding company act.

Binford's proposal would limit North American's control to one operating utility under the holding company act which provides the geograhical integration and corporate simplification of holding company structures.

According to the brief submitted to the commission by Binford, the North American controls such electric utility systems as the Washington Railway and Electric Illuminating Company serving Cleveland and Northern Ohio; the system owned by the three companies of the Wisconsin-Hichigan group (Wisconsin (Wisconsin Electric Power Company, Wisconsin Gas and Electric Company and Michigan Power Company); the union Electric Company of Missouri serving St. Louis and territory in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa; and the Detroit Edison Company.

The North American Company asked that it be allowed to retain control of the Union Electric Company and subsidiaries, the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, and the Wisconsin-Michigan group.

The holding company also asserted that it should be allowed to retain what it called its minority investments in Pacific Gas and Electric Company, the Detroit Edison Company, and certain other businesses incidental to the operation of the company.

'Oversold' List Edges Higheer Despite Host Of Unfavorable News on War Fronts

New York, June 2.—Stocks generally maintained their composure, and a number moved up in today's market, despite an assortment of bearish developments on foreign war fronts.

Loss of Crete to the Nazis and resumption of heavy bombing of England served to restrain many potentiola buyers, brokers said, but much of the bad news seemingly had been fairly well discounted.

Dwindling of offerings in recent weeks and narrowing of trends strengthened the belief of some the list had been pretty much "sold out" and was in a position to rally if given half a chance. Advances of several favorities were attributed more to investment demand than to speculative participation.

Extension of governmential price "ceilings" and the expectation of widespread rationing of many materials necessary for defense was stressed by the President's signing of the mandatory priorities bill. All of this, it was thought, tended to keep the rallying urge more or less subdued.

The list was hesitant from the start but bids began to come in around midday. While minus signs were plentiful at the close, gainers were in the majority.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, with the help of a handfull of leaders, managed to emerge with a net upturn of .1 of a point at 39.7. A month ago the composite stood at 39.4. Dealings were among the smallest since last August, transfers totaling 255,308 shares against 345,000 Thursday.

American Telephone got up 2⅛; Westinghouse, 1⅛, and Chesspeake & Ohio and Cerro de Pasco, 1 each.

Consolidated Aircraft edged into new high ground for 1941 and fractions were tacked on U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, New York Shipbuilding, Newport News Shipbuilding and International Harvester.

Atlantic Refining and Pacific Gas dipped to new lows for the year or longer. In arrears also were General Motors, United Aircraft, Phelps Dodge, Texas Corporation, Allied Chemical and Southern Railway.

Steels were aided by a rebound in this week's estimated mill operations. Mounting shipbuilding backlogs stimulated issues in this group.

In the Curb, Driver-Harris jumped 2 to a new year's top. Others leaning forward included American Cyanamid "B", Glen Alden Coal and Republic Aviation. American Gas slipped, along with Gulf Oil, Pantepec and Creole Petroleum. The turnover here was around 56,000 shares versus 39,000 in the preceding full session.

A few rising issues among utilities gave a steadying influence to the bond market today. Activities were limited, and fractional gains and losses appeared about in balance throughout the list.

Transactions totaled $4,006,300, face value, compared with $4,915,-900 Thursday, the last full trading session before the holiday.

United States Governments generally ended unchanged from Saturday in over-the-counter dealings, although the new 2½s of 1956-58 closed at 103 5-32 in the first official transfer, up 3-32 from Saturday's unofficial level. Stock exchange prices on the Federals, coming into line with the dealers' market, ranged 17-32 point higher to 2-32 lower.

U. S. Defense Outlay to Mean Year's Work for 16,000,000

By Merrvle S. Rukeyser
International News Service Staff Writer

After more than a decade of confusion as to what to do with idle men and machines, the United States Government has placed with industry the biggest order in history.

The program for heightened national defense and aid to Great Britain and other democracies contemplates the expenditure of $42,688,000,000 for ships, airplanes, munitions, tanks, food, clothing and other material. Of this amount, approximately $30,000,000,000 has already been authorized or appropriated.

What does the outlay mean in terms of employment for workers?

Attempting to visualize the $30,-000,000,000 outlay in employment terms, Isador Lubin, economic adviser to the President, declared: "To convert these $30,000,000,000 already authorized or appropriated into the materials needed for defense will require approximately 16,000,000 man-years of employment. Of these man-years, among the major items, 5,000,000 man-years, or 31 per cent, will be needed for ship construction; 3,000,000, or 19 per cent, for aircraft; 2,750,000, or 17 per cent, for ordnance, and 1,800,000, or 11 per cent, for building construction."

Stated another way, 16,000,000 man-years means employment at the rate of a full year's work for 16,000,000 persons.

Breaking down the job further in labor terms, Dr. Lubin added: "If one analyzes these man-year requirements into the various stages of production, one finds that 3,000,-000 man-years will be required at the construction sites, that is, at shipyards, military and naval posts, defense bases, etc., the bulk being in shipyards where almost 2,300,00 man-years will be required. Slightly less than a fourth of these man-years will be required in factories of final fabrication, mainly in aircraft and ordnance plants. More than one-half, namely 8,400,-000, will be needed in the production, manufacture and transportation of the raw and semi-manufactured materials which will enter into the final fabrication and construction of the various items to be produced.

"The very high proportion of the man-years that must go into construction of ships and into the building of posts and bases brings with it, because of the nature of the work to be done, abnormally high requirements for skilled workers. According to existing estimates, over 37 per cent of the man-years to be required will be in the skilled category, 38 per cent will be semiskilled, and only 25 per cent unskilled. This is a far larger percentage of skilled labor than is usually required for ordinary peacetime industrial operation.

"The defense production program points to an unprecedented increase in employment for the remainder of 1941 and new high levels in 1942."

According to William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, the country is within 60 days of completing the initial tooling up phase. He recently revealed: "We are beginning to get production on most items and will be past the initial stage by August. The cantonments are practically finished, the ordinary equipment for the men has been furnished, and we can now push with all our energy on the four main items: planes, ships, tanks and guns."

Wheat Prices Surge 2 Cents On Quota Vote

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 2.—Wheat prices rose 2 cents a bushel here today as the grain market responded to producers' approval of the Government plan to restrict new crop marketing by a quota system and loans at rates above quotations now prevailing.

Short covering and investment buying gave prices an abrupt advance of almost 2 cents at the opening. After wavering due to profit taking and hedging associated with the heavy movement of old grain. Prices climbed to new highs this afternoon, with net gains of as much as 2⅛ cents. The close was 1⅞@1⅞ higher than Saturday, July, 96⅛@96; September, 97¾@97⅛.

Corn closed unchanged to ⅜ lower, July, 78⅝; September, 74¾. Oats unchanged to ⅛ higher. Soybeans, 1⅛@2 higher. Rye, ¾@⅞ higher, and lard, ⅝ higher.

Buying of wheat was attributed to mills and dealers concerned about moderate to heavy rains reported in some sections of the Southwest where harvesting is getting underway or is scheduled to begin soon.

While traders had no definite idea as to how much grain will be affected by the quota system, this restriction, together with impounding of wheat under the loan program, is expected to result in eventual tightening of open market supplies. Traders recalled that in each of the past two seasons when market conditions was affected by the loan program prices held below loan levels during the period when grain was being sealed but later rose above lending rates as commercial supplies tightened.

Corn was depressed most of the session by receipt of good rains over much of the belt, losing about ⅞ cent at times. Oats steadied with corn while rye rose with wheat. Lard and soybeans were strengthened by action of hogs and cottonseed oil.

Price-Fixing Costs Two Oil Firms $18,500

Madison, Wis., June 3 (AP).—Two oil companies and four individuals were fined a total of $18,00 by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today on charges they conspired in 1935 and 1936 to raise and fix retail gasoline prices at artificial high levels in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Law.

The defendants, convicted at the close of a 16 week trial held in 1937-38, had been granted retrials. They changed their pleas of "not guilty" to no defense today.

Fines were imposed as follows: Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, $5,000; City Service Oil Co., $5,000; Alexander Fraser, president of Shell Oil Co., $2,500; A. G. Maguire, vice president of the Wadhams division of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., $1,500; Edward J. Bullock, vice president of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, $2,500; Oscar J. Tuttle, sales executive of Cities Service, $2,000.

Cases against H. E. Brandli and H. O. Fruseauff, both of Cities Service, were dismissed.

TOWARD THE LONE FIGURE OF SUPERMAN RACES THE CAR OF DEATH, RELEASING ITS DEADLY RAY!
SO IT'S TO BE WAR, EH?
FINE!!
SUPERMAN HURLS HIS ROADSTER FULL FORCE AT THE ONCOMING JUGGERNAUT, DESTROYING THE TWO!
CRASH!
THAT ATTENDS TO YOU!

JOE PALOOKA — Don't Wait Fer 'Im — BY HAM FISHER

DON'T WAIT FER 'IM T'COME TO YA---GO RIGHT INTO 'IM FAST.
BONG!
--RENSHAW HAS HIM ON THE VERGE OF A KAYO FOLKS--- THIS IS THE NINTH ROUND OF THE RENSHAW-NOLTA FIGHT---

BONNIE WINKLE — Ulterior and Motive — BY BRANNER

THAT WAS A GREAT IDEA OF MINE, STARTIN' A CONTEST TO NAME WINNIES TWINS! I PASSED OUT FIFTY SLIPS YESTIDDY---
--LET'S SEE--50 TIMES 25 CENTS-UH-UM-THAT'S $12.50, AN' A PRIZE OF $5 TO TH' WINNER--THAT LEAVES $7.50 FOR ME--WHY, BY TH' END OF TH' WEEK I SHOULD SELL ABOUT 100 MORE---.
WELL, MOTHER, WE'LL HAVE TO START THINKING ABOUT NAMES FOR TH' TWINS--
YES, WINNIE, AND WHAT A JOB IT'S GON' TO BE--- GETTIN' NAMES FOR A BOY AN' A GAL TO GO THROUGH LIFE WITH IS MIGHTY IMPORTANT--JES' THINK IT OVER CAREFUL AN'--ER-DON'T RUSH IT!

MR. AND MRS. — A Matter of Curves — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

HANG IT! MUST HAVE SPILT SOMETHING ON MY PANTS!
YOU EAT SO CARELESSLY
I TRY TO BE CAREFUL, GOODNESS KNOWS!
BUT IT'S VERY EVIDENT YOU'RE NOT WELL, YOU OUGHT TO BE GLAD I'M NOT FAT
WHAT HAS THAT TO DO WITH IT?
A FAT MAN DROPS EVERYTHING ON HIS VEST, WHERE IT SHOWS MORE. IT CAN'T REACH HIS PANTS
YOU'VE GOT IT ALL FIGURED OUT, HAVEN'T YOU!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELFY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

"MY DEAR NEPHEW: IT HAS BECOME NECESSARY FOR ME TO PART WITH MY DEARLY BELOVED LIFELONG PET AND COMPANION, SUNSHINE. I HAVE ALWAYS KNOWN YOU AS A PROTECTOR OF OUR LITTLE FURRED AND FEATHERED FRIENDS. ACCEPT SUNSHINE AS A GIFT. CHERISH HER AND GUARD HER AND YOU WILL NOT BE FORGOTTEN BY YOUR AGING AND GRATEFUL AUNT EMMA." SOUNDS BAD, NAPOLEON. LET'S OPEN IT UP.

Listen! with Glynn

The workers on the radio program, "We, the People," have an affectionate nickname for it. It's "Us, the Folks." And, beginning tonight, when its usual host, Gabriel Heatter, goes on a vacation, that latter title will seem particularly appropriate.

For the guest host (there's a combination for you) is to be a man who practically has a copyright on the word folks. He's Edgar A. Guest, the popular writer of homely philosophy and poetry and he'll probably have a special poem all ready for the occasion.

One of the highlights of the program will be presentation of a patriotic cantata, "I Hear America Singing," written by George Kleinsinger and based on the poem by Walt Whitman. Kleinsinger will appear on the show to tell the story of its creation.

Mark Warnow's orchestra is to be augmented for the presentation and there will be a large chorus and soloist to do the honors.

Incidentally, speaking of songwriting, a budding songwriter makes his debut on the Lanny Ross program over WJSV at 6:15 p. m. tonight. There's not much use in trying to keep his name secret, because his name is Kent Cooper and he's general manager of the Associated Press. The song is titled "Dixie Girl." A Dixie girl vocalist will also be a guest, to sing it. Her name, Dinah Shore.

Work Speeded On Access Road To Fort Meade

Baltimore, June 2 (AP).—The military access road from Westport to Fort George G. Meade—a WPA project certified by the Secretary of War as important to national defense—is approximately 70 per cent completed Harry D. Williar, jr., State work projects administrator, said today.

Under sponsorship of the State roads commission, the 9-mile stretch of roadway is being straightened and widened to afford easier access for mechanized vehicles traveling to and from the training center. An old bridge is being replaced by a new 24-fot concrete span, some stretches of new concrete road are being built, and those sections of the existing road which will remain in use are being surfaced with vituminous concrete. The entire roadway will be 24 feet wide when completed.

One railroad bridge formerly carrying the tracks of the W. B. & A. has been removed to eliminate a dangerous curve.

Construction will be completed by the WPA this month. The State roads commission initiated the project and participated in its financing, planning and direction.

Other access roads under construction by the WPA in Maryland include the road from the Philadelphia Highway to Edgewood Arsenal, and the Showalter Road near Hagerstown, which leads to the Fairchild Aircraft Corporation plant which is turning out planes for the defense program. These roads, too, have been certified as defense projects of the WPA.

The Showalter Road is approximately 70 per cent complete and the Edgewood access road is more than 50 per cent completed.

Currently about 62 per cent of the 8,800 Marylanders on WPA projects are working on jobs related to defense.

Poison Rum Traced After Two Deaths In Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., June 2.—Captain of Police William H. Peters began a check of liquor establishments that may be selling bootleg liquor, following the suspicious deaths within a few hours this morning of Harry Easterday, 57, and George W. Spence, jr., 24, at their homes.

Peters said that both died under similar circumstances, with great pain, after Peters said, they had imbibed on Saturday night.

Dr. S. R. Wells, coroner, who investigated, ordered autopsies to ascertain if poison liquor may have caused their deaths.

Prosecutor Quits, Charges Dropped

Roanoke, Va., June 2 (AP).—Judge Beverley Berkeley, of Roanoke, acting in the place of Judge Earl L. Abbott, of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit, today dismissed a rule against Berlin R. Lemon, following Lemon's resignation as Commonwelths attorney of Craig County, a position he held until late last month, when he was suspended from office.

The rule entered in Circuit Court May 23 by Judge Abbott charged Lemon with rdunkenness and incompetency, among other complaints.

The case was to have been heard here this morning. However, Lemon's resignation, made with the provision that the rule would be dismissed, was accepted, and Judge Berkeley ordered the dismissal.

Talbot to Dedicate New Library Building

Easton, Md., June 2 (AP).—With Hervey Allen and Gene Tunney in the honorary committee, the new Talbot County free library building will be dedicated Saturday with ceremonies in the auditorium of the new county building.

Some of the books which comprise the library of Arthur A. Houghton, jr., will be placed on exhibition in the library under military guard on the day of the dedication. Among Houghtons collection is the original manuscript of Lawis Carrolls "Alice In Wonderland."

Houghton, curator of rare books at the Library of Congress in Washington, will be one of the speakers. He lives at Wye Plantation in Queen Anne's County.

R. A. Farrall Dies in La Plata

La Plata, Md., June 2 (AP).—Funeral services for Reginald A. Farrall, who died at his home here earlythis morning, will be held at Sacred Heart Church Wednesday morning.

Farrall, a La Plata merchant, was president of the La Plata Volunteer Fire Department, member of the board of town commissioners and president of the board of election supervisors of Charles County.

He is survived by his wife Marie and four sisters and three brothers.

Four Va. Hospitals To Join Service Group

Richmond, Va., June 2 (AP).—The State corporation commission today granted authority to hospitals in Charlottesville, Harrisonburg, Staunton and Waynesboro to become affiliated with the Richmond Hospital Service Association.

The institutions which applied for entry into the association were the Martha Jefferson Sanatorium and Hospital, Inc., of Charlottesville, the Rockingham Memorial Hospital at Harrisonburg, the Kings Daughters' Hospital at Staunton and the Waynesboro Community Hospital, Inc. provisions and benfits provided membership of the Richmond association will prevail among the four hospitals.

Modern Gas Ranges Lighten Cooking Task

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

Cooking 1,095 meals a year is a lot of work in any woman's kitchen. Such is not an overstatement, for considering three meals a day, it all adds up to that startling number.

But it isn't such an overwhelming task if there is a modern gas range in the kitchen, with its many new features and improved efficiency. No longer do we reach for a match to light the burner and then remember the last one was used when making breakfast. Now it is a matter of turning the key and producing the flame. Nor do we "wilt" because the range sends forth heat waves; burst out stockings getting down to the floor level to see if the steak is broiling correctly, or have to sprinkle flour in the oven to brown to learn if it is the proper temperature for baking. Such performance is past, thanks to modern invention of range technicians who have made efficiency and comfort the hallmark of modern gas ranges.

MARTHA ELLYN

Cool Kitchens

There are many excellent reasons for appreciating and considering the modern streamline gas ranges. Not the least of them is that at this time of the year they produce cooler and more comfortable kitchens. No longer is it necessary to tolerate blast furnace heat while doing high-speed oven baking, or to steam up and heat up kitchens with top-of-range boiling.

Almost any woman living in Washington is likely to be entertaining visitors these days. Sooner or later relatives, old friends or mere acquaintances will be in the city on some mission in the aid of our national defense. And as sure as it comes meal time there will be guests.

And it is quite comforting for the homemaker to know that the kitchen is no longer the hottest room in the house. Insulation of today's modern gas range has developed to such an extent that the temperature in the kitchen can be controlled so that it will compare to comfortable temperatures in other rooms, although the thermometer outside records a heat wave.

The modern gas range has become a source of pleasure to thousands of housewives because of its cool cooking qualities, for they have been constructed with thick walls of insulation and small simmer burners and automatic oven heat controls.

Another great convenience is the automatic heat control. It takes only a second to set the temperature called for by the recipe to assure perfect baking results. When there is no oven-watching, there is time for doing other things. The control assures the right temperature for certain results whether it is roast beef or angel food cake, baked potatoes or temperamental souffle.

Air-Conditioned Oven

Then there is the air-conditioned oven in which heat or fresh air circulates constantly throughout every corner. Steam cannot collect and settle on food and make it soggy, nor will the oven become stale and stuffy. Different foods may be cooked at the same time without the flavor of one being absorbed by another. Onions and apple pie together, for instance, and no flavor huddles.

"Waterless" cooking, on top of the range, results in cooler kitchens, too. The advanced "waterless" way of cooking is done with 1 cup of water or even less. There are no steam clouds to leave the kitchen hot and stuffy. It is economical, too. Foods cooked the "waterless" way retain their vigorous vitamin values rather than losing them in the excess cooking water thrown away. Food shrinkage, reduced as much as 30 per cent, is an indication of the economies effected by this improved cooking method. Retention of original shape and food color helps also to make the food more palatable.

Also contributing to greater kitchen coolness and comfort is the perfected "low temperature" oven. Cooking is done at low temperatures for a longer period of time. The slow cooking produces many happy and gratifying results; uniform doneness of foods, enhanced appearance and finer textures, as well as reduced food shrinkage. Decreased fuel consumption means added economy.

These are but a few of the reasons why modern gas ranges give cool, low-cost, modern cooking. Other reasons are given throughout the pages of this section. The Washington Post presents on these pages menus and recipes by Miss Ruth Sheldon, home service director, Washington Gas Light Company. Also is presented a number of items showing the progress of the gas range and much informative material relative to the range and its use.

Planked Ham Done to a Turn With Gas Broiler

Planked meals have an undeniable air of elegance, and it's a simple matter to serve meals in this style. Why not put the two together and use the broiler and the plank more frequently?

Ham is especially appropriate for planking as it is easily handled, is attractive in color and in shape, and it extends its delicious flavor to the accompanying foods.

Planked Ham Slice
One thick slice ham
Mashed sweet potatoes
Six slices pineapple
Cauliflower flowerets

Set oven regulator to "broil." Cut the fat edge of ham slice in several places. Place the ham slice on the broiler rack so that the top surface is about 3 inches from the source of heat. When the top side is nicely browned, turn and let brown on the second side. When almost done, place on a wooden plank or fireproof platter. Arrange pineapple slices around ham, alternating with cauliflower flowerets.

Border with mashed sweet potatoes forced through a pastry tube. Dot sweet potatoes and cauliflower with butter and return to the oven to finish broiling the ham slice and brown the cauliflower and sweet potatoes.

Home Service Women Enlist in Food Defense

A BATTALION of 1,200 home economists has been marshalled by gas companies in 45 States and the District of Columbia for immediate service to their country in a Nation-wide program of food education, similar to that undertaken so successfully on the home front in England, the American Gas Association announced yesterday.

This group of home economists, already well known to housewives in 400 key cities and towns as home service workers of the gas industry, will be able to make the transition from peacetime to emergency cooking and meal planning comparatively easy for millions of women, it is believed. Although the food problem in the United States is not yet acute, there is considerable undernourishment which, with present conditions, demands extensive education in foods and nutrition. Also, homemakers need to know time-releasing methods of cooking health-building meals, members of the home service committee pointed out.

Time to plan and cook three square meals a day is at a premium. At present, more than 1,000,000 housewives are giving their time to duties at the American Red Cross; many are sewing and knitting at home; others have taken over businesses and are entering industry; more may follow. Other women eventually may do their own housework and cooking in case there is a shortage of domestic help. Women who cannot attend classes will be reached through food articles in their local newspapers and through woman's programs on the radio. Leaflets on balanced diets and recipe sheets on the proper cooking of inexpensive foods and meats will be distributed through cooperative grocers and meat dealers.

Emphasis will be placed upon food values and meals based on the essential protective foods in an effort to help raise the dietary standards of the Nation. Homemakers of all incomes will be instructed how to buy foods wisely for family needs; how to get the full value of the food dollar; how to provide variety in low-cost menus; how to cook nutritious meals to save time, food and fuel; how to plan, prepare and pack adequate lunches for school children and working men. There will also be classes in canteen or soup-kitchen cooking.

During the summer there will be demonstration classes in the proper canning of fruits and vegetables, and how to make use of surplus foods that may flood the local markets, to avoid waste.

These 1,200 home service workers will cooperate in their food education program with local, county, State and Federal agencies and associations; with clubs, women's groups, churches, lodges and schools—with all interested in the promotion of national physical fitness through a knowledge of foods.

Gas Range Industry Easily The Oldest in Appliance Field

The major appliance business as we see it today is just a youngster in age compared with the gas range industry, easily the oldest in the whole field. In the rush of present-day events the fact that this business and its striking modern merchandise dates back some 80 years to its beginning is often lost sight of. Here are some milestones:

Baltimore was the first city in the United States to use gas for street illumination. (Gas wasn't used in Paris until 1820.)

1859—
Gas first began to be used for cooking, but only in a very limited way. It began to make far more rapid strides at this time in home illumination than cooking, however.

1876—
Exhibit of various types of gas cooking stoves at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition evoked a great deal of interest. The high price of the stoves, as well as the gas itself, at that time retarded development of gas cooking considerably. Many of the early stoves were imported from England.

1885—
The use of gas for cooking as well as for house heating really began to get under way and received wide public acceptance.

By 1938—
More than 17 million gas ranges were in use. Also, to quote an industry spokesman, "10 million wrecks of gas appliances . . . interpreting gas to users in terms of obsolescence, far from the standards of what modern gas ranges are capable."

The gas range industry presents somewhat the spectacle of a giant who, after many years of relative complacency and self-assurance, has rather suddenly begun to bestir himself . . . Having taken a good look at things as they are—not as they used to be—he has evaluated his position, decided the time for action has come—action of the kind he has not known, much less ever taken, before . . . But his first moves already indicate an outlook and confidence of manner that augur well.

Menu for Large Or Small Kitchen

The following menu can be prepared in the small apartment size kitchen or the large home kitchen. Modern gas ranges are available for every size kitchen and increase the fun of cooking.

Oyster Cocktail
Roast Chicken With Almond Dressing
Buttered Broccoli
Mashed Potatoes
Baked Squash Cranberry Relish
Olives Celery
Mints Date Pudding Coffee

Roast Chicken

3½-4 pound well-cleaned roasting chicken. Remove pin feathers, singe, wash and dry. Rub the inside with salt and stuff lightly with 2 or 3 cups almond dressing. Truss and rub with fat. Place breast side up on a rivet in a shallow roasting pan. Cook for 15 minutes at 475 degrees. Reset the oven to 300 degrees and roast 45 minutes to an hour longer.

Broccoli

Remove large leaves. Pare off outer skin of the main stalk and split. Cook in boiling salt water until easily pierced with a fork, approximately 15-20 minutes. Drain and season with salt and butter and lemon juice.

Date Pudding

Cup chopped dates
1 cup boiling water
1 cup chopped nuts
¾ cup sifted flour
¾ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup sugar
1 whole egg
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat water then add dates and butter. Mix and sift flour, soda and salt, then stir in nuts. Beat egg and gradually beat in sugar; combine with date mixture. Stir in flour and nut mixture, then add vanilla. Pour into two well-greased 8-inch cake pans and bake at 275 degrees for one hour or until it springs back to the touch. Serve with a spoon and garnish with whipped cream. May be served hot or cold.

Oatmeal Fruit Cookies

¼ cup fat
¼ cup honey
¼ cup brown sugar (packed)
1 cup sifted bread flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons milk
1½ cup raw oatmeal (quick cooked)
½cup finely chopped dried apricots and dates
1-3 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream fat; then add the sugar gradually. When well blended, stir in the honey. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Combine the oatmeal, fruit and nuts with the sifted ingredients. Next add part of this mixture to the creamed fat and sugar mixture. When well blended, add the milk and vanilla. Stir in the remaining dry ingredients, and blend well. Use about a teaspoon of dough for each cookie. Roll into balls with the palm of the hand. Place about 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Flatten into thin cookies with the bottom of a water glass. Stretch a piece of slightly dampened cloth over the bottom of the glass. Bake cookies in a 325 degree oven for 15-20 minutes, or until a light brown color. Remove from pan while hot. Place on a rack to cool and store in a tightly covered jar. Make 36-40 cookies.

Do You Know Quiz for Cooks On Kitchen Utensils

The cookery characteristics of the kitchenwares upon which you will depend if, as, and when all household aluminum may have to be contributed for purposes of national defense.

That glassware designed for direct contact with the open flame absorbs heat easily, browns food evenly, and cooks it just as quickly and far better at a simmer than at a higher temperature for faster cooking.

That stainless steel heats evenly and quickly, so the utensil should be used with moderate or low temperature. This metal takes on a heat tint at higher temperatures. All kitchenwares last longer with the modern gas range because it provides controlled temperatures in any degree desired.

Baking Powder Biscuits With Variations

2 cups sifted flour
4 tablespoons fat
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ to 1 cup milk

Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut or rub in fat until mixture looks like meal. Add gradually enough milk to make a soft dough. Knead lightly for a minute. Roll on lightly floured board until half-inch thick. Cut and place on a flat sheet. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. (On the new high-speed gas ranges biscuits can be placed in cold oven with control set at 475 degrees. After two or three minutes reset to 450 degrees and bake until done.)

VARIATIONS

To make delicious cheese biscuits for salads add ½ cup grated American cheese to the biscuit receipe before any liquid is added.

Cocktail sausages may be wrapped in biscuit dough and baked as above to make a delicious snack.

Gas Industry Set to Play Major Role in U. S. Defense

Increasingly a nation at war looks to its gas industry as one of its most powerful resources serving a double purpose. It must continue fuel service to its people and at the same time produce gas for use as a chemical raw material in the production of sinews of war ranging from explosives to healing agents in the cause of mercy.

Germany, lacking in customary motor fuels, turned to its manufactured gas companies to produce synthetic motor fuel from coal—highly expensive, but a necessity. British and Canadian gas companies are supplying chemists with many materials of war from by-products derived from the carbonization of coal to make gas. Among these are TNT, lyddite and other explosives; benzol motor fuels; sulphate of ammonia, and many drugs and various antiseptics.

The United States is in an enviable position to produce explosives from raw materials made possible by recent chemical advances. Devastating explosives can now be made from natural gas of which this country has the world's greatest supply, from crude oils, by fermentation of carbohydrates, from sugars and from bituminous coals. Whereas the natural gas industry previously was not considered a source of explosives, it now offers great and unlimited possibilities.

In the event of defense needs, manufactured gas companies could rearrange their systems so that they could extract toluol from the gas without in any way interrupting domestic service of supplying fuel for cooking, water heating, refrigeration and house heating, as well as vital services to commerce and industry used in an ever widening scale.

Toluol from gas is a chemical utilized as a solvent in American peace-time industries, but it can be converted by the action of nitric and sulphuric acids into TNT. This is but one of several powerful explosives in the manufacture of which the gas industry plays an important part.

Gas Has Become Genie of Modern Era for Science

Gas, the dependable cooking fuel that millions of homemakers long took for granted as an unromantic convenience, has become the genie of the modern era.

During the last 20 years while the realm of the familiar blue flame has been expanding to encompass American industry, chemists have been fabricating a brand-new world from this same gas that issues from the soil or is manufactured in the great coke ovens of our cities.

To the man on the street, gas is synonymous with the modern mechanical servant for the four big jobs of cooking, water heating, refrigeration and heating within the home. To the chemist it is an Aladdin's Lamp, and offers him limitless possibilities of creating synthetic organic chemicals with which to form new products for the production of which there can be built new industries to fill a myriad of wants and needs.

Thanks to the chemist working with gas as a raw material, we owe many diverse and widely varied products important in our life such as cellophane, rayon and synthetic fibers.

Spaghetti and Meat Balls

1½ pounds ground beef.
½ cup sliced onion.
1 can or 2 cups tomato.
½ cup water.
1½ cups broken, uncooked spaghetti.
2 tablespoons melted fat.
1½ teaspoons salt.
Pepper to taste.

Season meat with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper to taste, then shape into balls about the size of small eggs.

Melt the fat in the aluminum skillet, and brown the meat balls. Arrange sliced onions on top of the meat balls and pour on the tomato and water. Now drop the uncooked spaghetti on top of all the food. Cover pan and simmer slowly until tender, about 45 minutes.

Green Beans

1 pound string beans (frenched)
Salt and butter to taste.

Wash beans and french. Place in an aluminum sauce pan. Cover and cook with full flame till steam appears, then turn to a low simmer flame and cook until tender, approximately 35 minutes. Season and serve.

Strawberry Tapioca

1 quart fresh strawberries (hulled).
1 cup sugar.
2 cups water.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1/3 cup Minute Tapioca.
1 cup strawberry juice and water.
½ cup cream, whipped.

Crush strawberries, add sugar, and let stand 30 minutes. Place water in saucepan and bring to boil over flame. Add salt and tapioca; stir constantly and cook for five minutes over low flame. Remove from flame as mixture clears, and cool until it thickens. Drain strawberries; add water to juice to make two cups. When tapioca mixture is slightly cool, add strawberry juice. Pour ¼ of this mixture into parfait glasses, chill. When remaining tapioca mixture is cold, fold in cream; pile lightly in glasses. Garnish with crushed strawberries.

More Than Name

The smokeless broilers are better than the name says. Many of the better ranges have independent broilers at convenient heights. This means doubling the capacity of your range and brings the food up to a convenient height. Another interesting feature on some gas ranges is the way the broiler pan automatically slides out the oven once the door is opened.

Extra deep broilers can be used for cooking whole hams, roasts, chickens, or turkeys. If you like the real barbecue flavor, the meat can be basted with barbecue sauce during the long, slow cooking.

A Time-Saver

Try making muffins in the evening—fill pans, cover, and store in refrigerator. Then the next morning cook the muffins and breakfast bacon in the oven at the same time.

Short-Order Meal

Broiled Salisbury Steak

1 pound ground beef or hamburger
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons milk or enough to make a moist cake
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup soft bread crumbs

Pour liquid on crumbs, add seasoning and then blend into meat. Shape into a cake an inch thick or several small cakes.

String Beans

Season cold cooked string beans with salt and pepper. Drain off excess liquid.

Apple Rings

Wash apples and cut cross-wise into half-inch slices. If desired, the cores may be removed. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon.

Potato Slices

Cut cold boiled potatoes in half-inch slices lengthwise. Brush with melted butter or bacon fat.

Place string beans in bottom of heated broiling pan from which grid has been removed and dot with butter or bacon fat. Put grid of broiler in place and pre-heat 8-10 minutes.

Pull out broiler and arrange steak in center of broiler grid. Place the apple rings and potato slices around it. Place broiler pan so the surface is 1½ inches below the tips of the full flame. Broil seven minutes, or until nicely browned, then turn and broil about six minutes. Reduce the flame slightly after three or four minutes. The exact time for broiling depends upon whether you prefer rare, medium or well-cooked meat.

Chicken Pie A la California

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
3 cups sweet milk
1¾ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 1-3 cups cooked diced celery
1 cup cooked peas
1 1-3 cups diced, cooked potatoes
1 13-ounce can tuna fish
1 4-ounce can mushrooms
1 pimiento (optional)
1½ cups biscuit mixture for crust

Melt butter in top of double boiler. Add flour, salt and pepper and blend well. Pour milk in gradually and cook until thick and creamy, stirring constantly to prevent lumping.

Remove any skin or bones from tuna. Flake fish into medium size pieces. Fold vegetables and tuna into cream sauce. Pour hot mixture into a good size baking dish. Cover the top with biscuit rings. Place in a 425 degree oven and bake 35 minutes or until nicely browned.

Biscuit Crust

1½ cups sifted general purpose flour
3 tablespoons fat
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½-¾ cup milk

Sift dry ingredients. Cut fat in with dough bender or knives until a mealy texture. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Knead lightly then pat or roll to ½ inch thickness. Cut biscuits with a doughnut cutter. Place the rings around the outer edge of pie and fill the center with the tiny biscuits left over after cutting the rings.

Hotel Publicity Man Gives Recipes From 'Back Home'

Many a man remembers longingly the way his mother made a particular dish that made his mouth water. Joe Duepree, publicity director, Shoreham Hotel, is in this class—he remembers—then goes about making the dish.

Although Joe is extremely busy at the hotel now that Washington hotel activities are so increased, yet he always has time to "toss off" a meal. And most of his cooking is done by "ear"—as he remembers from the days back in Indiana when he watched his mother cook.

Joe married a home economics graduate, but she doesn't mind at all when Joe "takes over" in the kitchen. And she is pleased, too, because he does not leave a trail of floury utensils or make expensive dishes.

Escalloped tomatoes and celery is one dish that Joe prepares that is in the low-cost bracket. And when he cooks he knows how many can be served from the amount he is preparing. Here is a recipe for his escalloped dish:

Escalloped Tomatoes and Celery—Drain half of the juice from a No. 1 can of tomatoes. Put the tomatoes, 1½ cups celery and 1 cup of cracker crumbs in a buttered casserole. Mix thoroughly. Sprinkle ½ cup of cracker crumbs over the top and dot generously with squares of butter. A bit of chopped onion may be used if desired. Bake in a hot oven 400 degrees for about 30 minutes until brown. Serves four.

Gold Cup Cakes are also something that Joe makes with great success. He is thrifty in making these cakes for odd egg yolks may be utilized. His recipe for making them follows:

Gold Cup Cakes—Sift ½ cup sugar. Beat until soft ¾ cup butter. Add the sugar to butter gradually and blend these ingredients until creamy. Add the grated rind of 1 orange or lemon. Beat in one at a time, 4 egg yolks. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Sift before measuring ⅞ cup flour (1 cup less 2 tablespoons) and resift with 1 teaspoon baking powder. Add the sifted ingredients to the butter mixture in three parts alternately with thirds of ¼ cup of milk. Stir in ½ cup currants if desired. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for about 20 minutes. Dust with powdered sugar or spread with icing.

Coffee Cake A Breakfast Treat

A delicious coffee cake is certain to make sleepy heads want to get up for their breakfast. The following is a recipe for making crumb coffee cake:

Crumb Coffee Cake—Sift together 1 cup sugar, 2 cups all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon each of ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg, and work in ½ cup butter or other shortening, as in making baking powder biscuits. Take out 1 cup of this crumbly mixture and set aside. Mix together 1 beaten egg and ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk to which has been added ½ teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Stir in the flour and shortening mixture in the bowl, beating until well mixed. Add ½ cup raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts. Butter a round or square cake pan with fairly deep sides. In the bottom spread half of the reserved crumbs, pour in the batter, spreading it evenly, then sprinkle the remaining crumbs over the top. Bake 40 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Let cool in pan.

Done to an Epicurean Turn

Joe Duepree, publicity director, Shoreham Hotel, is shown broiling a steak in his new gas range. He especially likes the convenient height of the broiler and the way the broiler pan automatically slides out the oven when the door opens. Joe doesn't need an apron to keep the grease spots away or on which to wipe his hands while cooking

Home Service Director Gives Menus, Recipes for Summer Cookery

Hot Dishes Indicated for Good Health

By Ruth Sheldon

Food for the summer days! What will it be—salads, iced tea and ice cream? Cold and chilled foods are delicious, but for one's state of good health some hot dishes are indicated. Doubtless you have noticed that you relish a hot meal on the hottest day if you eat in a cooled dining room—and feel better for having eaten it.

Sometimes a hot cream soup makes a good beginning for a cold-plate meal. In addition to being a warm food, a cream soup affords another way of getting more milk in the menu.

Foods that "stick to your ribs" are easily prepared, as casserole dishes. A casserole may be just one food, such as macaroni and cheese or scalloped potatoes; or it may be equal to an entire main course, if both meat and vegetables are put in it. Another advantage is that many casserole dishes may be prepared some time before they are cooked. For summertime cookery, this means that the main work of meal preparation can be gotten out of the way in the morning. Then when it is nearly meal time, all the busy housekeeper needs to do is to light the oven of a modern insulated gas range, set the heat control at the correct temperature, and place the food in it. If she owns one of those convenient minute minders, she can set it and forget all about the cooking until the bell rings. Many of the new modern gas ranges are equipped with these minute minders.

The insulated oven helps keep the kitchen cool and the thrifty housekeeper learns to turn the gas off before the baking period is over. The retained heat in the insulation will complete the baking with a real fuel saving.

Skillet Meal

Another variation for a whole dish meal that cooks while you rest in the living room is a skillet meal. Just get out your large aluminum skillet with its cover. Brown the meat first. (You may use lamb chops, meat cakes, mock chicken legs and the like.) Then tuck the vegetables in around the meat, add a small amount of water, cover and cook over a low simmer until done. The new style burners can be turned to the low simmer flame to do this kind of cooking.

Or with a quick meal that can be slipped out of the refrigerator and popped into the range at the last minute, there is the whole broiled meal. Such a meat or fish, cooked potatoes, tomatoes, green beans, and fruits. These are delicious broiled and can be cooked so easily. The modern smokeless broilers are easily cleaned and some of them are made to be taken right to the table for serving.

These and many more minute and worry-saving ideas are possible when one uses a new modern gas range.

Perhaps these few suggestions of menus and recipes may help in planning for summer meals.

MISS SHELDON

Cheese Bread-Sanwiches
Deep Apple Pie Coffee

Broiled Meat and Vegetable Rolls.
Tomato Halves with Cheese.
Assorted Fruits.
Garlic Bread.
Sponge Cake and Berries.

The recipes for the Chilled Coffee Comfort and Salmon Loaf follow:

Chicken Liver and Bacon.
Glazed Sweet Potatoes. Brown Summer Squash.
Cinnamon Peach Halves. Head Lettuce Salad.
Fruit Punch and Cookies. Toasted Rolls.

Chilled Coffee Comfort

1 square chocolate
1½ cups milk
Dash of salt
10 marshmallows
1 cup double-strength freshly brewed coffee.

Melt chocolate. Place milk and coffee in saucepan and heat to scalding point. Combine with melted chocolate, add salt, and blend thoroughly. Then add marshmallows and heat, beating constantly with a rotary beater until marshmallows are melted and mixture is creamy and foamy. Pour over ice cubes in tall tumblers. Serve chilled. Serves 4.

Salmon Loaf

1 pound can salmon
2 eggs
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1-3 cup milk
Juice of ½ lemon
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon onion salt

Empty salmon from can, and remove all skin and bones. Scald the milk; then add bread crumbs. Stir in the salmon and beaten egg yolks with the seasonings. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 35-40 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Vegetable Salad Plate

Cooked carrots
Cooked beets
Cooked green peas or beans
Head lettuce
Cooked asparagus tips or tomatoes
Cooked cauliflower
Stuffed eggs

Marinate the cooked vegetables separately in French dressing for at least a half hour. When ready to serve, drain off the French dressing and arrange each vegetable in individual lettuce cup, using tomato wedges and stuffed eggs for garnish in the center of each plate. One cup of each vegetable will serve about six plates. Serve with mayonnaise.

Note—Cooked leftover vegetables can be utilized in this kind of salad.

Casserole Special

2-3 cup uncooked rice
½ medium-sized onion sliced thin
1½ cups cooked ground meat
1 cup sliced carrots
1½ cups tomatoes
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Put a layer of uncooked rice in the bottom of a greased baking dish. Then add other foods in layers. First the meat, then the onions, next the carrots, and then another layer of rice, with tomatoes poured over the top. Season with salt and pepper. Dot with butter on top. Cover and bake in 375-degree oven until rice is done, or about 50 minutes. Serves four to six people.

Broiler Meal For Hot Days

Broiled Lamb Ring

1 pound ground lamb
1 cup coarse bread crumbs
5 tablespoons milk
A dash of garlic salt or ½ small onion, scraped
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoonful salt

Pour milk over crumbs to soften them. Add seasonings and mix thoroughly with the lamb. Shape in a ring about 8 inches in diameter and place in a round cake or pie pan. Preheat broiler 8 minutes, then slide in pan so that surface of meat is about 2 inches from tips of flame. Broil 12 minutes with full flame. Reduce flame; place pan with buttered peach halves on broiler and cook about 5 minutes longer or until nicely browned. Lift ring from pan with spatula or cake turner and place on hot platter. Fill center with buttered green peas and garnish with peaches which have been glazed in broiler.

Delicious Green Peas

2 pounds unshelled green peas (approx. 2 cups shelled)
¼-1-3 cup water
¼ teaspoon salt

Shell and wash peas. Use a saucepan with close-fitting lid. Pour water and salt in saucepan. Add the peas; cover and heat with full flame until steam escapes around cover. Reduce to a low or simmer flame and cook until tender, 10 or 12 minutes. Season with butter and more salt if desired. Serve at once.

Creamed Potatoes

Heat diced potatoes in a medium cream sauce. Use a double broiler or very slow heat to prevent sticking.

Glazed Peaches

Drain canned peach halves well. Brush with melted butter and place under broiler flame until a delicate brown.

A frozen fruit salad or other fruit dessert is recommended to top off this excellent hot weather meal.

Housekeeping Hints

Soft paper dusters pick up the dust readily, do not scratch fine woods, and require no washing.

During the summer it is nice to replace linen runners and doilies with cool-looking grass mats.

Attractive Vegetable Platter

Broiled Candied Sweet Potatoes
Broiled Tomatoes
Cole Slaw and Dressing
Frenched Green Beans

Noodle Ring with Cream Sauce
Fresh Green Peas (in center)
Tomato Cups Filled with Yellow Corn
Brussel Sprouts

Stuffed Baked Potatoes
Asparagus with Hollandaise Sauce
Carrot Timbals
Paprika Onions

Eat plenty of vegetables to help maintain your good health. These platters will supply a goodly amount of vitamins A, B and C, as well as some G; also, part of the day's requirement of minerals. Supplement the vegetables with eggs or cheese, milk, butter and cream to make a balanced meal.

Don't waste valuable foodstuffs. Cook vegetables the modern way with little or no water, using the low simmer flame.

Spinach Ring Cauliflower
Carrots and Peas Beets

1 pound peas (1½ cups).
4 medium carrots (3 cups).
5 medium beets (1½ cups).
1 pound cauliflower (1 small head).

Spinach Ring

3 pounds spinach.
Salt.
4 tablespoons butter.
Pepper.

Wash spinach in seven waters, lifting the spinach out after each washing. Cook for 10 to 20 minutes in the water that clings to it. Drain well, chop and season. Pack spinach into a buttered ring mold, 8½ inches, and keep warm until time to serve. Unmold in center of platter. Fill center with buttered cooked carrots and peas, mixed. Arrange cauliflower and quartered beets alternately around the outside of the ring. Dress cauliflower with buttered crumbs and serve beets with lemon butter or vinegar sauce. Serve hot. Serve 6.

Hint: Try paring raw beets; then dice and cook.

A Cheese Souffle Should Be Baked At Low Temperature

That favorite summertime main dish—cheese souffle—will rise high and bake to tenderness (without benefit of a water bath) in an oven temperature as low as 300 degrees F.—but do not use higher than 325.

Composed of milk, eggs and cheese, a souffle is simple to make and easy to bake when there's a modern gas range in the kitchen; its oven with even distribution of heat and positive control of temperature is vital to baking a perfect souffle, puffy and delicate.

In general, from 45 to 60 minutes is the baking time required for this dainty dish, depending upon the size a recipe makes. It may be baked in a casserole of glass or oven pottery, preferably. And the old-fashioned all-over knife test is the best test for doneness—inserting it into the center; when the knife comes out clean, the souffle is baked and ready to serve.

A regulation cheese souffle is so fragile it will wait upon no one; so speed from the oven to heated serving plates is essential.

Simmer Burners Cut Gas Costs And Aid Comfort

Simmer burners not only provide a comfortable kitchen but they bring about economy in gas consumption. The oven of a modern gas range is insulated and keeps the kitchen cool, but the oven is used only occasionally while the top burners are used for every meal. Scientific tests prove that top burners use at least 80 per cent of the gas consumed on the average range.

Gas used by top burners is saved because of the modern cooking method with a small quantity of water made possible with simmer burners. Less water to heat means less gas burned and it is the first reason why the kitchen stays cooler when simmer burners are used. The second reason for the cooler kitchen is that far less gas is used in maintaining the boiling and cooking. Thus simmer burners provide both economy and a more comfortable kitchen.

The new simmer burners afford other advantages. Such a burner can be "trusted."

Spiced Salmon Salad Tempting In Hot Weather And Easy to Prepare

Hostesses will soon be wrestling with the problem of serving tempting warm weather dishes. Salmon, that worthy seafood which supplies high grade protein, calcium, phosphorus, iodine and vitamins A, D and G, makes a spiced salad mold having great piquancy.

Spiced salmon salad mold can be made the day before a party, before a holiday or in the morning to be served at the evening meal. It is very simple to prepare, too, for the recipe for it uses several short cuts. Of course, the canned salmon itself is a great time saver. Here is the recipe for making it:

Spiced Salmon Salad Mold—Arrange one half of a 1-pound can of canned salmon which has been flaked in the bottom of a loaf pan. Dissolve 2 packages lemon gelatin in 1½ cups boiling water. Mix well. Add half the gelatin mixture to ¾ cup chili sauce. Add ½ cup cold water, ¼ cup lemon juice, 3 tablespoons vinegar and ½ teaspoon salt to the remaining mixture. Pour half of this mixture over the salmon flakes. Chill until congealed. Add 1 cup chopped celery to the chili sauce and pour over jellied salmon. Chill. Then add remaining salmon and remaining gelatin mixture. Chill until firm. Serve on bed of shredded lettuce with garnish of sweet pickles and lemon wedges.

Lovely to See; Delightful to Eat

A stuffed tomato with spooned petals of cream cheese become a rose when placed in a nest of lettuce. Served with hot rolls, cheese sticks Melba toast or nut bread, and accompanied by a cool drink, you have a nourishing summer salad both lovely to look at and delightful to eat.

Canning Made Easy

Do Canning In the Oven

Canning can be done in the oven of the modern gas range. A remarkable new burner makes it possible to maintain steady, low temperatures essential for canning.

Oven canning the modern gas range way is the simplest thing imaginable! After fruits or vegetables have been prepared, placed in jars and covered with boiling canning syrup, they are put in oven with temperature set at about 250 degrees F. After prescribed time has elapsed, jars are removed, lids tightened and jars tested for leaks. That's all there is to it! No rigamarole! No ordeal! It's really fun!

Barbecue Improves Flavor

Barbecue, or open-fire broiling which produces that unequalled flavor, may now be done right in one's own kitchen completely free from the toil, heat and smoke which accompanies cooking out-of-doors. Many 1941 gas ranges offer this latest and greatest modern convenience in broiling, adding the berbecue feature to conventional broiling, so that a roast, a ham, a turkey or whole chickens may be broiled roasted or berbecued under the open flame as easily as steaks and chops are broiled

Doughnut Dunking In New Manner

Dunkers will be glad to learn that a predunked doughnut has made its appearance on the market. It is similar in size and shape to the ordinary round cake with the hole, except the new type is made by mixing coffee flavoring with sugar and then rolling and dunking the doughnut in the coffee-flavored sugar. After it dries the doughnut tastes like one that has been dunked in coffee.

This new product eliminates the dunking, yet the dunking flavor is obtained without splashing and wet fingers. The invention is credited to a former chef of the Trocadero Restaurant in Hollywood, Calif. He observed that motion picture celebrities did not dunk even though they professed a liking for it. So he conceived the idea of the predunked doughnut, and the Doughnut Corporation of America and its staff of baking technicians and food economists did the rest.

Staggered Tap Aids Cooks

Modern home makers have found the ultimate in top-of-range cooking convenience in the new "staggered" top gas range. With close to 85 per cent of all cooking done on the top burners, owners of "staggered" top gas ranges would not be without the fine cooking service this top provides.

The facilitation of cooking tasks made possible brings with it a new conception of cooking ease and comfort. The "staggered" top takes not just one, but four large utensils and performs extra-capacity cooking operations with plenty of elbow room.

Awkward "reach over" and "reach around" are now eliminated. Old-time annoyance caused by hot utensil handles and burned wrists is ended. "Staggered" top also banished forever the cluttered up, inefficient top-of-range confusion.

Regular cooking operations, too, are made easier by this revolutionary refinement. Ample space is provided for cooking spoons or forks beside the utensils with which they are used. Serving dishes may be filled right at the side of these cooking utensils.

Time and energy are both saved when cooking is done on the popular, patented "staggered" top gas range. New enjoyment and pleasure are assured by this latest contribution to better cooking.

Lemon Gelatin A Good Quickie

1 box lemon flavored gelatine
3 slices pineapple cubed
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup pimientoes chopped fine
1 cup canned pineapple juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 medium size cucumber cut fine, salted and drained.

Dissolve gelatine in boiling water stirring well. Add pineapple juice and vinegar. Chill. When slightly thickened, add other ingredients. Pour into molds. Chill until firm. Serve with creamy salad dressing. Shredded blanched almonds are a pleasant addition.

Baked tomatoes and a simple refrigerator dessert, added to the above, make a delightful summer menu.

Cooking Factor In Providing Good Porkchops

Pork chops can be "just pork chops" or the "best pork chops you've ever eaten!" Usually it's the difference between proper and improper cooking that determines the classification.

Pork chops, to be at their most delicious best, should be cooked slowly by braising. It's only by long, slow and thorough cooking that you get the real benefit of the full, rich flavor of pork.

Extra flavor and goodness are also in store if you have the pork chops cut about an inch thick or at least three-quarters of an inch.

How to Braise

Dredge the chops with flour and season with salt and pepper. Brown well on fat edges, then brown both sides. Cover closely and cook slowly, turning occasionally for even browning. This will take about 45 minutes for 1-inch chops. Pork chops cooked this way have a lusciously browned, almost glazed exterior and a white, tender, juicy interior. Give pork plenty of time in cooking. The results are worth the effort.

For a different flavor, a clove of garlic may be placed in the pan while browning the chops then removed. Or a piece of bay leaf may be used for flavor variety.

Glazed Apple Slices

The glazed apple slices used as a garnish are an appropriate accompaniment for pork chops. To make them, boil together 1 cup sugar and ½ cup water for 5 minutes. Do not peel apples but slice into three-quarter inch slices. Place apple slices in pan with syrup, cover tightly and simmer slowly until apples are tender but not soft. Use as a garnish for pork chops, serving them hot and topped with a small spoonful of grape or apple jelly.

'Weatherstrip' Oven Is Feature Of New Ranges

Have you ever heard of "weatherstripping" a gas range oven? That's just what has been done in the "Seal-Tight" oven featured in a number of modern gas ranges.

Strips of spring metal are placed on the top, bottom and sides of the oven opening. When the oven door is closed, the oven is virtually sealed tight. This eliminates excessive heat loss as well as enamel discoloration. Greater efficiency, more satisfactory service, cooler kitchens—and longer-lived beauty of the gas range is thereby assured. The sturdy, close-fitting oven doors are always in alignment and contribute to keeping the heat in the oven.

The "Seal-Tight" oven, along with the oven-bottom "Observalite," has proven to be among the most popular of the many new tively styled modern gas ranges. "pluses" offered in the distinc- The "Observalite," a glass "window" in the oven-bottom, permits one to see instantly the oven burner flame. This unexcelled convenience feature is matched only by the "Insta-Flame" lighter, which does away with the range-top match box.

With this lighter, top burners, oven and broiler start action at the turn of a handle, to whatever speed is desired. In such ways as these, modern gas ranges continue to make cooking easier, more enjoyable and productive of results desired.

Speed Burners

Four top burners that have the capacity of many times that number! That's what you'll have on the modern gas ranges equipped with special simmer speed burners. They have one giant burner, 3 regular size burners, and the special simmer feature on all of them. One manufacturer even has a special burner for small kettles and percolator. It is called a "mighty-mite."

Saturday for Sunday

Waffle batter to be used for Sunday morning breakfast may be [illegible] Saturday night. Store [illegible] ready to use in the morning. A double-action baking powder should be used. When the preparation is

Sixty Years of Progress in Gas Ranges Produce Changes

1881

Back in 1811 this gas range was the apple of the housewife's eyes. Biscuits were kept hot in the top warming closet and water boiled in the tank attached to side. This type saved back-bending replenishing of wood and coal.

1901

By 1901 the oven had shifted from right to left and the old warming closet had disappeared. So had the sprawling legs. The model above was the ultimate in modern gas cookery and the progressive homemaker would have no other.

1941

1941 finds the modern gas range streamlined to the nth degree. All space is utilized to advantage as shown above. Side compartments have ample room for cooking utensils. Oven and broiler are centered for maximum heat and space. Heat is easily regulated so as to consume a minimum amount of gas

Save Work, Learn to Broil For Summer

WHEN someone said, "the broiling days are here, the hottest of the year," they meant the meals and not the homemaker should be broiled. For what is so delicious as a complementary combination of foods broiled and served quickly?

One of the newer and improved tricks on gas stoves is the broiler. Some swings out easily at the flick of the wrist. Others pull out magically. Many are at more convenient heights than ever and are marked with temperature charts. Best of all, temperature controls and thermometers are perfected to a high degree. Today, with a modern range there is practically no smoke, no external heat to annoy the cook, and no need to bend double to broil food.

Broil the whole meal and you save time, not only in preparation, but also in washing utensils If you would plan a meat, starchy food and a vegetable which can be broiled at one time, you'd be wise. You can even broil a dessert of grapefruit liberally sprinkled with brown sugar.

A combination that satisfies most families because it has complementary flavor and color is one of lamb patties wrapped in bacon, tomatoes sprinkled with buttered crumbs, and boiled whole potatoes cheese-topped. Incidentally, the resultant low spot in the budget is due to the thriftiness of these foods.

Preparation of Grill

To prepare this grill, have ground lamb shaped into thick patties and wrapped with bacon, fastening the ends of bacon with toothpicks. Thoroughly preheat broiling oven. Place lamb patties on broiling rack on there is a distance of about 3 inches between top of meat and source of heat. When patties are browned, turn. Arrange thick tomato slices sprinkled with buttered crumbs, and whole boiled potatoes covered with grated cheese, on broiling rack. Broil until all are browned. Serve on hot platter.

With this starter, continue your broiler meals. Try broiled calf liver and bacon, served with buttered noodles. Or marinate lamb shoulder steaks in a tart French dressing with a bit of garlic, and broil. Then serve them with green beans in cream, and a dish of, half and half, carrots and onions which have been sliced, cooked, buttered and combined.

But don't stop there. Try another thrift meal which you prepare like this: Place cooked green beans in the broiler pan, and on the rack over them lay meat patties made of ground beef and pork. Broil the meat until brown, and turn. Place on the rack beside it some link sausage which you have first cooked well in a frying pan), bacon and halves of potatoes spread with fat. Broil until all is delicately browned and piping hot.

To please the children (and who isn't childish about frankfurters?) simmer some 'furters for five minutes. Split lengthwise and stuff with a teaspoon of pickle relish and a "finger" length of American cheese. Skewer with toothpicks. Slice cooked sweet potatoes, brush with butter and lay on the broiler rack. When lightly browned, turn and broil for one minute. Arrange frankfurters on the rack and broil until cheese is melted and frankfurters are browned.

"Glo-Broiler" Provides Heat For Broiling Speed

A forward step over all previous broiling methods has been made by the "Glo" broiler recently introduced in one of the new modern gas ranges. Perfected after exhaustive factory experiments and field tests, this sensational new broiler is available in several de luxe modern gas ranges.

"Infra red" heat provided by the Glo burner assures more speed and more intense penetration. Even extra thick steaks may be broiled more quickly than ever before.

Charred rare or medium steaks are just a few of the startling possibilities provided by this excellent broiler. Broiling tasks may be accomplished in as much as 20 per cent less time than formerly.

Peasant Ware Pottery Broiler

Fine flavored, palate tickling broiled dinners, served piping-hot on the table with a "peasant-Ware" pottery broiler! That's the thrill awaiting homemakers with one of the new modern gas ranges.

Steaks, ham—even entire dinners may now be brought quickly to nourishing full-flavored perfection. Food values are enhanced in these meals, broiled in a jiffy! Discriminating hostesses prefer the extra-smart table service provided by "Peasant-Ware" too. The antique pottery grill and its distinctive companion piece, the [illegible] chrome serve-tray, make a combination hard to beat.

This faster, simpler "smokeless" broiling service appeals to everyone. Children and breadwinners these busy days appreciate the appetizing "Peasant-Ware" treats. And doctors everywhere heartily advocate the health-giving broiled meals so easy to prepare with the "Peasant-Ware" broiler.

Once a daring innovation, "Peasant-Ware" has now set a definite trend in new and better broiling service. Marvelous to use, it is easy to keep clean, too. Since it is high-temperature pottery, used for serving as well as broiling

But in 1891 the baking oven and broiler shifted to the top. New burners were added and a lower shelf made room for pots and pans. In fact this gas stove took on a sort of baby grand piano air instead of the old upright shape.

1911

Yet in 1911 still greater improvements had been made in the appearance and construction of the gas stove as shown above. The old black tin or iron frame gave way to a gleaming coat of white enamel. As a whole the stove was more compact and less cumbersome.

1921

The 1921 model above was a thing of beauty and a joy to the cook. It was the beginning of the ultra streamlining in stoves. Oven and broiler were built to conserve heat and space. Dust catching shelves were no more.

Minute Minder Cares for Time

Way back in the last century when cooking was done in a hand-stoked stove, women found that oven-cooking offered the easiest way to prepare a quantity of food. Baking is 100 per cent easier today, and blissfully cool when using an insulated modern gas range; once the food is ready and in the oven, there's nothing else to it. No further need to stick around the kitchen.

A minute minder set for each cooking period of the different types of food will take care of the time element. Bake a cake, rolls, vegetables, a kettle of soup, and over-fry a chicken simultaneously! Leave inch of space on each side or space between utensiles for free circulation of heated air. The baking will be perfect—evenly baked and uniformly browned.

Delicate Cup Cakes a Flavorsome Treat At Any Time

4 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
2-3 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
½ teaspoon orange flavoring
½ cup sifted cake flour plus 2 tablespoonfuls

Beat egg whites with salt until foamy, then add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold in the sugar. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add about 1-3 of egg and sugar mixture to the yolks, folding together to mix well. Then fold this mixture and flavoring into the egg whites. Last of all, fold in the flour gradually. Put rounds of wax paper in the bottom of ungreased medium size muffin pans. Fill 2-3 full with cake mixture and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for 25 minutes. When cool remove from pans. Cut part way around the top crust. Pour in chilled filling and put top down part way.

Filling
½ cup sugar
1-3 cup water
1¼ tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 egg yolk slightly beaten
Pinch of salt
A drop or two of vegetable coloring

Mix flour, sugar and salt; add rind, egg, water and butter. Cook in a saucepan, stirring constantly until it thickens. Add lemon juice. Cool and put in cake. This recipe can be used substituting other fruit flavors.

Gas Ranges Assure Army Of High Standard of Eating

Soldiers in the United States Army of 1940 will have a better chance to build physical strength and morale than did their fathers 23 years ago, who were trained by the long accepted method of roughing it. Times have changed, and standards of living are just as high in the Army today as in civilian life, due to the wide use of modern appliances, according to a recent survey made by the American Gas Association.

Food now means more than mere chow. For the new soldiers, food will be selected for high nutritive value and will be cooked properly on temperature controlled gas ranges. Cleanliness is considered an essential aid to health, and there will be plenty of hot water for baths in warm quarters.

Officials of the gas industry, working in close cooperation with the Government, report that large quantities of domestic and heavy duty ranges, water heaters, space heaters and other gas-operated appliances will equip Army quarters. The industry also is cooperating at full speed in making gas quickly available for use at all proposed training camp and flying fields.

America's permanent Army and Navy posts are said to lead the world in comfort and conveniences, made possible through the use of scientific gas equipment in dormitory buildings, hospitals, laundries and mess halls, as well as in the official residences of both commissioned and noncommissioned officers. During 1939, 62 Army posts utilized gas for all purposes, including cooking, water heating, house heating and refrigeration, while 7 posts used gas for cooking and water heating. An equally heavy utilization was required by the three bureaus of the Navy Department in all their shore activities.

Ribs of Tender Beef

Broiled Steak With Onions

A perfectly broiled steak accompanied by crisp brown French-fried onions is a combination few persons can fail to appreciate. When the steak is cooked in the new type broiler it is said to be done to perfection.

Bananas Addition To Vegetable Plate

Banana scallops are just the food to add interesting color, texture and flavor to a vegetable plate. To be at their best for flavor and crispness they should be cooked to order. Make them this way:

Beat together 1 egg and 1½ teaspoons salt. Peel 6 firm bananas and cut into pieces ¾ to 1 inch long. Dip into egg; then drain 3 to 4 minutes. Roll in ¾ cup fine cornflake crumbs, bread or cracker crumbs or corn meal an hour or more before frying. With a large number, place crumbled scallops on large trays, with waxed paper between layers. Fry in deep hot fat, 375 degrees, 1½ to 2 minutes, or until scallops are brown and tender. Drain on absorbent paper or rack. Serve very hot. Six servings.

Special Devices Same Time, Labor

Special radiant devices are incorporated into some of the broiler burners. These increase the broiling area. Another advantage is that the food is cooked more quickly.

The old high range with warming shelf is a thing of the past, but one new model has a plate-warming rack. Some of the others have special warming compartments.

NEW CONVENIENCE, NEW ECONOMY, NEW QUALITY, NEW DEPENDABILITY

This is the Magic Chef range that 615 home economists, home service directors, housewives, and leading cooking experts designed for the women of America at the request of American Stove Company. Hundreds of lengthy questionnaires were sent out to find out just what the person who does the cooking wanted in a gas range. Answers were tabulated, analyzed; then Magic Chef engineers set out to build a range that would most nearly meet all of the specifications recommended by these women.

The result is a range truly worthy of the name "All American," today's best seller.

Thick Steaks Are Preferable For Broiling; Slow Fire Is Best

A luscious-looking broiled steak, about 2 inches thick, beautifully browned and done just to the turn that you fancy is a superior idea for either a family dinner or guests.

We can be glad that the food considered typically American is one as simple to prepare as broiled steak. Broiling is a convenient and quick method of cooking meat.

Thick Steak Preferable

Select the steak, having it cut at least one, and preferably one and a half or two inches thick for broiling. A thick steak will be more juicy, flavorful and more evenly done than one thinner, and will serve as many people as the same amount of meat in thinner steaks.

A moderately low temperature in broiling is desirable to give a more uniformly cooked product, one more tender and attractive, with less shrinkage and with a higher percentage of edible meat. Then, too, the meat doesn't require as much attention during broiling, there is less smoking and in the long run, fuel consumption will be less.

How to Broil

To get a moderately low temperature for broiling, put the steak on the broiling rack and adjust the distance so that the top of the steak is about three inches from the source of heat. If the depth of your broiler doesn't allow this space, then reduce the heat accordingly.

Fat around the edge of the steak should be cut at intervals to prevent curling during broiling. Turn the steak when the upper side is nicely browned—this will take about 15 minutes for a 1 and one-half inch thick steak you would like to serve rare. Allow slightly longer time for medium doneness.

Season the meat and turn carefully with the fork inserted into the fat; otherwise you'll pierce the steak and some of those good juices will be lost. Finish broiling by browning the other side, seasoning with salt then serving at once on a very hot platter.

French-Fried Onions

French-fried onions, too, are simple to make and are a perfect accompaniment to the broiled steak. To make them, peel onions and cut into one-fourth inch slices. Soak the slices in milk one-half hour, then drain and roll in seasoned flour. Drop the onion rings into deep lard which has been heated to 375 degrees F., and cook until nicely browned. Drain on absorbent paper and serve with the steak.

Ranges Offer Wide Variety In Price, Style

The homemaker who wants a new gas range is bewildered by the many styles and prices. Many low priced ranges are attractive in appearance but are so lightly built that they do not give the long service you expect.

The Washington Gas Light Co. has recently made a study of gas ranges in an effort to find one that could be sold at a low price and still have the same sturdy construction and fine appearance as Deluxe ranges.

This range has exactly the same oven and broiler as the high priced ranges and the same top burners, automatically lighted. The heavy enamelled grates are so designed that heavy utensils can be moved from one part of top to another without lifting.

The white enamel cook-top has the new acid resisting enamel usually found only on higher priced ranges. Fibreglas, the new glass wool insulation, is odorless and heat saving. Oven, broiler and doors have a thick blanket of Fibreglas insulation.

The door springs are outside of heat zone and easily adjusted from front.

At the left is a large compartment which provided convenient storage space for much used utensils.

Instead of one coat, three coats of best grade porcelain enamel are applied to the exterior, giving a more beautiful and lasting finish. Oven and broiler have daylight enamel linings so you can see clear to the rear.

Due to the fact that the range has skyscraper construction, and heavy gauge materials, it is very rigid and should give many years of satisfactory service.

Additional Aids For Easy Working

If a range is located so your shadow falls across the cooking surface, you'll enjoy one of the lights installed in the back of the range.

Do you like to have your kitchen 'dressed up" for company? Just close the cover-all over the cooking top and you have a gleaming white table surface.

For the person who likes griddle cakes and toasted sandwiches, there are ranges with a griddle built in to the table top.

Speaking of table top space, no kitchen has enough when a meal is being prepared and served. The table space beside the gas burners certainly is very handy and a boon to every housekeeper.

Hash goes to parties when shaped into small cakes. Brown well on both sides and slip into hot buttered biscuits. Tuck in pickle relish mixed with an equal [illegible] and serve at once.

Household Hints

Dough-encrusted bowls and dishes wash easily if they are soaked in clear, cold water before putting them in the hot, soapy dish water.

To glaze a fruit cake, brush the top of the cake with corn syrup and return to the oven long enough to dry the glaze.

Iced coffee retains its original strength if it is chilled with cubes of frozen coffee. Just pour cooled coffee into the freezing trays of your Servel Electrolux Refrigerator.

Remove the grids from the deep freezing tray; fill about half full of either clear or tinted water and freeze. Next arrange a wreath of garnish on top of the ice using Maraschino Cherries, fresh mint, and lemon slices. Pour on a very small amount of water and freeze. When the decorations are safely anchored, complete filling the tray with water and freeze. This makes an attractive block of ice for the punch bowl.

Bacon and waffles are grand when served like this: Place a square of bacon in each section of the waffle iron. Add batter and cook as usual.

Use sour cream in lamb stew. For 2 cups of stew mixture add 1-3 cup thick sour cream. Put it in during the last 20 minutes of the cooking.

An excess of heat will kill yeast used in making breads. Be sure that any liquid added to the yeast is not too warm.

Apricots added to stuffing for veal or lamb will make a hit. Put 2-3 cup chopped cooked apricots in each 3 cups of bread.

Molasses gives extra flavor and color to pumpkin pie filling. Put 2 tablespoons of molasses into your regular filling using 2 cups of pumpkin.

Sprinkle grated cheese over the top of escalloped chicken or chicken pot pie during the last 15 minutes of the baking period.

Add a speck of sugar to the water when cooking corn, peas or carrots. The vegetables will have a little better flavor.

To clean and soften leather, rub well with one part of vinegar and two parts linseed oil. Polish with a clean, soft cloth.

To remove any rust from a flat-iron, rub with paraffin while the iron is warm—not hot—and then rub with salt.

When glass jars are fully sealed before processing, the loss of liquid is reduced, appearance of contents is improved, time is saved and need for handling hot jars after processing is eliminated.

Fresh garden beans contain about as much vitamin C as tomatoes. Although from 30 to 40 per cent of the vitamin content is lost in cooking, beans still are considered a good source.

A Proud Possessor

No doubt all the modern convenience of this modern, ultra streamlined gas range is the root of the pretty woman's smile. With this stove she can cook with no wasted effort and in double-quick time

Simple Summer Menu

A dash of pepper
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cooked rice (left over)
A pinch of nutmeg
¼ cup medium thick cream sauce or gravy
2 eggs

Mix chicken and rice, add enough cream sauce to moisten. Season and add beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites stiff and fold lightly into mixture. Pour into buttered baking dish. Sprinkle the top with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees 30-40 minutes, or until nicely browned. Serve at once, since this shrinks while cooling.

New Residences Contain Modern Gas Cooking Service

Metropolitan Washington has witnessed in the past several years a considerable amount of new residential construction possibly more than any city of comparable size in the United States.

The Washington building trades in carrying out their program of new development and construction have exerted every possible effort to employ the most modern and scientific construction methods, contributing to the greater convenience and comfort of the ultimate home occupant.

It is particularly significant that modern gas cooking service has been employed by these craftsmen in 95 per cent of the new residential construction in the past several years. This remarkable showing is indeed a tribute to the modern gas range which represents the results of years of planning and engineering which labor-saving and comfort-adding devices will give years of benefits to the new home occupants for years to come.

Obsolete Models Lack Convenient Cooking Aids

When is a gas range obsolete? Wherein does the new gas range differ from the old? What are the salient features of the appliance which determine whether a gas range is modern?

These are some of the questions which Washington housewives need to have answered when considering whether their gas ranges need replacement. In the matter of performance, the gas ranges now on display have forged ahead to a new peak of excellence this year.

The Washington Gas Light Co. gives the following facts about new ranges:

Multiflame top burners offer any speed of heat, from instant full flame to mere points of flame for simmering and warming. Foods start cooking the moment the gas is turned on.

Triple pans and well cookers serve to cook the main course over one burner without constant attention. Ovens preheat in double-quick time; the low temperature (down to 250 degrees) can be maintained for foods demanding them.

Quick-searing, smokeless broilers produce steaks and chops in a new high for deliciousness. The giant burner, standard equipment on all modern gas ranges, brings liquids to a boil faster than ever before.

There are no unevenly heated corners in the oven of the modern gas range; foods bake and brown uniformly. Improved insulation confines the oven heat, the air-conditioned oven permits food flavors to remain distinct—a whole meal may be cooked at once. Oven racks are nontip, there can be no accidents; broiler racks slide or swing out, or swing upward.

Shepherd's Pie

1½-2 cups chopped cooked meat
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup peas
2 cups water or stock
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
4 medium-sized potatoes
Salt and pepper

Cook carrots, celery and onions in a small amount of water until almost tender. Then add seasonings. Make a sauce of the flour, fat and stock. Add this, together with the meat and peas, to the cooked vegetables. Pour into a buttered baking dish, and cover the top with potatoes, cooked and mashed until light and fluffy. Bake in a 375 degree oven until

Quick Oven Meal For Busy Women

To be baked in a 450 degree (hot) oven for 30 minutes)

Corned Beef Puffs

1½ cups corned beef chopped
1½ cups cold cooked potatoes—chopped
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
1½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1-16 teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic salt (optional)
1 egg separated
¼ cup milk

Pour Worcestershire sauce over the chopped potatoes. Combine with the meat, baking powder and other seasoning. Beat the egg yolk and add to milk then stir into first mixture. Beat egg white stiff but not dry and fold in. Bake in greased custard cup or muffin tins 20 minutes at 450 degrees. Make 4-6 puffs. Serve hot with catsup or tomato sauce. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Corn Pudding

2 cups corn (fresh or canned)
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup top milk or cream
salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter, stir in flour, then add milk and cook 3 minutes. Combine with corn and pour into buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Substitute cooked green lima beans for part of the corn if desired.

Deviled Tomatoes

4 large smooth tomatoes
¼ cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste
Prepared mustard
1 tablespoon chopped onion

Remove stem end from tomatoes then cut each tomato in half cross-wise. Spread a little mustard on cut surface of each tomato. Season with salt, pepper and chopped onion. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Place on a shallow pan and bake in oven with meal or until tender.

Other quickly cooked vegetables can be substituted for either tomatoes or corn pudding.

A small pan of biscuits can be baked in the oven for twelve to fifteen minutes.

Care of Range

Soap and water will take care of the regular cleaning of your range. If it needs some extra cleaning, use a little baking soda on a moist cloth, or any non-abrasive polishing powder. Nowadays the inside and outside of the range are as easily washed as
